Mayor Willis Conner Cited As Dexter Man of Year

By CHARLES BRADY

DEXTER — Low keyed chuckles followed by applause greeted Dexter Mayor Willis Conner's remark, "It's hard to believe that a mayor could get this kind of award."

Conner had just been named Man of the Year by the Dexter Chamber of Commerce at the annual Chamber banquet meeting last night at the Catholic Hall. Approximately 165 attended.

Toastmaster Darrel Cole announced Conner as the winner and told about his activities. Carl Benbrook of the Cape Girardeau Chamber of Commerce presented the award.

Conner, 51, is a life - long Dexter resident. He is a member of the Missouri Municipal League and has served five years as mayor.

During his administration, many miles of streets have been paved. The mayor was instrumental in providing facilities for a Chamber of Commerce office in the city administration building.

Percy Clippard received the 1969 Man of the Year award.

Members of the Sikeston, Bloomfield, Malden, Jefferson City, and Cape Girardeau Chamber of Commerce were guests at the meeting.

Chamber of Commerce officers installed were Bob Robins, president; Les Sleinkofer, first vice president; Don Evans, second vice president; and Berry Holder, secretary and treasurer.

Service awards were presented to members of the Dexter Chamber of Commerce by Estes.

Operator Struck, Station Set Afire

ESSEX, Mo. (AP) -- Two men who slugged a Southeast Missouri service station operator in a robbery attempt apparently were angered when they found no money and set fire to the station, the highway patrol reported Tuesday night.

The day's receipts had been removed from the station earlier.

The station operator, E.N. Cobb, was taken to a Dexter Memorial hospital for treatment of a concussion and head cuts, the patrol said.

The station was extensively damaged.

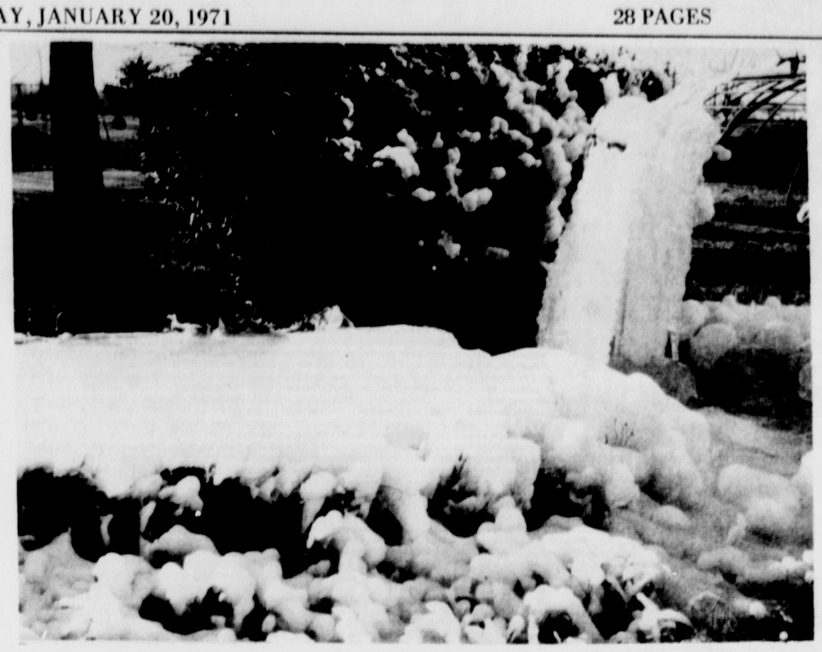
E. D. Cobb at the MFA station was hit on the head and the station set on fire at 8:30 p.m.

The patrol said Cobb was working on a stove when two men entered the station and said they wanted gas in a two - gallon can. After they purchased the gas, they poured it inside the station and set it afire.

Cobb was struck on the head. He is in Dexter Memorial hospital with a concussion.

The patrol said Cobb described the men as "hippie type looking". Cobb said one man was about 30, five feet, six inches tall, and weighed about 160 pounds. He said the other man had a beard.

The inside of the station was burned out.



A WATER FAUCET in Clayton Park was not turned off before freezing weather began. It has created it's own sculpture. The city light and water office has been notified and the faucet will be shut off today.

Policy Shift Hinted

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The semiofficial Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram said today Palestinian guerrillas had dropped opposition to a peaceful settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict, but a spokesman for one major commando group denied it had done so.

A spokesman for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine said in Beirut, Lebanon, that the PFLP "continues to oppose all efforts for a settlement and continues to believe that the only way to liberate Palestine is through armed struggle."

The spokesman made clear, however, that he was speaking only for the front and not for other guerrilla groups.

Al Ahram said the central committee of the Palestine guerrilla organization at a meeting in Amman adopted a resolution expressing "unanimous support for any political moves by Arab states to liquidate the consequences of the June 1967 aggression."

The resolution was endorsed by the radical, militant Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine as well as the more moderate Al Fatah organization, largest of the guerrilla groups.

Previously the Palestinians had vehemently denounced all Arab participation in peacemaking efforts as treason to the Palestinian cause.

The resolution was adopted "in the course of an over-all reconsideration of the circumstances of the Palestinian movement," Al Ahram said.

The guerrillas have been demanding the establishment of "a secular democratic state" to replace Israel and rejected the November 1967 U.N. Security Council resolution as a basis for settlement. But today Yasir Arafat, head of Al Fatah and the combined organization, was quoted by Al Ahram as saying:

"Egypt's resolute stand on the implementation of the November resolution leaves no room for doubt about its sincerity and determination on the path of struggle."

The 1967 council resolution called for Arab recognition of Israel's right to exist as a nation with assured and recognized boundaries and territories wrested from the Arabs in the 1967 war.

The leader of the Popular Front, George Habash, also endorsed Egypt's position, saying: "We know that Egypt—as it has shown during the latest events in Jordan—is our greatest friend and bulwark."

Quick Aid Saves Life of Girl, Three

By MIKE JENSEN

A real life drama had a happy ending Saturday due to the quick thinking of telephone operators and first aid efforts of one citizen.

Operator, Virginia Carlisle received a call Saturday from a frightened little girl who said her sister had fallen in a bathtub and was unconscious. The operator asked the girl her name and address so that assistance might be given but in the excitement the little girl could only say that she lived west of Bertrand.

Jewell Crabb, observing Carlisle, realized an emergency was unfolding and alerted the chief operator and the service assistant.

The little girl hung up still giving no address.

The operators tried to locate the child on an emergency ringback system, but efforts were unsuccessful.

Operator, Dorothy Young, who lives in the vicinity of the child attempted to call her husband at the Riley Service Station on East Malone. Her husband was not there, but she told her story to station manager Richard Riley and he agreed to try to locate the injured child.

Riley and an assistant drove to the vicinity and saw a young girl holding a small child on the side of the road.

Riley said this morning when he first saw the child he thought she was dead. She was black around the eyes and appeared lifeless, he said. Riley decided not to wait for an ambulance but to take her immediately to a hospital.

En route to the hospital Riley administered mouth to mouth resucitation and before he arrived the child was breathing and "moved her legs."

The child, Ann Marie Antonaccio, aged three, was admitted to the Missouri Delta Community hospital Saturday and is scheduled to be released today. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Antonaccio.

Crime Triumphs at Noranda Building Site

In The Cape Girardeau Southeast Missourian

CAPE GIRARDEAU — An eight - year member of Local 282 of the laborers Union here claims gambling, drinking, stealing, operation of private businesses and featherbedding are being conducted by union foremen at the Noranda Aluminum Co. construction site south of New Madrid.

The union member, interviewed Monday by The Missourian, said he could tell a "hell of a lot more'. than what the Missouri Task Force on Organized Crime charged in its report released two weeks ago. The report cited as fact much of what the union local member charged in the interview.

Asking that his name not be publicized, the union member claimed he has seen both foremen and laborers of Local 282 "sitting around in shacks drinking and playing cards" instead of doing the work they were being paid for.

The laborer, employed at Noranda nine months last year, said he was told upon reporting to work one morning to do a job which took about 10 minutes of his time "and then go and hide out."

He said he would sometimes go into work shacks and see card games in progress with as mucn as $100 to $200 at stake.

Whisky, he said, is presently being sold for 50 cents a shot and he knew of at least three "hot dog and soda stands" being operated for a profit by laborers and their foremen on the construction site.

He said superintendents of Kaiser Engineers, contractors for the construction of the huge $191 million aluminum reduction processing plant and rod and wire mill, had ordered the gambling and drinking to halt. "But it would start up again only a couple days later," he said.

Likewise, the food selling operations were ordered closed but they would be in operation "after the pressure wore off," he added.

"The foremen and some laborers would bring their booze in a lunchbox or other containers. They'd ice the beer down in water coolers and as many as eight or 10 men would sit around in the shack all day gambling and drinking," he asserted.

He said some union foremen ordered their men to steal items.

"A few of the laborers would steal for the foremen," he said. "after they (the laborers) were told they.d get some overtime to stay late so they could steal."

He continued:

"You could really get some overtime if you stole a lot. One crew came in two hours ahead of time and could get a lot out of the plant."

He said he heard one laborer tell another he would never steal again for a certain foreman because a $75 wrench the laborer had stolen for himself and stored in a shack was grabbed by his foreman before he could get his hands on it.

He said some of the laborers would present their foremen with a fifth of whisky when they reported to work in the morning and then be excused from work the remainder of the day. They were paid, however, for that day.

"Foremen would be constantly trying to collect money for something," he charged. "One time we were asked to give $6 or get off the job so that a union business agent could get his fee for getting us a raise," he stated.

"Another time they asked us to give $6 so they could buy our business agent a Christmas present." He said the collections were in excess of labor dues of $12 per month in addition to $13 payable quarterly.

One laborer, he said, was paid for two weeks he was away from the job last summer during a stay in camp with the Army National Guard.

He also asserted that certain southeast Missouri county sheriffs would "get a man on the job if they would pay him $100. I know one guy from Charleston who couldn't read or write who says he paid a sheriff for the job.

Scott County Sheriff John Dennis said at Benton this morning he has never received or "been offered" any money to assist persons in getting jobs at the Noranda site.

Sheriff Dennis said he has assisted persons in getting jobs at Noranda just as "I would help someone to get a job as a garbage collector."

The Scott county sheriff said he has received reports of tools being stolen at Noranda, but "so far we haven't been able to come up with anything."

"I would say," Sheriff Dennis commented, "none of the Noranda deal has added crime to our county."

"Labor foremen would come around once in awhile and tell you you're working too damn hard," he said.

"Then they'd say if you want a job tomorrow you better slow down," he stated. "Go hide out in the weeds awhile, there's no work to do, you want to get laid off?"

He said laborers could "take off damn near anytime they took a notion."

He said he knew of one Cape Girardeau man who was offered a job by a union official on the basis "of just sitting around in a warehouse all day and stealing a few things for me." The informant said the man refused the job.

He said he was assigned for several days to keep water out of an electricity line manhole. "One or two water buckets full would seep in all day and all night," he said, "and the rest of the time I would be wandering around trying to keep out of sight."

At the end of each day, he said, he was instructed to fill the holes back up with water so that there would be work for him the next day.

Hearnes Bases $1.7 Billion Budget on Tax Hike Renewal

JEFFERSON CITY AP)—In drafting his 1971-72 budget, Gov. Warren E. Hearnes assumed that the Missouri Legislature would make the present income tax rates permanent. So today he recommended spending a record $1.7 billion.

If the present income tax increases are not retained, the state's revenue will fall nearly $48 million short of covering Hearnes' budget.

The governor also suggested a $250 million bond issue for capital improvements at state institutions and a $150 million bond issue for controlling water pollution.

If the legislature approves, the bond issues will be submitted to the voters. The governor emphasized the need to meet the cost of existing programs and commitments, including a $70 million increase in state aid to schools. He said there is no leeway for new programs.

He recommended a 5 per cent pay increase for state workers, effective July 1, and a similar increase July 1, 1972. He called this "a matter of substantial priority."

On the whole, the governor said in the budget book sent up to the legislators, "this is a realistic budget which takes into account the numerous demands for additional state services as well as the practicalities of life so far as income is concerned.

"Our first commitment must be to properly finance our major state services of mental health, welfare, public schools and higher education. This budget meets that commitment with a carefully drawn blueprint of expenditures which will make Missouri a better state during the coming year."

The major state services Hearnes mentioned account for more than 84 per cent of the budget total.

He said only one legislative step is necessary to make it a balanced budget — "I recommend that you remove the one-year limitation from the income tax legislation which was adopted last month by the 75th General Assembly."

The special session which ended last month limited individual and corporate income tax increases to 1971. That would provide no increase to apply on the last six months of the 1971-72 fiscal year ending June 30, 1972.

If the one-year limitation is removed, the governor estimated this would provide $26.8 million in general revenue (tax) money for the fiscal year.

Figuring on this basis, the governor recommended total general revenue appropriations of $780.9 million and said this would leave a balance on June 30, 1972, of $2,198,750.

Without extension of the income tax rates, the 1971-72 general revenue estimate would fall $47.7 million short of meeting the governor's budget recommendations.

The total budget of $1.7 billion includes about $474 million in highway and other earmarked funds plus $517.6 million from federal funds.

Hearnes urged immediate action on two things—an emergency appropriation bill of $11.9 million left hanging by last month's special session and the $70 million increase in state aid to schools so local school boards can make any necessary property tax proposals at the April school elections.

The governor withheld proposed recommendations on urban problems until later, probably next week, but made an unexplained reference to it.

"State aid to public schools," he said, "consists of much more than the foundation program, and a portion of my message on urban affairs will have an effect upon school finances. I urge you to carefully review that message when it is presented to you."

His office declined to clarify this vague reference.

In recommending the $250 million capital improvements bond issue, the governor noted that he listed major construction priorities at state schools and institutions at the special session two months ago. Today he said the state cannot meet the needs on a pay-as-you-go basis.

"It is my recommendation," he said, "that you carefully select and appropriate for those capital improvements in order that the people may know exactly what would be built when they vote on the bond issue."

In the 1971-72 budget, Hearnes recommended immediate capital improvements of $17.9 million, compared with institutional requests that totaled more than $224 million. The biggest chunk recommended was $2.5 million for the University of Missouri's four campuses.

In his opening message to the Legislature, the governor announced he plans to combine water pollution, air conservation and water resources programs under a new environmental control board which he would appoint.

That would be accomplished by executive action, subject to legislative veto later.

He returned to the water pollution problem in today's message by recommending a bond issue of $150 million to help cities pay for costly sewage systems and disposal plants. Combined with local and federal funds, he said that would generate a $600-million sewage system construction program.

Under the present federal law, the municipality pays 20 per cent of the cost of such projects, the state 25 per cent and the federal government the remaining 55 per cent.

In addition to the $70 million increase in state aid to schools to meet a 1969 legislative promise, the governor recommended these other increases in major programs.

Request for Residency Opinion Asked

JEFFERSON CITY–State Representative Tony Heckemeyer of Sikeston was this morning preparing a request for an opinion from state Attorney General John Danforth on the residency of Scott county Magistrate Lloyd G. "Jerry" Briggs.

Briggs, a Democrat, was elected unopposed in November. He signed documents in Alabama stating he was a resident there. Missouri law requires him to be a resident here the nine months prior to election.

Briggs contends he is a resident of Scott county, although he lived in Alabama during that period.

Thomas R. Gilmore, prosecuting attorney of Scott County, said he is planning to confer with members of the county court this week to "share our feelings on the matter and compare notes."

New Procedures To Improve 92nd Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the 92nd Congress opens Thursday the Senate will begin operating under new rules and procedures to improve its efficiency and fairness.

And if proposals advanced by four first-term senators are accepted, the Senate, with thoughts of last year's marathon session still in mind, will try to eliminate some ancient time-consuming practices.

The changes certain to take effect result from last year's Legislative Reorganization Act, an outgrowth of a 1965-66 committee study.

Major changes under the new act curtail the power of committee chairmen without touching the seniority system; eliminate much committee secrecy; curtail prerogatives of senior senators; give Congress tools for more effective control over the budget, and provide greater congressional overseeing of all government operations.

Most of these provisions apply to the House as well as the Senate.

Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.; William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio; Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, and Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., have met a generally friendly reception with their ideas for reorganizing the Senate's work practices.

Their proposal would have the Senate meet each day at noon to give committees time to function. In recent years leaders often have set an earlier convening time to clear long-delayed business.

Lengthy speeches in which senators traditionally have bared their souls on any number of subjects would be shunted to a special period at the end of the day.

Once the legislation began to flow from committees, the Senate would work five days a week instead of the customary two or three. But every month, to give members a chance to visit home states, a five-day recess would be called from Wednesday to Monday.

A substantial increase in operating expense for all departments was reported.

Nixon himself will be chairman of the new body. Secretary of State William P. Rogers will preside in the President's absence.

Pemiscot County Election Officials Fined for Fraud

CARUTHERSVILLE, (AP) — Fines and suspended prison sentences were imposed Tuesday on six or 19 Pemiscot County election officials indicted for alleged fraudulent practices in connection with the Auggust primary election.

All six pleaded guilty to fraud and three to additional charges of perjury in connection with teetimony before a Pemiscot County Grand Jury. Charges against a seventh were dismissed.

JANUARY

Meadows and upland fields and ridge crests are covered with snow. Brooks and creeks run slowly beneath the ice and the muted music blends with the spirit of winter.

Naked elms in the lowlands stand like etchings against a stark background. At dawn and before sunset, slanting rays strike jewel gleams from sculputred drifts along the roadsides.

There are pleasant January days when a gold platter of sun shines from a blue sky. Smoke spirals upward from farmhouse chimneys and drifts slowly away— a black hyphen on day's page.

The sound of axes comes from the woodlot, monotone notes that fit the mood of the season. The meeting house bell strikes the hour and the notes float far across the landscape.

There are other days when blizzards howl down from the northland and the wind moans around the house and cries in the chimney. Snow fills the paths around the farmstead and the countryman, listening to the storm in the night, knows he will have paths to shovel again.

Winter's countenance does not mean that life has stopped. Wild animals make their rounds; the chicadees come to the feeder. Buds are safely wrapped and waiting for the time of resurrection.

The First Month is a testing time. It is the period of simplicity. But he who is tuned to Nature's plan, knows that when time is fulfilled, the awakening never fails.

THE MELLOWED MARXISTS

How far the Communists have "mellowed" is being observed, with not a little dismay, by American business firms with investments in Chile. With each passing day, the "new" Marxist, Salvador Allende, reveals more and more of the old, familiar features of the Dictatorship of the Proletariat.

Thus, Allende has moved to take over American investments in Chile valued in the hundreds of millions of dollars. First on the target was the Anaconda copper mines, which not only represent about $400 million in holdings but also two thirds of all the copper ore mined by Anaconda Co. to meet its present requirements. The Kennecott Copper Corp., which has invested $250 million in developing copper mining in Chile stands to lose about 25% of its present volume of ore. A thirdAmerican company, Cerro Corp., has invested $35 million in a new mine which began operations only last July.

Announcing the seizure of holdings by Ralston Purina and the National Brass Company, Allende arrogantly declared. "We don't want some Americans to stay too long in Chile. If a foreigner does not comply with the laws of Chile, he is going to see how fast the borders will open to him so he can return to his homeland."

Allende neglected to explain that all of the solemn agreements made between American investors and the Chilean government were, and continue to be, in strict accord with the law; but, as virtual dictator of Chile, Allende has himself violated the standing laws, and substituted new, Communist "laws" which enable him to "expropriate" and "nationalize" (diplomatic words for "steal") any property he chooses.

The Wall StreetJournal reports that since 1968, the Marxist regime in Peru, northern neighbor to Chile, has seized foreign investments totaling more than $850 million. Among the American losers are American Smelting and Refining Co., Cerro Corp, Phleps Dodge, and Newmont Mining Corp. The Red Peruvian regime has taken over oil, telephone utilities, banks, newspapers, sugar plantations and foreign auto assembly plants, according to the Journal.

If the Communists have mellowed, they are doing a remarkable job of concealing it.

The grand ballroom was filled with Viet Con flags and the air was crammed with anti-American statements. Was it a meeting of the North Vietnamese Presidium? No, it was the first annual meeting of the Fund for Education in World Order, in New York City. There were speeches by Chet Huntley, Senators Jake Javits, Eugene McCarthy, and another by Sen. J. William Fulbright, which was interrupted by antiwar demonstrators. No one said a word about the display of the Viet Cong flags, but objections were raised as to the "Poor taste and discourtesy" of the demonstrators. No one asked that the flags be removed, but Jerome Wiesner, Provost of MIT, did indicate he'd like to invite "my Russian friends"to the U.S. to see evidence of disarmament steps when they are taken. The Rev. William Sloane Coffin, indicted for counseling young men to avoid the draft, said that "Marx was essentially right when he said religion is the opiate of the people." The whole affair was a get-together of think-alikes who didn't like the Sentinel antiballistic missile system.

THE NEW IMPERIALISM

The charge of United States "imperialism" grows tiresome.

Communists, socialists, UN delegates, Black Panthers, SDS, peaceniks, and even some brilliant college students - all accuse the United States of imperialism. What are their grounds?

All in one week a young churchman, a young attorney, a young teacher, several young businessmen, a new housewife, and a college senior wrote letters to me charging the United States with imperialism.

The word, and the evil it is supposed to represent, is used by a vast number of Americans as well as by foreign critics. "Imperialism" and "capitalism" are written, shouted, and printed in denunciation of all things American.

Nothing demonstrates the weakness of many anti-American movements more than their hurling the charge of "imperialistic" at nations of the Western world, and especially at the United States.

Since 1946 the British Empire has released 25 colonies and territories. Since 1948, France has given up 18 colonies and territories, including Viet Nam, Algeria, and the French Congo. The British Empire was stripped of Western Samona, Tonga, and Zanzibar. Belgium gave up three of its territories, including the Belgian Congo. Spain, New Zealand, and the Netherlands each released one colonial property. The United States gave independence to the Philippines.

No major nation can match the record of the United States for respecting and honoring the territory and possessions of other lands. Anticipating the usual criticism directed toward anyone who is proud of the land of his birth, I make no claim that the United States is without fault or that its record is without blemish. In balance, this nation attained its present level of population, industrial might, wealth, and power with a minimum of growth by territorial conquest and with a maximum of growth by legal purchase.

The United States respected the territorial homelands of our defeated enemies in both World Wars I and II. United States loans, grants, leadership, and technical knowledge restored economic and domestic stability to Japan and West Germany following World War II. We have helped the postwar governments of our two major World War II enemies reach the heights in production, commerce, and wealth in just twenty years.

Against the record of free nations that have released protectorates, territories, and colonies to independent status stands the record of international communism. Since 1917 the U.S.S.R. has expanded its empire by conquering or absorbing 33 once- independent sovereign lands and territories.

In 1900 you would have been hard- pressed to pull together 200 men in the world who were dedicated to the grandiose philosophies of Karl Marx. Indeed, only 17 men planned the Russian Revolution. For sixteen years the United States refused to recognize the butchers of Moscow as any kind of legal government in Russia. It was not until the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt reversed that policy and gave official recognition to Moscow that world communism could make dramatic headway.

Following World War II the United States, Britain, France, and China yielded to Soviet pressure and stood by while communism took over vast areas of land and enslaved 200 million more people. Today, over a billion people are captive to communist imperialism. Authorities estimate that more than 100 million human beings have died at the hands of Communist murderers. By comparison, Adolf Hitler was a piker, Genghis Khan was a Sunday School teacher, Napoleon was a welfare worker, and Kaiser Wilhelm was a water boy.

In the past ten years alone, 20 once- independent or neutral nations have been brought within the Soviet or Red Chinese orbit of communist imperialism and influence. That includes Burma, Nigeria, Kenya, Uganda, Mauritius, and Zambia, all once part of the British colonial empire; Tanzania, once part of the German Empire; Chad, a former French possession; and the Congo Republic, which was one Belgian.

Throughout the free world - and especially in the United States - former citizens of Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, and their descendants, struggle to keep the dream of freedom for their homelands alive despite a growing and colossal indifference on the part of the average American. Sons and daughters of Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, and the entire eastern segment of Europe are being gradually silenced in their pleas for our defense of freedom for captive people. The normal channels of communication such as national radio and television networks, the major press, and magazines and books are open to millions of our own callous citizens while they are all but closed to organizations fiercely devoted to the dignity of man and true freedom.

Any pretense that Russia has a different relationship with the communist colonial empire than did England with the former British kingdom is pure nonsense. The only difference lies in semantics and in the style of human treatment. The Western colonial powers gave a modicum of freedom and vast dignity to the territories they developed and controlled- while communism, Moscow- style, holds the communist empire in the tight grip of the iron fist and the heavy tread of military boots. If you doubt that, you might ask Hungary, Poland, and Czechoslovakia who runs their modern lands. You might ask the people who today live in Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania who controls their lives.

Red China dominates the land mass of old China, and Albania is her most faithful servant. Thus the U.S.S.R. remains the mightiest of two communist imperialistic powers, with heavy influence through the threat of international blackmail upon what sometimes are called "third- world nations."

The cruel and grisly joke of all of this is that Russia makes great propaganda about "wars of national liberation." No matter what conditions exist in any nation on earth, should that nation ever be "liberated" - communist style - its total miseries and woes will only multiply. In some instances it might trade slightly better food, better housing, and a few clothes for a heavy iron yoke around the neck, rejection of God, and complete obedience to the Communist Party masters.

The only real imperialism and colonialism being exercised today is that which flows out of Moscow and Peking. The Western world foolishly yielded to what it considered to be world opinion and dropped some of its colonial "children" before they had the slightest notion how to maintain a decent and orderly life for themselves.

Our leaders and our people are much too patient and generous with critics of parts or all of our American system. Not only do we fail to demand that false accusers give evidence that we are evil as imperialists and capitalists, but too many people fall into the trap of using the terms themselves when the overwhelming weight of evidence is that we use our wealth and power to improve man's status in life rather than to destroy it.

TAXPAYING PROPERTY LOST

Press reports tell of cancellation by an investor - owned electric power company of plans to build a 750,000 - kilowatt nuclear power plant in New York State. An official of the power company stated that cancellation was caused by "difficulties and delays in securing regulatory approvals" for the proposed site of the plant.

The company has assigned its contracts for the acquirement of nuclear equipment to the Power Authority of New York, which plans to build a $200 million nuclear facility of its own. Thus, instead of the taxpaying, investor - owned company putting up more than $100 million for construction of a new nuclear plant, the taxpayers of New York State will be called upon to make the investment. The private plant would have meant a sizeable increase in revenue to local governments, since every doll r of private investment is subject to taxation. The state - owned facility will operate by a different set of tax rules. government projects generally escape most of the taxes normally paid by a private enterprise.

Government at all levels is searching for new sources of tax revenue. from all accounts, New York State is no exception. If anything, it is in a wosse plight than most other states. Since development of private industries and payrolls is a primary source of tax revenue, it would seem to be bad business from the standpoint of the taxpayers for any state to enter a business enterprise that can be done equally well or better by taxpaying private enterprise.

The publicly - regulated, investor - owned utility industry is one of the giggest and most reliable taxpayers in the nation. Taxpayers have little reason to cheer when a tax - subsidized state enterprise takes the place of this kinh of taxpaying private business.

THAT BANK LIMP

MY WIDOWED mother decided one summer to apply for a job as a waitress in a nearby resort hotel. She got along famously, had a ball and collected a staggering amount of tips. One day I went there unannounced and noticed that she was limping quite a bit as she left one table. I hurried over and asked concernedly,

"What's wrong, Mom? Do your feet hurt that much?"

She replied, with a wink, "they don't hurt at all, but I find if I limp a little, the tips are better!"

MANY STUDENTS USING MARIHUANA

If medical authorities can't convince medical students that the use of marihuana is ill-advised, perhaps even dangerous, how then can the population at - large be dissuaded?

This rhetorical question arises after a recent study at four unidentified medical schools.

The results of the study -- involving some 1,700 medical students (1,063 of whom responded) -- indicated more than half of them have used marihuana in the past, while 30% of those questioned said they were presently using marihuana.

A team of six psychiatrists conducted the study at the schools -- two of which were on the East Coast, one in the Midwest, and the fourth on the West Coast.

Conducting the study were MDs Martin Lipp, Samuel Benson, Jared Tinklenberg and Frederick Melges from Stanford University Medical Center; Zebulon Taintor of the State University of New York at Buffalo, and Margaret Peterson, University of Nebraska College of Medicine.

The doctors said most of the medical students who participated in the study do not argue with the opinion that marihuana is a dangerous drug.

OLD PROPERTIES NEVER DIE — JUST KEEP EATING TAXES

With a few thousand dollars a fellow could pick up some fine unused property and buildings that Uncle Sam has had in Madrid or Rotterdam for 18 years, or a piece of Curacao he's held on to for 17 years, notes Tax Foundation, Inc. As of midyear, the State Department's Office of Foreign Building Operations (FBO) said it hoped soon to sell these holdings as well as some others.

The notice of intent to sell came soon after the General Accounting Office's investigation of long - term holdings of foreign property, most for government use.

GAO said the Department reported approximately $273 million invested in 1,588 government owned and long - term - leased real propesty at the end of 1968. Also possessed by Uncle Sam were 4,752 properties leased on a short - term basis at an annual cost of about $23 million.

The "watchdog" agency's investigation of the acquisition and management of foreign holdings revealed 26 real properties costing about $2.7 million had been retained by FBO for periods of up to 20 years as of the end of 1967— even though there appeared to be no current need for them.

As of the 1967 date the Federal government's individual property investments ranged from $556,787 in land in Beirut, Leganon, where an office building is planned, to $17,188 and $20,214 for two pieces of property in Kaduna, Nigeria. Each had been held for seven years without being used at the time of the GAO investigation. The Curacao piece had a government in vestment in it of $11,666 two years ago, but a buyer "willing to pay a reasonable price has not as yet been found," according to a report dated last May.

Near central Madrid is a 37-room residence for the government's Deputy Chief of Mission valued at between $750,000 and $815,000. The government's investment in this property is $69,000. About $291,000 had been invested in other Madrid property

The GAO however, said that continued holding of these properties was "questionable," either because of high maintenance costs or because if sold the proceeds could be used to get more suitable property.

In 1949, FBO got property in Rotterdam for about $64,700 for proposed new consulate offices.

In 1963, said GAO, it was proposed to sell the property since closing of the consulate was anticipated. However, in 1966 FBO said the building would go up. In 1967 GAO's investigation showed no consulate building plans through f.y. 1972. In April this year, FBO said it would sell the property if the consulate is discontinued.

OIL SHIPMENT BY SUBMARINE SEEN

Nuclear - powered submarine tankers have been proposed to, move the Alaskan oil under the ice to an ice-free North Atlantic port, whese the oil would be transferred to conventional tankers for delivery to U.S. East Coast destinations.

These 170,000 - ton submersibles could traverse the Northwest Passage or move under the ice of the Arctic Ocean to the open sea, according to General Dynamics Corp.

Roger Lewis, General Dynamics president, said that the proposals were made after extensive technical feasibility and cost evaluation studies showed the submarine to be an entirely practical and economically attractive means for moving arctic oil.

"Several aspects of the submarine's inherent flexibility are of special interest," Mr. Lewis said. "Capable of being loaded either on the surface or while submerged, it can adjust its route as required to service possible new arctic oil discoveries and may be especially advantageous for moving oil from the Arctic islands, should oil be found there."

H.L. Hunt Says

WHOSE CHILDREN?

The family has long been regarded as the cornerstone of our society, and rightly so. Yet many proposals are now being made to take away from parents their primary responsibility for the upbringing of children, and bestow this authority on the government. These proposals were widely discussed and applauded at the White House Conference on Children held in Washington last December. Dr. Edward Zigler, head of the Office Child Development of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, declared that the conference's primary purpose was to create a powerful lobby to advance these proposals.

This lobby would push for governemt day-care centers which would go far beyond simply providing a place for children of working mothers to stay. In effect these new centers would unsurp the parent's role in providing moral, social and religious training.

According to columnist Paul Scott, a confidential HEW study declares that a day -care center which cares for a child from his sixth month to his sixth year will have more than 8,000 months to teach him values and beliefs and would be a powerful and primary influence upon him.

The White House Conference also called for a government financed "Child Advocacy" program, by which government would intervene between parents and child. Although no one denies that a few children are cruelly mistreated, our present laws are quite adequate to deal with these situations. We do not need to give the government broad powers to override the rightful authority of all parents. Congress should promptly defeat all proposals to unde.mine and divide the family. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--As befits the First Dog of the nation, President's Nixon's handsome Irish setter, King Timahoe, has traveled cross country in a luxury class Air Force Jet.

Gone for Nixon are those threadbare days in 1952 when he cried to the voters about his little mongrel Checkers and his wife's cloth coat.

Last summer, instead he dispatched the presidential mutt from Washington to San Clemente, Calif., in a remodeled 707 with the same pampering usually accorded high officials.

President Nixon leans toward the Franklin D. Rossevelt rather than the Lyndon B. Johnson school of dog-handling. FDR also treated his Scotty Fala to luxurious trips, while LBJ hoisted his beagles by their ears.

This elevation of pets has been a ruler's prerogative since the Emperor Caligula gave his horse, Incitatus, a retunue of slaves and announced the horse would be made a consul. Nixon, in this tradition, summoned King Timahoe to San Clemente last summer. At Andrews Air Force Base, outside Washington, officers were wryly informed only that an "important personage" would accompany White House aides to California.

To their astonishemet, the "important personage" turned out to be the dog, tongue lolling, coat sleek as a four-star general's. One anti-canine member of the traveling party said King Timahoe was treated more like a dignitary than a dog.

At San Clemente, when the dog first disembarked, our sousces at the airport thought the trip had been made by King Timahoe in regal solitude. But the setter, named after the hometown of Nixon's Irish Milhouse forebears, had merely left the plane separately.

ELEPHANTS, TOO

The White House has not limited the space on Presidential planes to dogs. In June, when the President sent a group of governors, Senators and congressmen to Indochina to study the war, they airlifted back some artificial animals.

At Saigon, the distinguished passengers became entranced by some glazed ceramic elephants. Repbulican and Democratic bigwigs alike sent out government underlings to buy them up as status gifts for GOP friends. By the time the plane was ready to go, the delegates had acquired 45 of the large ceramic pachyderms.

Enroute back to Washington, the elephant-buyers decided it would be politically disastrous for news photographers to catch them deplaning from a "war mission" laden with expensive, silly-looking elephants. The Custom Bureau had already agreed to clear them with whatever gifts they brought in, so the stage was set for the great elephant smuggle.

The sumptous Air Force airliner taxied in. Newsmen and cameramen rushed up. Somber as only all-night partyers and brainwashed briefees can be, the delegates told of the ordeals they had gone through.

Only after the newsmen had left were the glazed elephants quietly unloaded and delivered to the delegation members.

Footnote: The VIP traffic at Andrews picked up around Christmas time. No less than four "classified" planed loads of junketeering congressmen and officials arrived at the base with Santa-loads of gifts for themselves and friends. These included furniture, lamps, vases, $1,000 antiuqes, all hauled through Andrews gates while customs agents looked the other way. Ordinary citizens can bring in only $100 worth of duty-free gifts.

PHONY REFORMS

Instead of unseating the House's encrusted chairmen, the House Democratic caucus seems more intent upon talking chairmenships away from some of the most vigoruous younger members.

This is the effect of Rep. Julie Butler Hansen's milksop proposals to reform the White House seniority system.

What happened is clear. Mrs. Hansen and her ten colleagues on a select committee worked so hard to find a compromise which would get past the HOuse leadership tha they scuttled reform.

The proposals explicitly block democratic elections of committee chairman to the delight of the creaky octogenarians and septuagenarians who rule Congress. And a proposal intended as a mild reform actually will knife some of Congress' hardest workers.

This is a clause that would bar a congressman, no matter how efficeint he is, from chairing two legislative subcommittees. For example, it would rob Rep. John Moss, D—Calif. of either the gavel he has used to protect freedom of information or the one he has wielded in behalf of investors.

It would reduce the power of Rep. Henry Reuss, D—Wis., to fight the polluters or the greedy bankers, depending on which subcommittee he would lose . Rep. Dante Fascell, D—Fla., would have to give up his power to reform law enforcement or lose his effectiveness on Latin American affairs.

Other dynamic younger members with two committees include Reps. L.H. Fountain, D- N.C., the drug industry reformer; Leonor Sullivan, D—Mo., the truth-in-lending battler; John Dingell, D—Mich., enemy of the Penn Central giveaway; and John Blatnik, D—Mich., another anti-polluter.

Two of the House's few blacks typically, would have to give up subcommittees. One, Charles Diggs, D- Mich., would lose either his leadership in fights for Washington's poor, or his top job on the African Affairs subcommittee.

The most ironic aspect of the reform is that it would allow such ancient husks as Bill Colmer, D—Miss., to keep on leading the powerful Rules Committee, but would force Wright Patman, D—Tex., 77, the only on of the ancients still fighting like a young lion, to step down from two of his three chairmanships.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most pitiable figures of our times is the man who doesn't like his job—and there are millions who don't.

They would like to launch a fresh career but feel they can't. They are up to their gluteal maximus in the responsibilities of raising a family, paying off a mortgage, and keeping an adequate supply of gin stored under the kitchen sink.

Is there nothing they can do except go on living a life of noisy desperation? Yes, there is. If they are bored with their present job, they can obtain relief by moonlighting on another job which will enable them to express themselves more fully.

Here are a few moonlight jobs that one might find appealing:

Piano tuner in an Arabian harem.

Ghost write for Harold Stassen's 1972 political comeback.

Beanbag pitcher for the Dallas Cowboys.

Posing for a sculptor of department store window dummies.

Proofreader or picture editor for a pornography firm.

Ticketaker for the first presentation in Keokuk, Iowa, of an opera sung in Chinese.

Night bodyguard for Mae West.

A door-to-door brassiere salesman.

Valet to a rich midget.

The backdoor watcher at Ft. Knox.

Food taster at Maxim's in Paris.

Toupee cataloguer for Georgie Jessel, Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra.

Wine steward for Dean Martin.

English Teacher for Buddy Hackett.

Cultural czar of Las Vegas.

Speech instructor for the invisible man—Howard Hughes. He doesn't talk but his money does.

Yes, if you seek escape from the tedium of your present breadwinning role, you can't do better than to turn to a more glamorous moonlight job. All you have to do is pick the right one.

PATTERNS ON THE WALL of the Sikeston Masonic Temple on South Kingshighway are created by the shadows of an old elm tree at the edge of the driveway.

Do you notice the shapes and shadows in the world around you?

Many artistic shadows flee before anyone has taken time to notice them. And silhouettes, also a short-lived bit of natural art, deserve notice now and then.

To be an appreciator of natural art is to display or, at least, feel gentle beauty.

Hayti Rips N. Pemiscot

HAYTI — Sharp-shooting Willie Rogers pumped in 33 points and Buddy Smith added 20 as coach Bill Beck's undefeated Hayti Indians notched their 15th win of the season and fourth in Bootheel conference play Tuesday night, romping past North Pemiscot of Wardell, 89-69.

It was a much closer contest for the opening 26 minutes as the lead exchanged hands numerous times. North Pem had whittled away a 60-45 lead to just seven points early in the fourth before an offensive explosion pushed the Tribe into the impressive win, out-scoring the visitors 25-12 in the final five minutes and 51 seconds of the game.

Signs dipicting each team as the best cluttered the walls of the HHS gym, as the rivalry between the two Bootheel league powers was evident through such signs as -- scalp em Indians -- Mustangs are the Number one team.

Hayti's superior rebounding talents made the difference in the contest, as the Mustangs were limited to one shot numerous times during the encounter.

Coach David McMahon's Mustangs, who's record fell to 11-4, stayed within one point of the Indians through he first half before the host offense unloaded 25 points in the third while the Mustang offense stalled with only 11 markers before regaining some poise early in the final quarter and closng to seven before the dominating machine of the Tribe took full command with its 20 and 25 foot field goals.

Terry McColloch, displaying a lot of hustle and drive against the talented host, wheeled and dealed for 25 points to top the North Pem offense, while heading up the rebounding with 13 grabs.

It was the second meeting of the season for the two rivals, Hayti winning the earlier contest by twelve points in the finals of the Senath tourney.

Hayti's B-team continued to improve on its early season record, rolling over the visiting Mustangs in the evenings opening contest, 65-54 behind Randy Gardner's 30 point effort. Cockrell netted 18 for the Mustangs.

Louisiana Teams Top Cage Poll

By JERRY ESTILL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Three Louisiana basketball coaches are romancing the notion of having the No. 1 small college team in the nation and it's giving them different sensations.

The one who's there now is a little surprised. The one who was there last week was a little chagrinned. The one who hasn't been there yet is a little perturbed.

"I had hopes, but I didn't know how hard to hope," said Scotty Robertson of Louisiana Tech after his team emerged Tuesday night as No. 1 in The Associated Press college division poll.

Robertson said he felt his team was No. 1 after it beat Southwestern Louisiana—No. 1 at the time—last week. "But I didn't know whether the voters would look at LSUNO's undefeated record and put them ahead of us."

That is exactly what Ron Greene, coach of Louisiana State University-New Orleans, thinks should have happened. His Privateers are No. 3, behind Southwestern.

"It's unbelievable," said Greene. "Not unpredictable, but unbelievable. Nothing would surprise me. All I can say is it (No. 1) will be ours some day because we're going to get it. That I promise."

Greene's team is 12-0 for the season and has a 17-game winning streak dating back to last season.

Beryl Shipley of Southwestern said he didn't really enjoy being No. 1 much last week since his loss to Louisiana Tech on Monday night, the dav before the poll came out. "I couldn't be too enthusiastic after losing to Tech."

Shipley was philosophical about his chances of regaining the No. 1 spot. "We had better not falter," he said. "One backward step now and it's too late to plow." Southwestern is 12-2 for the season.

Tech has won 11 straight after an opening loss to Auburn and Robertson doesn't see any letdown now that his troops have achieved the top spot.

"This will push them to play harder," he said. "Our kids were quite elated at the beginning of practice Tuesday, but five minutes later we were working our tails off."

Louisiana Tech received four first place votes, LSUNO three and Southwestern Louisiana one.

Receiving one first place vote each were No. 4 Kentucky State, No. 5 Tennessee State, No. 6 Kentucky Wesleyan, No. 7 Ashland, No. 8 Fairmont State and No. 9 Stephen F. Austin.

Rounding out the Top Ten was Eau Claire.

BOSTON (AP) — The National Hockey League Writers Associatio has changed its name to the Professional Hockey Writers Association.

After voting the action at its annual meeting Monday, the association elected Jack Berry of the Detroit Free-Press president.

Red Burnett of the Toronto Star was elected vice president, and Jack Dulmage of the Windsor.

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Austin, who served as interim coach of the Washington Redskins following the death of Vince Lombardi, Tuesday was signed as assistant coach on offense by the Chicago Bears.

Austin, 42, was replaced as Washington's head coach by George Allen, who was fired by the Los Angeles Rams.

A former tackle at Oregon State and a pro guard for the New York Giants, Austin was the first assistant hired by Lombardi when Lombardi took over the Green Bay Packers in 1959.

Austin also was the first assistant Lombardi hired when he became the Redskin coach in 1969. Before joining Lombardi at Washington, Austin was head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers from 1966-68.

Austin becomes a seventh assistant on the Bear staff headed by Jim Dooley.

Super Dispute

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The controversy over the pass that John Mackey caught for the first Baltimore touchdown in the Super Bowl—and without which they might not be pro football's champions — continued today with four Pro Bowlers unable to reach agreement on what actually occurred.

At the same time, cornerback Mel Renfro of the Dallas Cowboys, the man fingered by Super Bowl officials as the player who tipped the pass into Mackey's hands, maintained he had been falsely accused on the critical play.

The call that upset Renfro came after Dallas had taken a 6-0 lead in the second quarter. Baltimore quarterback Johnny Unitas fired a pass to receiver Eddie Hinton, who got his hands on the ball but was unable to hold it.

As it flew off his hands, Renfro and Dallas safety Cornell Green leaped for the ball, but it wound up in Mackey's hands and the tight end raced the rest of the way for a 75-yard touchdown that pulled the Colts into a 6-6 tie in a game they eventually won 16-13.

The Cowboys maintained that neither Renfro nor Green touched the ball which, under the rules, would have made Mackey's grab an illegal reception since a member of the defensive team must touch the ball before another offensive player can make a legal catch.

But the officials ruled a member of the Cowboys—later identified as Renfro—touched it, allowing the reception and the touchdown.

Millions have since seen replays of the disputed play on television and still photos in newspapers and are unable to agree on whether Renfro did tip the ball or not—and Pro Bowlers interviewed by The Associated Press found themselves in much the same position.

"It's a judgement call and it happens so fast you have to honor the officials' call," said ROakland quarterback Daryle Lamonica, "but it didn't look like he touched it.

"It was one of the most difficult calls I've ever seen," said Kansas City defensive end Jerry Mays, "but it looked like it was tipped."

"When I saw the replay it looked like he tipped it," said Chiefs' linebacker Bobby Bell. "But I've also seen still pictures —and it looks like he missed it by a foot and a half."

"At first I didn't think it was touched," said San Francisco Coach Dick Nolan. "Then when I saw the replay I saw the trajectory of the ball change. As to whether Mel hit it or not ... Mel said he didn't hit it ..."

And Renfro said Cornell Green didn't tip it either.

"I talked to him and he said he didn't touch it," Renfro said.

Even Baltimore linebacker Mike Curtis, also here for the Pro Bowl, changed his mind after seeing films of the play.

"I had some question during the game," Curtis admitted. "But when I saw the game over on television, I saw it hit off Eddie's hands spinning at one revolution speed, then get changed to another speed after it was hit again.

"So I don't see how there could be any doubt."

But there still is. And probably always will be.

Haywood Gets Court Approval

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Controversial Spencer Haywood, fighting a court battle against the National Basketball Association, has won approval to continue playing with the NBA Seattle SuperSonics pending further legal action.

That might come today, or it might not come until March, affecting all of professional basketball and perhaps other sports.

U. S. District Court Judge Warren Ferguson, commenting that professional athletes "cannot be used and cannot be treated as merchandise," issued a preliminary injunction Monday permitting Haywood to stay with the SuperSonics.

The judge set a trial date of March 2 for the case which includes Haywood's contention the NBA violates antitrust laws and the argument of the Denver Rockets that the player is under contract to them.

In an appellate court at San Francisco today, the NBA will argue that Judge Ferguson did not have jurisdiction in the fight between the league and the player.

That basic argument is whether Seattle could officially sign a player whose university class has not graduated. The NBA constitution and by-laws hold a collegian cannot be signed to a pro contract until that time.

Haywood, 21, an Olympic star in 1968, was signed as a financial hardship case by Denver of the American Basketball Association after his first year at the University of Detroit.

Given a reported $1.9-million pact covering six years after his first season at Denver, Haywood wasn't happy and last Dec. 28 signed with Seattle although a majority of NBA clubs objected.

Attorney William Shea, opposing the issuance of the injunction, said it could tear down what had taken the league 25 years to build and it was evident the NBA felt its draft and other rules would be in jeopardy.

Although baseball has a separate antitrust law in its behalf, basketball and football do not.

BOSTON (AP) — Hugh Foley, a 1964 Olympic gold medal winner as a member of the victorious Vesper Boat Club eightoared crew, is the new head crew coach at Boston College.

Williams Returns To Jacksonville

Joe Williams, author of Jacksonville University's Cinderella success in college basketball, goes back tonight to the scene of many of his triumphs a year ago.

It's not likely, however, that it will be a triumphant return.

Williams left Jacksonville at the end of last season—after coaching the Dolphins to a 27-2 campaign and the runnerup spot in the NCAA championships.

He took over at Furman, his alma mater, and the Southern Conference Paladins play Jacksonville tonight on the Florida team's homecourt.

"I know what kind of club they have, "Williams says of the 1970-71 Dolphins, 10-2, currently ranked sixth in The Associated Press poll and now coached by Tom Wasdin, Williams' assistant last year.

The Dolphins under Williams were a free-wheeling high-scoring outfit but Wasdin expects Williams' Furman team, 7-5, "will probably play very conservatively on offense with a real good pressure defense and force us into a lot of errors.

Williams is leaving two starters, 6-foot-6 Lisco Thomas, and 6-1 Jerry Hartin at home because he says he's afraid for them to miss any time from classes.

With many schools taking breaks for midterm exams, the college basketball schedule for most of the week is light. No ranked teams were in action Tuesday night and No. 4 Penn is the only other Top Ten quintet in action tonight. The Quakers play Temple, which knocked Fordham from the unbeaten ranks last Saturday.

"Temple will be tougher the second time around," says Penn Coach Dick Harter, who's seeking his 32nd straight regular season triumph. The Quakers beat the Owls in December for the Quaker City Tourney championship.

The Owls, 5-8, have lost only to nationally ranked South Carolina in their last four starts. Coach Harry Litvak says, "his team is now playing up to our potential." If we can control the boards a little better than the first game with Penn, we'll be all right." The Quakers had a 59-36 rebounding edge in the Quaker City title game.

In Tuesday night's limited action, Texas Christian, with 6-6 Eugene Kennedy getting 23 points and 24 rebounds, upset Texas Tech, preseason favorite in the Southwest Conference, 85-71. It was TCU's opening conference game but the second SWC contest for the Red Raiders.

Also in the SWC, it was Baylor 108, Texas A&M 83, and Rice 78, SMU 67.

Elsewhere, Davidson staved off a late East Carolina rally to beat the Pirates 60-52 and take over undisputed control of first place in the Southern Conference. East Carolina had been tied with the Wildcats for first.

Oklahoma City ripped Centenary, La., 73-70, North Texas shaded Oklahoma Christian 8079, Wisconsin won its first Big Ten contest, beating Northwestern 87-72; and Harvard downed Dartmouth 81-75.

All-Star Theme for Monday's ABA Game

There'll be an all-star theme for Monday night's American Basketball Association game between the Carolina Cougars and Memphis Pros at the Sikeston Public School Field House.

Four players who will have participated in Saturday's nationally telecast ABA All-Star game will be competing in the 8 o'clock fray.

In addition, a preliminary game will be staged at 7 o'clock. It will match an all-star team from the Sikeston Church League against an all-star cast of Church League coaches.

Tickets for the doubleheader are on sale in the principal's office at Sikeston High School. Prices are $4 for adults and $2 for students 18 and under.

Joe Caldwell, a six-year pro veteran who spent two years with the St. Louis Hawks and two more after the team moved to Atlanta, will represent the Carolina Cougars in this Saturday's ABA All-Star classic at Greensboro, N.C. The 6-5 forward from Arizona State is currently leading the Cougars in scoring with a 22.5 average.

Memphis will have three players appearing in the All-Star game. They are guards Steve Jones and James Jones and forward Wendell Ladner. Steve Jones, 6-5 three year veteran from Oregon, is the Pros' leading scorer with a 19.2 average. Jimmy Jones, 6-4, Grambling, is averaging 17.8 and will be appearing in his fourth consecutive All-Star game. Ladner, a 6-5 rookie from Southern Mississippi, is scoring at a 15.6 clip and ranks 10th in rebounding.

Caldwell is one of three Carolina players who have had NBA experience with the Atlanta Hawks. The other two are Dave Newmark, 7-1 center from Columbia, and George Lehman, 6-3 guard from Wake Forest.

Death Cause Listed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sonny Liston's death was caused by congestion in the pulmonary artery, which transports blood from the heart to the lungs, the coroner says.

Dr. Mark Herman, in a report two weeks after the former world heavyweight boxing champion's body was found in his Las Vegas home, said Tuesday traces of morphine and codeine were found in Liston's body tissues.

The coroner added that there was no evidence to link the two substances with the pulmonary congestion.

Liston's body was found Jan. 5 by his wife Geraldine. The coroner said he may have been dead one week.

Narcotics officers said they found a quarter of an ounce of heroin in the kitchen and half an ounce of marijuana in Liston's trousers.

No evidence was found that Liston had taken heroin before he died, Herman said. But morphine and codeine are formed during metabolism of heroin in the body, and Herman said the two substances found in Liston's tissues were present in proportions to suggest they came from heroin.

Lions End Five Year Streak

SENATH--The Senath-Hornersville Lions have roared to eight wins out of their last nine games, and Tuesday night coach Jim Isbell SHHS cagers added their first win over the Kennett Indians in five years with a 51=37 victory.

Senath-Hornersville now hold a 11-4 mark for the season, while Kennett dropped into a 6-5 position with the loss.

The Lion's defense proved too tough for the Kennett Tribe last night, as they shut off the Indian's scoring attack. Kennett picked up only three field goals in the first half, while Senath-Hornersville rolled to a 24-13 half time lead.

Herman Brown, the Lions six-four sophomore, added the lone double figure mark for the evening with 10, and kept the boards clean for the Lions.

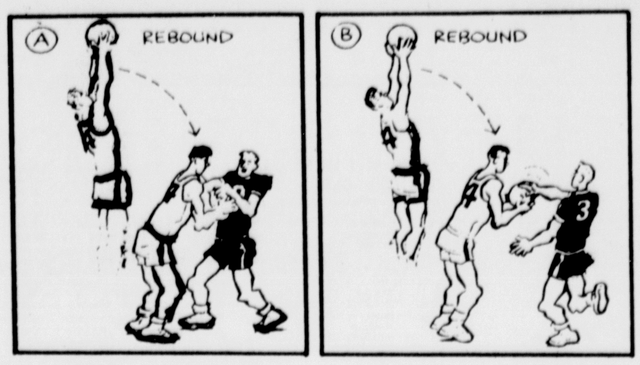
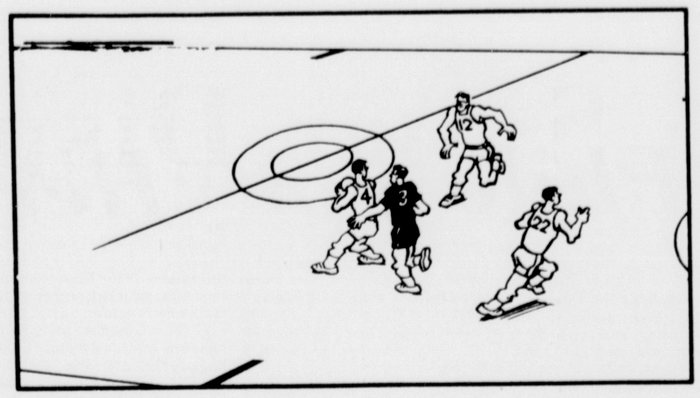
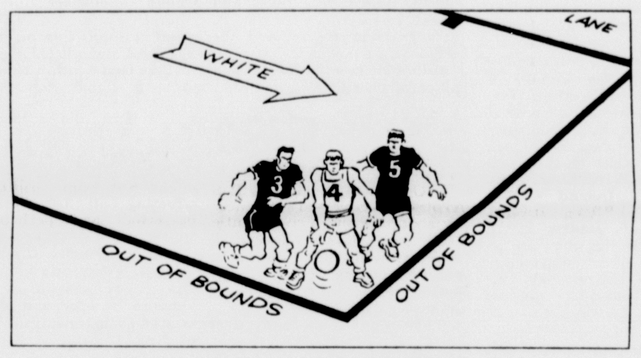
BASKETBALL RULES
Simplified and Illustrated



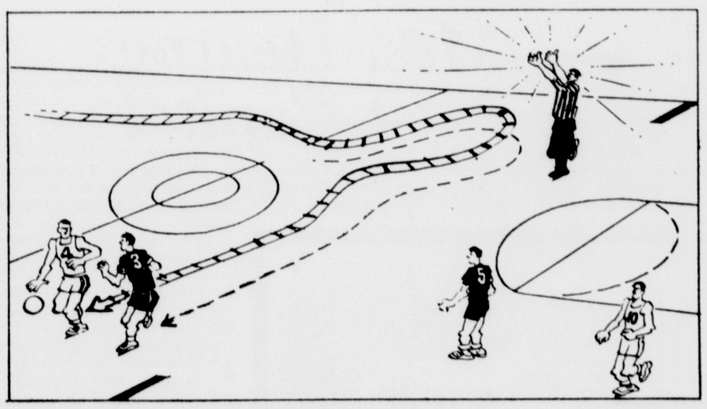
A is a good example of a held ball. A held ball occurs when two players, each having a firm hold on the ball, neither of whom can obtain possession without undue roughness. Merely touching the ball as in B does not constitute a held ball. Make certain that a held ball occurs before it is called.



A held ball will be called any time that a closely guarded player holds and/or dribbles the ball in his front court for 5 seconds.



After 5 seconds a held ball will be called.



Any time a player in his mid-court area has control of the ball for five (5) seconds and is closely guarded for that five (5) seconds a held ball occurs.

FIRE HOUSE TROUBLES

EVERGREEN, Colo. (AP) — Most fire departments can go month in month out with nothing happening to their equipment. But in this mountain town the pump on the pumper truck exploded and a week later another truck was stolen from in front of the fire house.

Marital Bonds Outweigh Odds Over 81 Years

Commercial Appeal

MACON, MO., JAN 16. — (PI) — Ward and Anne McDaniel will observe their 81st wedding anniversary Thursday, with no special celebration to mark their triumph over odds of more than 34 million to one.

He is 102; she is 101.

"There have been so many anniversaries," said their son, Cyril, "that they'd rather just spend a quiet day at home with each other."

It will be their last anniversiary in the little bungalow where they live alone despite family protests.

"I've finally persuaded them to come live with me and my wife in an apartment I'm building for them in our house in Columbia," their son said. At 70, he still works "most every day as a surveyor."

"But they really get along pretty well," he said. "Dad's sight is poor and mother is deaf, but he's her ears and she's his eyes and they get along.

"Mother still does practically all her own house work. And she reads a lot. Dad goes for a walk if the weather is decent.

The McDaniels, who grew up at Winterset, Iowa, and came to Northern Missouri in 1920, have outlived three of their five children. Their other son, Reuben, lives in Seattle, Wash.

The Census Bureau says odds agains both a husband and wife surviving to celebrate their 81st wedding anniversary are 34.4 million to one.

TOGETHER — Ward and Anne McDaniel of Macon, Mo., will celebrate their wedding anniversary Thursday — their 81st. He is 102 and she is 101. They have lived in Missouri since 1920 and have outlived three of their five children.

INSTANT RUNDOWN

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard has a new computer that gives an instant rundown on a suspect's criminal record with personal details — right down to the cigarettes he smokes.

A policeman on the beat can ask questions about a suspect by using his pocket radio and give within seconds full details.

"Apart from a man's criminal record we have details about the kind of clothes he wears, the cigarettes he smokes, the type of car he uses, the women in his life, the pubs he frequents, and what he drinks," a yard spokesman explained.

To cut down on air pollution five downtown areas in Tokyo have been converted into holiday malls on Sundays.

Livable Philosophy Here

Dear Ann Landers: Occasionally you print messages of value from other sources. Here is a bit of livable philosophy which I have found most helpful. If you feel it has merit, please print it.

Take time to think -- thoughts are the source of power.

Take time to play -- play is the secret of perpetual youth.

Take time to read -- reading is the fountain of wisdom.

Take time to pray -- prayer can be a rock of strength in time of trouble.

Take time to love -- loving is what makes living worthwhile

Take time to be friendly -- friendships give life a delicious flavor.

Take time to laugh -- laughter is the music of the soul.

Take time to give -- any day of the year is too short for selfishness.

Take time to do your work well -- pride in your work, no matter what it is, nourishes the ego and the spirit.

Take time to show appreciation -- thanks is the frosting on the cake of life. ----A Faithful Ann Fan

Dear Fan: Beautiful! On behalf of my readers, I thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: I lived with my married daughter for 20 years. Her children were like my own. I raised them. I didn't plan it -- it just happened. My daughter was glad to have the "help," and the way it turned out I was the one who did all the things for the kids that a mother usually does. I did the feeding, bathing, dressing, settling of differences, and putting to bed. I am out of my daughter's home now but the kids still love me and treat me as if I were their mother. My daughter resents this. She told me a few months ago that I intentionally stole their affection. She says I now must stay out of their lives because it's time they learned SHE is their mother. I'm so hurt, Ann, I don't know what to do. Of course I shall respect my daughter's wishes but it is killing me. When the kids want to come to my place I have to make up excuses. (I never get invited to their home.) Please tell me if there is anything I can do. You can use my name if you wish. I have nothing to lose. I've already lost everything. ---Sad Gran

Dear S.: Your daughter can set up rules and regulations but she can't change your grandchildren's feelings about you. Love is not transfereable. If you raised the kids they are as good as yours. I hope your daughter sees this column and reconsiders, for the children's sake as well as for yours.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an unmarried woman of 38 and have always enjoyed good health. I recently read that unmarried women are more susceptible to breast cancer than women who are married. Is this true? I have always believed just the opposite. Please inform me. ---Portland

Dear Port: Recently 30,000 nuns over 39 years of age were studied. The results showed that the nuns had a higher incidence of breast cancer than married women of the same age group.

These findings give added credence to the warning of the American Cancer Society that ALL women should have a physical checkup annually Learning how to perform breast self-examiniation every month can be a lifesaver. Your local chapter of the American Cancer Society offers free instruction booklets. I suggest that you write for one at once.

THE GOVERNOR'S WIFE, Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes examines a copy of Wealth of Nations on the Sheraton Secretary Desk in the Governor's Office of the First State Capitol in St. Charles.

Mrs. Hearnes First Capitol

Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes recently toured the restored First Missouri State Capitol in St. Charles and noted the beauty of the buildings is a "fitting reminder of Missouri's historic spirit."

The 1971 Sesquicentennial year "spirit" will be honored in ceremonies at the First State Capitol dedication and opening to be held at the site on February 5.

Joseph Jaeger, Jr., Director of the Missouri State Park Board, the agency responsible for the ten-year restoration program, commented, he is "pleased withthe outcome of the long and difficult restoration" and hopes "the citizens of Missouri will attend the dedication and take pride in the restored First State Capitol and Missouri's 150 years of growth."

An 1820 Journal notes that the citizens of St. Charles promised to provide rooms for both branches of the General Assembly and its Committees without charge if a temporary seat of government was established there.

Mrs. Hearnes commented, "the people of St. Charles have certainly not changed - even in 150 years. They were successful in soliciting restoration funds of the First State Capitol for our State's Sesquicentennial Year just as they were in attracting the Capitol, 150 years ago."

Mrs. Hearnes was particularly interested in the restoration of Governor's Office with its massive press lock and elegant nineteenth century furnishings.

The First Missouri Capitol Buildings were purchased by the late Governor James T. Blair in January, 1961. The Capitol Building is composed of three connected brick structures built about 1819. After extensive archaeological investigations, it was determined that the Senate and House Chambers, Governor's Office, and the Committee Room were located in four separate rooms on the second floor.

The building has been furnished with authentic antiques of the 1821-1826 period when it housed the seat of government.

Governor Hearnes will formerly dedicate the building in ceremonies on February 5.

Seniority Foes Try New Tactic

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strategists in the attack on the congressional seniority system put a new tactic into effect Monday with the opening of a bipartisan, unofficial hearing on Senate reform.

Under the auspices of Republican Sen. Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland and Oklahoma Democratic Sen. Fred R. Harris, the two days of hearings started with a plea that committee chairmen be selected democratically, not on the basis of length of service.

"The time has come to modify a long-established custom of this great body—the so-called seniority system," said John Gardner, chairman of the citizens' lobby Common Cause, in prepared testimony.

Gardner, repeating views he has publicized in past weeks, said "dictatorial power" of committee chairmen was symptomatic of the failure in accountability and responsiveness of many contemporary American institutions.

"If some committee chairmen conduct themselves with unexampled arrogance it is because there is no mechanism by which their fellow party members can call them to account," he said.

Gardner urged the Senate to reorganize during the opening days of the 92nd Congress so committee members nominate their own chairmen.

But before a chairman could be installed under Gardner's plan, the majority party conference would have to approve the committee members' nomination in a recorded vote every two years.

Gardner said the chances were good committee members with the greatest length of congressional service would still get the chairmanships.

"But occasionally good reasons such as the infirmities of age or misconduct in office, will lead the majority party caucus to reject the senior member," Gardner said.

Mathias and Fred R. Harris acted independently in calling the hearings to rouse support for reform. Their panel has no official sanction or legislative authority.

Both Mathias and Harris have supported Gardner's proposal in the past, but the Senate last year rejected it and other suggestions of eliminating or modifying the seniority system by margins of about 2 to 1.

Mathias, in a statement opening the hearings, said he fears "the seniority system as it currently exists in the Senate is dangerously close to creating a crisis of confidence."

"Refinement or elimination of the seniority system is a prerequisite for the intelligent innovations and orderly change that the legislative branch requires in order to continue to maintain its position of responsibility to the people," he said.

ANIMATION lends itself to humor particularly well. Once you've mastered the technique, you are limited only by the extent of your own imagination.

Animated Movies Chase Boredom in Winter

ROCHESTER, N.Y.–As the line after each portion has been added. Simple line-drawings, graphs, charts and arrows also can be animated by using this simple animation technique.

You will delight the younger members of the family when you show them how everyday items, such as a piece of bread or a box of cereal or even their own favorite toys, can move by themselves in a movie. The secret, of course, is in the single framing. Between each frame, the object is moved slightly until the desired movement is completed in a number of tiny steps. If the steps are smaller at the beginning and end of a movement, the action will look smooth and natural on the screen. The turn of a cereal box is a good example.

To position the box for the turning maneuver, punch a hole in the bottom of the box and then place the box with the punched hole over an upright nail affixed to the support for the box. Now the box can be turned easily on this reliable pivot point. Start your filming by taking a number of frames before moving the box. Make a light pencil mark at the rear of the box, on the surface at the corner that will be moving away from the camera on the turn. To begin the movement from this starting point, turn the box about 1/16-inch and make an exposure. Now, move the box about 1/8-inch, and make an exposure; then 3/16 inch, and another exposure. From this point on, the moves should be 1/4-inch until the box is 3/8-inch from its final stopping point. For a smooth finish, you gradually decrease the size of the moves– 3/16-inch, 1/8-inch, 1/16-inch–until the maneuver is complete. Finally, shoot several frames of the rear of the box.

Century Plant

The name century plant for the agave came from the mistaken idea that the American century plant blooms only once in 100 years. Some kinds flower every year and others at longer periods, but none blooms so rarely as once in a century.

Former Pueblo Crewman Will Speak at Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF–Lee R. Hayes, former Pueblo crewman who spent 11 months in North Korean prisons, will describe his experience in a public speech at the junior high school gym, on January 22, at 8 p.m.

From his position as chief radioman aboard ship, Hayes speaks with authority about the events immediately prior to the Pueblo's capture.

Tickets to hear Hayes can be obtained in advance by contacting Mrs. Harry Bock, 748-5120, in New Madrid.

Frankly Speaking

ADJUSTING TO THE NEW FARM PROGRAMS

Sign-up time for the new Administration farm programs begins March 1. Already, however, Missouri farmers are asking their local ASC offices and their Committee members for the details of the new program on which to base their crop plans.

Predictably, some rough spots in the transition from the 1965 program to the 1971 program have begun to appear. Three important ones have already come to light concerning set-aside, 25-acre farms and ACP.

Set-Aside

To be eligible for inclusion in a farmer's set-aside, a particular acre must have been harvested within the last three years. Land diverted for three years or more under the previous program would not be eligible.

For many Missouri farmers, this may mean plowing up sod land and planting crops on it. It will also mean trying to establish sod on land plowed last fall in anticipation of planting crops, if erosion is to be avoided. Some of this crop land has already been treated with weed-killers which will make it difficult to grow grass on it for a year or two.

I have been working with the Department of Agriculture in hopes of at least postponing the effective date of this part of the program for a year so that farmers will have an opportunity to adjust their long-range crop plans. I am hopeful that an accommodation can be reached before sign-up time.

25-Acre Farms

Under the old law, farms with a base-acreage of 25 acres or less could be diverted in entirety, and owners would still receive a payment of about $1,000 for their participation in the program.

Under the new program, these farms will have to be plowed up and planted like any others if payments under the program are to be received.

There are around 50,000 Missouri farms which fall into the 25-acre-or-less category. Some of those can probably be rented out and thereby farmed. Others may provide a sufficient income if used for pasture. There are bound to be some serious dislocations, however, particularly among the retired farmers who have sold their machinery and ceased growing farming even if they wish to do so.

ACP

The Department of Agriculture announced last week the replacement of the popular Agriculture Conservation Program (ACP) with a new Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) for 1971.

The Department of Agriculture states that REAP, like ACP, will permit the federal government to share costs of various beneficial conservation practices with farmers. But early indications are that new emphasis will be placed on pollution abatement, soil and water conservation, and recreation and wildlife development which will go beyond usual farm activities. The Department states that "practices that are good farming techniques that should be performed routinely and practices that are income-producing to the farmer will be de-emphasized in favor of those having benefits for all citizens."

REAP will be administered locally by Committeemen who will allocate state funds and specify their use according to federal guidelines.

The ACP has been, in my view, an excellent program, and I have consistently supported it. In 1970, the Administration requested no funds for ACP, but Congress appropriated $190.5 million. Presumably, the Administration will fully explain its intentions with REAP in the near future.

I voted against the new farm program last year because I felt it put too much arbitrary authority in the hands of the Department of Agriculture. But this program is now law. We who represent farm states, the farmers themselves, and the Administration have a mutual interest in making it work fairly. With give and take on all sides, I hope the program can be adjusted to be both workable and fair.

Corner On Questions

By PASTOR DON WILSON

QUESTION: WHERE ARE YOU STANDING?

ANSWER: Youth cries, "milktoast" to its peers, and "hypocrite" to its elders. Perhaps this generation does talk out of two sides of its mouth simultaneously. Man is often untrustworthy. To determine what he is, compare man's works with his words. Possibly your claims may contradict your position. These introspective characterizations should inspire serious self-analysis.

Scripture teaches: "Judas also betrayed Him, STOOD with them," Judas stood OUTSIDE Gethsemane with the Romans, when He should have stood INSIDE with Jesus. Although he professed Christianity, Judas actually preferred the soldiers to the Saviour, having more confidence in government than God.

Like Judas many implant the kiss of betrayal on Jesus. Humanity today is bowed to government instead of God. Man claims faith in God, but greed for security prompts the insanity that government loves him more than God, and that Washington has more resources than Heaven; therefore, men depend upon the mailman rather than prayer.

To believe you can "get something for nothing" is to deny Christ. As pure water cannot be derived from an impure source, neither can Washingtonians give anything without first confiscating it, and then appropriating personal advantage from it. Jesus said: "All of our righteousness are as filthy rags." "Ye must be born-again." When Washingtonians control the purse, they often play God with the receipts of their "pork barrel." Thus, God-given free-will is surrendered. To accept what you have not earned is, generally speaking, anti-Christ. Christ taught: "If any would not work, neither should he eat."

Salvation alone may be received without human effort. The Bible teaches "By grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God; Not of works, lest any man should boast." You may freely repent and receive Christ. Where do you stand?

A Classic Revived
RAMONA
By Helen Hunt Jackson
(Avon N301/95¢/352pp.)

RAMONA is one of the romantic classics of Americana from the latter part of the nineteenth century. First published in 1884, RAMONA has gone through 135 printings, been made into a movie three times, and been presented on the stage. Now Avon brings this classic back again for the enjoyment of another generation of readers.

Set among the Mission Indians of Southern California, RAMONA is the story of a spirited girl's love for a handsome Indian, a love that defies the custom of her people and drives her from place to place.

A diplomat is a man who compliments his wife on last year's coat. A magician is one who makes her believe it.

POLLY'S POINTERS
She Makes Nice Afghan From Upholstery Samples

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—My Pointer is particularly for the reader who had a lot of upholstery samples she wanted to use. I cannot knit but wanted an afghan. I had a lot of corduroy pieces that I cut into six-inch squares, sewed them together until I had the desired size and backed it all with a piece of cotton in a solid color. I zigzag-stitched over every other seam. If larger squares were used they could be stitched through the center instead of over the seams. I have made several of these gifts and matching pillows.—MRS. J. H.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I wish someone would please tell me how to melt soap. I have many small pieces I would like to melt to make large bars. A double-boiler does not work as someone suggested to me. Also, does the soap have to be cut into very small pieces?—ARTHUR

DEAR POLLY—Now that blinds are the "in" thing for the windows many of us are applying flowers or other appliques cut from drapery fabric to them. I paint the reverse s. of the material where it is to be cut with colorless nail polish and this keeps the edges from raveling, saves a lot of sewing and makes a neater finish—EVE.

DEAR GIRLS—Try this on a sample of the fabric first to see the effect of the polish. Even if it shows through a bit and forms a shadowy line around the design it may be preferable to a raveling edge.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—We keep a piece of nylon net in our bathroom and find it quickly removes the ring in either the washbasin or the tub without any abrasive action. —MRS. S. K.

DEAR POLLY—I use a pastry brush AND a small plastic bottle full of oil to grease the top of freshly baked bread and small pans, such as muffin tins. This way I always get the right amount and never have any waste.—MRS. S. P.

An Open Letter About Route 60

Dear Mr. Shaw:

Something must be done soon about the leevee section of Highway 60 in Mississippi Couty.

Last week an Indiana man, father of four children, was killed at Nally's corner.

The week before that five autos were involved in a series of collisions at the Birds Point turnoff. Luckily, no one was injured.

During the week of December 10 a Kenotucky man was killed in a collision at the point where the levee road heads toward Wyatt and Highway 60 drop off the levee.

That same week, a driver was injured when his car failed to negotiate the sharp curve at Bird's Point.

The week of November 9 a Kentucky woman was killed at the Bird's Point curve, and two person were injured in the same collision.

We could go on and on, but it is sufficient to take this one two-month period and point out that three persons have been killed, at least three others injured, and there has been substantial damage to property along this one lethal six-mile stretch of highway.

During your appearance at the Charleston Chamber of Commerce meeting in December you stated that nothing in the way of major changes were contemplated on the levee section of Highway 60, because of the imminent construction of Interestate 57, which will siphon off much of the traffic from the old road.

We cannot find too much fault with this reasoning, Mr. Shaw. Obviously it would not be smart to undertake a major relocation project on Highway 60, when within four or five years a new superhighway will take its place.

But surely there are some less expensive measures which could be taken to make Highway 60 along the levee less hazardous.

We had occansion to hit the levee road at dusk Sunday -- a misty foggy, miserable day. And we think we can see why so many accidents happen on the levee road.

The painted lines on the roadway are hardly visible, and give very little help to the driver trying to steer his car through the mist. There are no signs warning the out-of-state traveler that he is driving on a hazardous section of highway. There is nothing to indicate to the man-in-a-hurry that if he will be patient for six miles he will come to a level, straight road where passing that truck will be relatively safe.

We can recall a time two or three years ago when shoulder work on the levee section made travel on the road even more unsafe than usual. The Highway Department's grudging response was to erect a very small "soft shoulders" sign on each end of the levee road. The accidents continued.

Mr. Shaw, such measures are plainly inadequate on this killer section of highway.

We would recommend, as a bare minimum, that the following steps be undertaken:

First, that your Department survey the highway and re-paint the striping where necessary;

Second, that reflectorized guide markers be placed along the entire length of the road to indicate to the unfamiliar motorist that the road has the curves of a snake. We guarantee that such markers would have been useful last Sunday afternoon. At the very least these guides should be erected on the major corners or curves --the bridge, Bird's Point, Nally's and near Wyatt.

Third, that large signs, in whatever quantity are necessary, be erected at each end of the levee road, advising motorists that they are approaching an extremely dangersous section of highway, that passing and high speeds are extremely dangerous , and that patience is recommended for the next few miles.

Such signs have been erected on Highway 61 near Fruitland and, we presume, have had some effect in diminshing the impatience of drivers trapped behind trucks on the "no-passing" sections of that roadway.

These measures should not be very expensive--at least not when measured against the heartbreak and pain of highway death and injury.

We invite your comments, Mr. Shaw, on what measures you think are feasible. We do not see how you can disagree that something MUST be done about Highway 60-before it claims additional lives.

KEEPING 'EM ON THE FARM

THE RURAL LIFE has always held special appeal for Americans. Thomas Jefferson, who envisioned a nation of small, independent farmers, went so far as to say that "Those who labor in the earth are the chosen people of God..., whose breasts He has made His peculiar deposit for substantial and genuine virtue."

Then why are rural areas continuing to lose population to polluted, over-crowded cities? Part of the answer may be inferred from a remark made in 1967 by former Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman. Millions of Americans, Freeman said, would "gladly live in a small town or open country community if there were jobs around, basic services and good schools for the kids."

Both major parties are on record as favoring improvement of employment and educational opportunities in rural areas. In his 1970 State of the Union message, President Nixon declared that "We must create a new rural environment which will not only stem the migration to urban centers but reverse it." Nixon reportedly hopes to announce a rural development plan in 1971. The aim of the plan, according to the Wall Street Journal, would be to "redirect present aid programs--for housing, water, sewerage, hospitals, roads, airports--to rural growth centers that could attract industry."

ACTUALLY, industry already has been attracted to the Farm Belt. In 1970 alone, 23 new manufacturing plants opened in Iowa, 41 in South Dakota, 48 in North Dakota, 50 in Nebraska, 107 in Kansas and 311 in Minnesota. Industrialists have found that people raised on farms are willing to work long hours at wages substantially below those prevailing in the East. An added bonus is that workers drawn from the farm have displayed little interest in joining unions.

The availability of nearby factory jobs has enabled thousands of persons to hold onto uneconomic farms that they might otherwise be forced to sell. Earl Brugger, employed by the Monroe Auto Equipment Co. in Cozad, Neb., recently told a reporter: "I just couldn't make it any more with the land I had. Now I can come in here and put in a nine-hour day on the machine. Then I can go home on the weekends or before dark and can work the 80 acres we've still got."

City dwellers have a stake in rural development, too. The 1967 report of the National Advisory Committee on Rural Poverty, concluded that the urban riots of that year stemmed in large part from rural poverty because a high percentage of the people crowded into city slums had migrated there from rural slums.

MEANWHILE, farmers continue to complain of soaring costs and inadequate income. Livestock breeders have seen cattle prices drop by around $4 a hundred-weight, and hog prices by around $10 a hundredweight, since midsummer. A group of hog farmers from North Carolina and Virginia demonstrated briefly on Jan. 9 outside the White House.

The Farm Journal predicts that hog prices will remain depressed for most of 1971. On the other hand, the magazine believes that aggregate farm income from all sources should increase by about $1.75 billion this year, more than offsetting the projected $1.5 billion increase in costs.

The number of farms in operation, however, will continue to decline. There are about 3.1 million farms in the country today--less than half as many as in 1925. Some agricultural experts believe that only 500,000 farms ultimately will be needed to feed the nation. Thomas Jefferson would be dismayed.

'Total Freedom' Ism Still Rampant

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)

It is now a little more than two years since the traumatic events of 1968 tore gaping holes in the fabric of American society. The year 1971, the eve of another great presidential test, may show how much real reweaving—if any—has been accomplished.

My own recent extensive inquiries around the country disclose that in the large realm of public affairs there is a great wish to avoid new traumas. Few public figures except those at the extremes have the stomach for bitter new battles on the 1968 scale.

Yet this clearly altered mood so far is reflected, at the action level, only by the merest patchwork. Despite strong urgings from such thoughtful men as John Gardner, the reweaving has not begun.

A distressing new survey reports that a fair proportion of losing candidates in races for public office promptly lose their faith in the elective process.

This reaction sounds like the widely expressed response of disillusioned young folk in 1968 who declared that losing the candidate of their choice was proof that "democracy does not work."

While a new realism is reported to be developing on many campuses, it is also true that despair—a feeling that "nothing can be done"—grips many students in fabled centers of ferment like Harvard. They have run the gamut from excited, if brief, participation in political campaigns through demonstrations, disruptions and confrontations to occasional bursts of violence. These have proved "unproductive." They have not, overnight, ended war, poverty, racism, injustice.

These young, and many sympathetic elders, make much of commitment to ideals, principles, moral precepts. It is good for a society to be reminded constantly of these things, and that is a special function of the young.

But a black mark against this society in recent years has been a diminishing commitment by many young and adult Americans to the democratic process.

More than a few times in recent months I have heard individual conscience described as an "authority" supreme over all law. It is not unfair to translate this to mean that the advocates of this doctrine believe the United States should be run by 205 million separate "authorities." Taken to its logical limit, the doctrine destroys the rule of law and leaves us stripped naked before the whim (conscience) of men.

Every man is a king, doing his own thing with royal abandon. But a society with 205 million kings is a jungle existence which even the dumbest animals reject.

The exalters of individual conscience strive pathetically to garb themselves in the robes of nobility. What could sound lovelier and more humane than devotion to "total freedom"?

The trouble is there is no such thing. Freedom dies when 205 million arbiters are deciding what rules to obey and what is right for themselves—and society.

Pemiscot Voices School Need

CARUTHERSVILLE--A vital step in improving quality of industrial workers and tradesman in Pemiscot County would be a county- wide vocational school, industrialists here believe.

NOT FOR FILING. This is one item which shouldn't be filed even though it's been left on the shelf.

There is need for vocational training in Pemiscot County. The general consensus among employers and Caruthersville officials is, if vocational training were available for young persons, the out-migration would be reduced and more qualified workers may find opportunity here, rather than elsewhere.

Mayor Bill Inman said he has been in contact with a county school official who wants to convert a plant building into a vocational training school. Although the project is strictly in the planning stage, Mayor Inman stressed, "We do not need a dumping ground for high school students who do not want to work. We need people who have the want."

He added this should not be a Caruthersville task but an effort to be undertaken by Pemiscot County. "We must work together as a team," the mayor declared.

County industrialists say work absenteeism is particularly high among young people. "many young people work three days and then quit," said one Caruthersville plant manager. Another said he felt the Food Stamp Program has slightly contributed to absenteeism. When some employes get on the program, their amount of work slacken," he said.

Food stamp receipients, who are employed, feel if wagers were higher employes would not qualify for the Food Stamp Program to begin with. Employers feel if they had more qualified personnel, wages probably would increase.

Caruthersville officials and managers of plants said the need for vocational training would be given priority consideration in an attempt to solve some of the problems in the Bootheel county.

FOOD WASTE DISPOSER IS BIG BOON IN WINTER

For many families, winter means a smelly garbage can in the basement or braving the cold to carry the garbage outdoors. This problem is cut to a minimum for families with food waste disposers, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau points out. The compact appliance is installed beneath the kitchen sink, connected to the waste line. To use, the homemaker puts the garbage down the drain, turns on the cold water and flicks an electric switch on the wall.

Resurrection Flower

According to Christian legend, the resurrection flower sprung up wherever the Holy Family rested in their flight into Egypt. It is fabled to have blossomed at the Savior's birth, closed at the Crucifixion and opened again at Easter, whence its name of Resurrection Flower.

Army Adopts Shape Up or Ship out Policy

FT. DIX, N.J. (AP) — The Army has instituted a tough, new policy under which GIs from privates to noncoms must earn their stripes within certain periods of time or be mustered out of service, Maj. Gen. Howard H. Cooksey said today.

Cooksey, commander of this sprawling Army post, said the policy applies throughout the Army.

He said it is part of the gradual move toward an all-volunteer Army and is designed to avoid stagnation and apathy among enlisted men by eliminating promotion bottlenecks and freeing the ranks of "dead wood."

Under the policy, Cooksey said, enlisted men would have three years to progress from private to private first class, 12 years to sergeant and a maximum of 30 years to rise to sergeant major, the Army's highest enlisted rank.

Lt. Col. Paul A. Teehan, post information officer, said the policy sets only the "maximum" periods during which men must earn their stripes. For example, a private may progress to private first class in less than a year even though he has a maximum of three years to do so.

However, Teehan said, the policy also applies to men who are demoted. For example, a GI who makes corporal in four years but is busted to private first class must regain his stripe in four years or be discharged. Normally, he would have five years to rise from private first class to corporal—or a total of eight years in the Army.

Cooksey said the policy, which has been in effect about a month, is similar to one that has existed for officers for years.

Teehan said the Army has had problems with certain specialty groups, such as cooks, where a GI would make a certain rank, specialist 4 for example, and then remain in that slot and display no ambition for a promotion.

He said that under the new policy, that same GI would have to "push for another stripe or get out of the service after a certain period of time." He said this would enable other GIs to be promoted into the specialist 4's slot but would not necessarily reduce the size of the Army, "only make it more efficient."

Hearing on State Welfare Continues

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Missouri can't give welfare aid to applicants in less than 30 or 60 days as the federal government requires, officials have said.

A federal hearing was scheduled to resume today as the government seeks to determine whether Missouri qualifies for $157.5 million in federal funds for five welfare progress.

The programs are Old Age Assistance, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Aid to the Blind, Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled, and Medicaid.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced Monday it would cut off some welfare aid to Indiana and Nebraska where similar hearings have been held.

The Missouri Legislature, which has cut welfare appropriations, would have to face the task of supporting all of the welfare programs if federal aid is withdrawn.

A St. Louis minister, the Rev. Buck Jones, testified Monday as spokesman for about 35 St. Louisans who came by bus to press for more action by the state.

"I came here to obtain dignity and justice for people so they can live like human beings," Jones said. "I came here to object to the federal government about the Missouri welfare system."

He said families that were forced to wait more than 30 days for welfare checks were hungry and cold in the St. Louis ghetto area where he is urban minister of the United Church of Christ.

"Mothers are forced to live in houses that are suitable for rats and roaches only," Jones said. "In winter they are forced to live in houses that provide little protection from the elements. Their children are ashamed to go to school because they have no shoes or clothing."

Jones' statements were a heated response to Elmore C. Crowe, chief counsel of the Missouri Division of Welfare, who asked him if he was trying "to deprive Missouri of $157 million."

Jones is director of Operation Live, a third party in the hearing.

Members of the National Welfare Rights Organization and the St. Louis group applauded him.

Recycling New Key Word in Technology

By The Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — Recycling is the new key word in the developing technology of environmental protection. Recycling is an extension of the concept of using materials again and again instead of instantly discarding them and adding to the nation's growing waste and pollution.

The salvaging of wastes for re-use has long been put forth as one way of recovering some of the billions of dollars that must be spent over the next few years to clean up the environment. But re- use has not caught on very much in the United States for the simple reason that it is often more expensive to salvage, sort, clean, transport, and process discarded materials than it is to gather fresh materials from traditional sources. It has been estimated that only 45 per cent of the iron and steel, 42 per cent of the copper, 25 per cent of the zinc, 21 per cent of the paper , and 13 per cent oof the rubber is recovered and used again in American production.

Both the environment and industry would benefit from a technology that provided more feasible methods of reclaiming valued elements in wastes. But there are many hurdles between the city dump and the industrial stockpile. What is needed most, many environmentalists say, is a total new approach to nature, specifically to the finite resources of the earth, including its natural waste bins: the earth, air, and water.

Recycling would meet both the practical and romantic aspects of this approach. It would provide industries and municipalities with cost - cutting, material - saving procedures while conveying a respect for natural law. Recycling would involve not merely the piecemeal salvage of this or that waste product, but an adaptation of nature's own cycle of use and re-use. Nothing of value would be wasted as it passed through various stages of the cycle.

As expressed by Kenneth E. Bould ng, professor of economics at the University of Colorado, in the BULLETIN OF THE ATOMIC SCIENTISTS, "the great unsolved problem of technology is that of creating what is being called a 'looped economy' in which man finds a comfortable life in the middle of the process which is essentially circular, that is, in which the waste products of human activity are all used as raw materials for the next cycle of production ...." Ultimately, he said, what we take from the atmosphere, the oceans and the soil must also be put back into them.

Large -scale technology for this purpose is still in the future, but some halting steps have been taken. Huge cooling towers being built for some new industrial plants represent a practical application of the closed - loop principle. The towers permit use again and again of the same water. Hence, no heated waste water is dumped into lakes and streams, with its damaging effects on marine life.

The diversion of sewage sludge to nourish farmland is in harmony with the recycling principle. The Federal Water Quality Administration has committed $2 million for a project to demonstrate that sewage and factory effluent now going into Lake Michigan can be diverted to fertilize barren land in Michigan.

Interest is growing in the use of heat from the incineration of community wastes as energy for the generation of electric power. Methods of capturing and re-using sulfur from smokestack emissions are being studied. Much of the new anti - pollution gadgetry coming on the market – currently a $5 billion a year business -- abides by the recycling or closed - system principle.

To make recycling work on a grand scale that would truly safeguard "spaceship earth," it is necessary to view all of nature and all of man's activities as part of a single system. This would put technology into harmony with nature rather than at cross purposes with it. As Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, former science adviser to President Nixon, recently pointed out, no one really wants to "go back to nature" and renounce the benefits of technology. But technology is not, as some imply, an uncontrollable force. It is up to man to use it for his own good.

SECOND - GENERATION "Poor Richard" is Robert W. Sarnoff. The RCA chairman is the 1971 recipient of Philadelphia's Poor Richard gold medal (bottom) given annually in memory of Benjamin Franklin. This is the first time a son of a previous winner has received the award. Sarnoff's father, Gen. David Sarnoff, was a recipient in 1939.

$1-Million-a-Movie Stars Down to One

EDITOR'S NOTE — A couple of years ago a dozen or so superstars of the movies could earn upwards of a $1 million for a picture. Today perhaps, only one such money earner exists. In the following, Bob Thomas veteran Hollywood reporter, explores the reasons why.

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A survey of the new film economics indicates the end of the era of the superstar—the movie personality whose importance could attract salaries up to $1 million per picture.

Only one superstar appears to have survived the severe cutback in actor's salaries: John Wayne.

Just a couple of years ago, Wayne was one of a group of stellar performers who were considered so potent at the box office that producers would pay them the equivalent of $1 million for a film—sometimes less initial money, but with 10 per cent of the gross receipts.

Look what's happening now.

Julie Andrews hasn't made a movie in two years. She was reported to do "She Loves Me" for MGM and "I Do! I Do!" for the Mirisch Co. but both projects were canceled because of high costs.

Elizabeth Taylor, after five successive flops at $1 million apiece, was inactive for two years. She now is making a film in London, taking a large percentage of the future income rather than a salary.

Husband Richard Burton is also making a London movie at no salary. "After this one, I'll go back to my million-dollar salary," he remarked. Not likely.

Elvis Presley, one of the first superstars to make $1 million per film, hasn't made a movie in two years, except for a documentary of his singing tours.

Shirley MacLaine has signed to make a television series in England for the ABC network.

Some of the other superstars have been inactive. Others have prepared projects through their own companies: McQueen, Douglas, Newman, Lemmon.

Newman, Miss Streisand and Poitier have formed their own company, First Artists, although no films have yet been produced by the firm.

Ted Ashley, production chief of Warner Bros. said recently that the million-dollar salary has vanished in '99 per cent of the cases."

"But," he added, "there are rare people like John Wayne who receive money like that and are worth it in terms of real money they bring in at the box office."

"Right now it's fashionable to blame the stars for the poor financial condition of the film business," observes a top Hollywood agent. "That's ridiculous. The stars didn't blackmail the studios to pay them a million dollars. They were in a seller's market—why not get as much as they can? Their earning power doesn't last very long."

Some studio heads now will not consider star names for roles. They argue that some of the biggest recent hits have been without big star names: "The Graduate," "Easy Rider," M-A-S-H," "Midnight Cowboy."

"I don't want any leading actors over 35," says one production boss. "The young audience can't identify with anyone older."

Like all movie trends, this, too, probably will pass.

A new pattern is developing for employment of stars. They are asked to work at little or no salary, taking instead a share of hopeful profits.

Paul Flower's Greenhouse

When the curriculum for black students is made up, it is to be hoped that generous attention will be paid to the rich and colorful contributions to American English made by black Americans since the first Africans were brought to these shores.

If they had done nothing else, they have contrived hundreds of picturesque words and phrases which go far beyond mere communication, and our linguistic heritage is forever indebted to them for sayings which get the message across in unforgettable fashion.

For example, Uncle Remus asked, "You kin hide de fire, but what you gon' do 'bout de smoke?"

Graphic wisdom, that.

Now comes a compilation of additions to the language, "The Third Ear -- A Black Glossary," by Hermese E. Roberts, from the English language Institute of American, which will appear as a section in the Consolidated Webster Encyclopedic Dictionaries.

Here in the Mid-South we are familiar with such choice bits as "derail," for moonshine liquor; "crabapple switch," for switchblade knives with long and pointed cutting member; the "Hadden Horn," a dice cup invented by a Memphis mayor to curb cheating at craps probably was so named by black users; the expression, "where the Southern cross the Dog" has gone round the world as a synonym for Moorhead, Miss., and inspired Carroll Cloar's famous painting of the actual crossing.

When Roark Bradford's Widow Duck advised "be not disencouraged," she piled alinguistic Ossa on Pelion to good effect; and a porter at the Commercial Appeal, reporting on his triumph over Johnson grass, said he had "cut it down to teen age."

Hermese Roberts is a Chicago school principal who has kept her "third ear" tuned to jargon (after all, the now respectable "maudin" and "tawdry" were jargon once), and she has even paid children $10 for every 100 slang expressions they would bring in from black communities of Chicago and other cities, as well as from the Deep South.

Here are some of the contributions she has included in her glossary:

BUSTING SUDS -- washing dishes.

BLUE-EYED SOUL BROTHER -- a white person who can relate to blacks.

DO -- slic, processed hair.

DUSTIES -- old phonograph records, no longer in vogue.

GEORGIA HAMS -- watermelons. (Remember when Georgia ice cream was grits, and Georgia strawberries, black-eyed peas?)

GOT SOME CHEST-- looking for a fight.

GIVE ME SOME SKIN -- requesting a handshake in which the palm is held flat while the greeter slides his hand along the open palm to the end of the fingers.

HINCTY -- snobbish.

HONKY -- white man, also known as ofay, The Man, Charley, Chuck, or Mickey Mouse.

PLAYING THE DOZENS--making derogatory remarks about another's mother. (This is an oldie in Dixie.)

SHEEN--automobile, probably from "machine".

TASTE--whisky.

REAL DOWN--very good.

RALPH BUNCHE (as verb)--to talk your way out of a tight situation, relying on diplomacy.

MAIN MELLOW--the favorite girl out of many, for a playboy.

THANG--thing, so pronounced. Workers among flood refugees in the Mississippi Valley will testify that many blacks refused to abandon their "thangs" even when water got into their houses.

FBI--Fat, Black, Ignorant. Derogatory term akin to "playing the dozens."

GET WASTED--get drunk.

VINES (or THREADS)--clothes. Fat threads used to indicate class and style.

Mrs. Roberts discarded many obscenities, although she was aware that they are intregal to the folk tongue.

Many of these expressions belong in the category of transient slang, cant, or jargon; some have prevailed for more than a century; some are regional, and some will go the way of all fads.

Be it hoped that black America will continue to enrich the language.

THE BARON BRANCHES OUT

By John Creasey
(Avon V2341/.75/192 pp.)

John Mannering, alias The Baron, hero of John Creasey's popular mystery series, enlarges his antique business--and finds death an item in demand--in THE BARON BRANCHES OUT.

The Baron buys an Elizabethan manor house, and then decides to move it across the Atlantic to set up a Boston branch of his famous London antique shop. But he finds included in the shipment a corpse hidden in a secret staircase, and it soon becomes evident to Mannering that he has signed a bloody contract involving an ancestral fortune and a crafty killer.

Other John Creasey thrillers published by Avon include THE BARON AND THE MOGUL SWORDS and THE BARON AND THE STOLEN LEGACY.

Nixon Zeroing in On Bureaucrats

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)

As best this reporter can determine from sources with access to the President and the White House staff, President Nixon has decided it is hopeless within the near future to gain direct control over the major departments and agencies of the government.

Yet Nixon is determined to gain that control.

He therefore has been shifting, gradually but firmly, more of the staff work on policy decisions away from the departments and agencies to the White House staff.

All presidents, in theory, make their own decisions. But, as is well-known, many proposals come to the president so defined and so staffed that in practice he is a prisoner of the staff work. He has very limited alternatives.

Under the new setup, the White House staff is very tightly in on the formulation of proposals at a very early stage of the game. A friend in one major agency reports that he recently submitted not one but five alternate proposals for action simultaneously. They went to the White House. He expects to be working in detail (in some cases, sentence by sentence) with the White House staff on altering and adjusting these proposals for some time before they reach the President. He believes that none of his proposals will be accepted. He expects, instead, that the President's immediate staff will draw together parts of two or three of his alternatives and forge them into a new proposal.

The important thing here is that in the past, traditionally, most of the staff work would have been done in the agency—not at the White House.

So far as can be determined, Nixon personally likes to work in this way, with final proposals or alternatives being hammered out by a tight staff of men he trusts.

But in considerable measure, it seems, the President is intensifying this shift in staff work from the departments to the White House because he no longer has confidence that he will get what he wants out of the departments.

To get what he wants would require a thorough housecleaning. And housecleaning in the government bureaucracy is a long and very difficult task.

All presidents feel that too often it is this bureaucracy that runs the government regardless of what the president wishes or orders. These bureaucrats control the facts. They control the flow of paper on which decisions and actions depend. They know how to slow action indefinitely on what they don't want and how to speed through what they do want.

While he is gathering more of this staff work into the White House, Nixon is pecking away at longer-range changes. He is bringing in experts who know the techniques of weeding out the men he doesn't want. This is difficult, but the cleanup is under way.

Advance National Guard Cagers to Play Sikeston

January 20, 1921

Company M, 1st, Reg. N.G. Mo., of Advance, will send a basketball squad here to meet Company K's team nest Monday night at the City Hall. Capt. Harry Dudley will pick a team out of the following squad: Byron Bowman, Paul Gilbert, Neil Gilbert, Byron Crain, Leonard Tanner, Fred Allard, Pleas Malcolm, Bill Crowe and James Matthews.

The basketball team from Malden High School lost to Sikeston last Friday night by the score of 38 to 17.

Last Tuesday night Morehouse played Sikeston on the latter's court and lost by the score 28 to 8.

Louis Jackson, a 10-year-old boy living west of the Frisco tracks in Sikeston, was seriously injured last Friday afternoon, when he was struck by an automobile driven by J.M. Boswell of Morehouse.

January 20, 1931

Charleston--Jimmie Sheppard, 23, was killed on the 16th when he fell while oiling the engine of a drag line working on the Mississippi County spillway near Brewers' Lake and his body was horribly mangled by the cable of the drag line.

Margaret Evans, daughter of Cyrus Evans of Paris, living with her mother at LeGrand, Calif., is among the leading radio soloists of the Pacific Coast. She is a sister of Miss Daisy Evans, teacher in the Sikeston High School.

It was a 100 per cent Sikeston night last Friday when the locals completely and thoroughly defeated the visiting Charleston Bluejays. Referee Michie was freely criticized for calling an unusually large number of fouls, at times for trivial infractions of basketball rules. With four shots discounted the locals would still be undisputed victors to the tune of 32-14 for the girls and 38 to 18 for the boys.

The Sikeston basketball winning streak received another boost Saturday night when Cunningham's seconds defeated a second string team at Diehlstadt 23 to 18.

January 20, 1941

Strong finishing Charleston Bluejays teams came from behind in two games with the Sikeston Bulldogs to emerge triumphant Friday night in the Armory. The Bluejay first quintet defeated the Sikeston A team, 29 to 26 while the Charleston B team won by the narrower margin of 14 to 13.

Mrs. Ermer M. Jones died Friday at her home in Sikeston after a lingering illness. She was 68.

Adlolp Monroe Crevoister, 70, former resident of Sikeston, died at his home in St. Louis on January 9 from bronchial pneumonia.

Scott County will be called upon to place 16 men in the army in February. Thirteen have volunteered and have taken physical examinations and have been classified in 1-A and three others have volunteered but have not been examined. The Sikeston volunteers include: Tommie Prewitt, Water York, J.W. Cox, Albert H. Jones and Glenn Easterbrook.

20 Years Ago

Two youths of near Catron were fatally injured today when the pickup truck in which they were passengers struck a stalled car on New Madrid Route D just south of Lilbourn and overturned on the highway, the state patrol said today, the boys were Greggy Eugene Sandlin, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grog Sandlin, Route 1, Catron, and Bobby Dean Hardesty, 15, son of Mrs. Mable Hardesty, also of Route 1.

Stork Club. Mr. and Mrs. John D. Philpot of Lilbourn are parents of a baby girl born January 18 at the Delta Community Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradie Feltner of Morehouse are parents of a baby boy born on the 18th.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Schaffer of Sikeston on the 18th.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCann of Sikeston on the 18th.

It's twin baby girls for Mr. and Mrs. H.M. Keathley, jr., of Sikeston born on the 18th.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brewer of Sikeston are parents of a baby boy born on the 18th.

The Bulldogs and Bullpups had no trouble whatsoever in overcoming the Benton A & B teams at Benton last night. The Bullpups won handily, 59-36, and then turned things over to the Bulldogs, who took the Tigers in their stride, 69-40.

Armed Forces. Durwood White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray White of Salcedo, has recently arrived in the Far East. He enlisted in the Army July 26 and was sent to Fort Riley, Kans. for his basic training. Shortly before he was shipped to the Far East from Ft. Lawton, Wash., he was home on a 15-day furlough. At that time he was married to the former Miss Mattie Jean Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.D. Moore of Sikeston.

Vera Should Be Clad Not Stairs

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

When voluptous Vera tip-toed to the top of the stairway in front of her apartment to capture her morning bottle of milk, she was very cautious. She didn't want to be seen in her "shortie" pajamas by the bachelors who lived above her.

Unfortunately, she wasn't cautious enought. The stairway was wet from a rainfall and Vera, slipping on the top step, bounced down the stairway on her derriere. When she stopped bouncing, Vera sued the landlord for her injuries.

"He maintained the stairway in a dangerous and hazardous fashion," complained Vera in court. "It should have had a shed over it to prevent the stairway from becoming wet and slippery."

"Poppyrot," responded the landlord. "Vera didn't fall because the stairway wasn't covered. She fell because she wasn't covered. Had she been properly dressed, she would have been watching where she was stepping instead of watching who was watching."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit lightly clad Vera to collect for her injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a property owner is only required to provide stairs that can be negotiated safely in the exercise of ordinary care. He is not required to shield stairs from starers or from the rain.

Based upon a 1960 Louisiana Court of Appeals Decision.

Under Twenty

DEAR ASTRID
By Astrid Carson

Dear Astrid: My boy friend says he doesn't go with girls during school. But I found out two weeks ago that he is going with another girl. When I questioned him about it, he said I stay too far away for him. I still love him. In class he looks at me so hard I have to avoid him because I don't like what he did to me. Every time I pass him, he lights up like a Christmas tree and now he avoids his girl friend at school. Now there is another boy who wants to go with me. I want to think about it a little more. I don' know whether to say "yes" or "no". Should I stop avoiding my ex-boy friend or go with this other guy? ---Lisa

Dear Lisa: You certainly won't be losing anything by dating the new boy who is interested in you. You needn't jump from one steady to another and your ex certainly deserves a lesson for deceiving you about his school dating. All right, you still love him, but you've been hurt and treated unfairly. By dating the other boy, you'll make yourself even more interesting to your ex as long as you play it cool. As far as his claim that you keep too far away from him is concerned, it sounds like a very weak excuse for his playing around behind your back. Let him prove himself before you trust him and leave yourself open to being hurt again.

Dear Astrid: I had two girl friends to my house as guests over the holidays. One was a dream. She was fun, pitched in and helped and everybody like her. The other one was a drag. She wanted all the attention, didn't help with anything and wouldn't do anything anyone wanted to do. It was either "too cold" or she "didn't feel well." My parents didn't like her and told me so but they don't understand that she's got a lot of problems including being on a very rough diet to lose weight. They haven't told me so, but I know they'd like me to drop her as a friend. She hasn't got many and I think I'd be cruel to dump her. What do you think? ----Ellie

Dear Ellie: I think you're quite a friend to be so understanding. There are two things you might do to help the situation. First, don't subject your family and friends to her any more than necessary. She's your friend and if she really messes thing up, it isn't fair to burden others with her. Secondly, when you have the right opportunity, have a heart-to-heart talk with her. Tell her you understand her problems but not everyone does. When she is with others, she's got to learn to carry her share of the load, whether it is helping or just being pleasant. If she makes others suffer because of her problems, all she'll do is increase them because most people just won't make the allowances for her that you do. If you cant stand the drag of her friendship, you may be able to help her. But don't put yourself in the position of alienating others by insisting that they take her along with you.

Dear Astrid: I see this boy at the Mall almost every Saturday. He's really cute, has long blonde hair, and is about four years older than I. I'd love to say "hi" but I don't dare. Is there something I can do? ----Secret Admirer

Dear Secret: A friendly "hi" never hurt anybody. Depending on your age, though, you should give some thought to the fact that he's four years older than you and may not accept your interest on the same level you give it. So , don't be disappointed if it doesn't work out to much more than a friendly "hi" in return. Almost every girl that ever grew up had someone they secretly admired. It's part of the growing up process. But, don't let it shut you off from your friend, particularly the boys you know who are closer to your own age. The older boy may seem more glamorous, but in the long run you may be better off admiring him from a distance and being closer to others.

ATTACK A SACRED COW

Editor, The Wall Street Journal: Your editorial "A Good Union Country" (Dec. 11) was very good and very timely, but this editorial could have been written in almost exactly the same words at almost any time in the past 35 years, because our labor monopoly problem goes back farther than that, but began to be hopeless with the passage of the Wagner Act.

It is rare to find an American publication that dares to criticize theses labor monopolies. Perhaps this is because the publishing industry is one of the most union - ridden industries in the country. Until the press, on a wide front, begins trying to educate the American people to understand the ruinous results of all this inflation caused by labor monopolies, nothing is going to be done about it.

It is practically impossible to get any worthwhile action in Congress because too many of its members were sent there by the labor monopolies. The urge must come from the people themselves if they can be made to understand what is being done to their savings and investments, and what is going to happen to this country ifthis inflation cannot be checked. Nothing remedial has been done about inflation in more than 35 years, and nothing remedial is being done about it now and it is most unlikely that anything will be done. To do anything about inflation means that we must attack one of the most untouchable of all the sacred cows in the country — the labor monopolies.

Patrick Henry made his famous revolutionary speech at the Virginia Convention, March 23, 1775. Calling for organizing the defenses of the colony, The World Almanac notes, Henry said: "Is life so dear, or sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

Spain Introduces Bill to Ease Physician Shortage

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A bill to ease Missouri's physician shortage by providing state aid to private medical schools was introduced in the Missouri House Monday by Rep. James Spain, D-Bloomfield.

The measure would give each of Missouri's four private medical schools $4,000 a year toward the education of each Missouri medical student. Spain said that would be less than the cost of expanding state-owned medical training schools.

The four private schools are at Washington and St. Louis Universities in St. Louis, the Kirksville College of Osteopathy and Surgery and the Kansas City College of Osteopathic Medicine.

Two bills requiring automobile manufacturers to install bumpers or energy absorption systems on all vehicles were introduced.

One by Rep. Patrick J. O'Connor, D-Bridgeton, would set a deadline of 1973, the other by Rep. Richard Smallwood, D-St. James, would set a deadline in 1974.

Other new measures would:

Let St. Louis County levy a county sales tax and share the revenue with its municipalities, on a population basis.

Ban the use of any beverage containers which do not have a refund value of at least 5 cents each.

Extend the state merit system to the revenue department.

Provide a pay increase for the lower levels of State Highway Department employes — 8 per cent for those now getting less than $500 a month; 4 per cent for those getting between $500 and $750 a month; 2 per cent for those getting between $750 and $1,000, and none for any employe receiving more than $1,000.

Provide a World War IIbonus to Missouri veterans of up to $300 at an estimated cost of more than $87 million with the financing from a 4-cents a package increase in the present 9 cent cigarette tax. Veteran's bonus proposals have regularly failed in Missouri for the past quarter century.

Extend the election law study commission for another two years, until July, 1973. That measure was offered by Rep. Thomas Ryan, D-Kansas City.

Other new bills would:

Change the constitution to permit games of chance, such as bingo, to finance charitable, religious, patriotic or educational programs.

Require the State Department of Agriculture to handle all milk inspections. Some larger cities now handle their own ininspections.

Protect the landowner from any damages for loss or injury suffered by anyone entering his land to fish or hunt.

Permit arresting authorities to hold a juvenile for up to eight hours before turning him over to a juvenile officer or juvenile court. Now he must be transferred "immediately and directly."

Give members of the legislature travel expenses of 10 cents a mile, once a week roundtrip between their homes and the capitol, when the legislature is in session. Now the limit is twice a month.

Require retailers to make separate payments for state and local sales tax, to simplify the state's job of keeping the payments apart.

Ban the use of lead-bearing substances, such as paint, on the surfaces of any dwelling or dwelling unit, on toys or furniture.

Let the State Park Board pay inmates of the State Training Schools for Boys, at Boonville and Poplar Bluff, $25 a month instead of $15 for refurbishing work they do in state parks during the off-season.

Extend the governmental reorganization commission until July 1, 1972, an additional year.

Give Missourians a tax deduction for money spent for educational tuition, fees and books

Change the constitution to let smaller counties adopt the char-3 ter form of government. It would decrease from 85,000 to 40,000 the minimum population needed for the plan and 8 per cent of the voters, instead of 20 per cent, would be required on petitions calling for a charter election.

The House received two bills Monday designed to crack down on the drunken driver.

One would: 2nd graf M17.

One would reduce from the present .015 per cent to .010 per cent the weight of alcohol in the bloodstream of a driver to prove he is intoxicated. It was introduced by Rep. Donald L. Gann, R-Ozark.

The other would provide that a Municipal Court conviction for drunken driving, as well as a conviction in a state court, would mean 12 points against a driver's record—plus automatic suspension of the right to drive.

Baby Girl Dies as Fire Sweeps House

NEW MADRID--A 15-month-old girl, Antwan Smith, daughter of George and Beatrice Smith, died Tuesday in a fire that gutted the home located at First and Pinnell Streets.

The four-room frame house was engulfed in flames when the fire department arrived minutes after receiving the call at 2:30 p.m.

A feeble elderly grandmother Georgia Ross and two other children were able to get out of the flaming house, but flames blocked rescue of the baby.

The fire was fought two hours before being extinguished. The fire department had to return to the scene at 5:40 p.m. when fire flared again.

Cause of the fire could not be determined.

Change in Air Support Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dispatch of American helicopters to aid the allied offensive in Cambodia comes six and a half months after President Nixon declared "no U.S. air or logistics support" would be used to aid South Vietnamese fighting in Cambodia.

Now, however, U.S. helicopters operating for the first time from 7th Fleet ships off the Cambodian coast have been providing firepower and logistics support—ferrying supplies and aiding in communications—for the Cambodian-South Vietnamese force battling to reopen Phnom Penh's key highway to the sea.

In news briefings this week, Jerry W. Friedheim, the Defense Department's deputy assistant secretary for public affairs, described these efforts as "air combat and logistic activities" and said they represent no change in administration policy.

These operations, he explained, 'fall in the over-all context of our interdiction effort to deal in Cambodia with enemy personnel, bases and supplies which might ultimately endanger the lives and safety of U.S. personnel inside South Vietnam as we continue the Vietnamization program and the redeployment of American forces."

Friedheim was asked in an interview how the American effort now under way falls within Nixon's June 30 statement that no air or logistics support would be provided the South Vietnamese in Cambodia.

Friedheim replied it is not up to him to interpret the President.

Nixon, in a nationwide television address barring U.S. ground personnel and military advisers from Cambodia, said:

"We will conduct—with the approval of the Cambodian government—air interdiction missions against the enemy efforts to move supplies and personnel through Cambodia towards South Vietnam and to re-establish base areas relevant to the war in South Vietnam."

The South Vietnamese, Nixon continued, would remain ready to block re-establishment of the enemy's border sanctuaries cleaned out in May and June by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops.

"Most of these operations will be launched from within South Vietnam," Nixon said. "There will be no U.S. air or logistics support."

Since June, there have been many indications that the "air interdiction" Nixon mentioned has been defined broadly to include air attacks by U.S. planes and helicopters on enemy positions and concentrations, thus helping the Cambodians in their battles with the North Vietnamese.

Such actions apparently are what officials refer to as "ancillary" or side effects from interdiction, although this was never spelled out.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, asked about U.S. aid in the Cambodian offensive, also said the action represents no change in administration policy.

Ziegler said Nixon, in the June 30 statement, referred to withholding U.S. forces from actions designed to clear out Communist sanctuaries.

The current action, Ziegler said, is part of an effort to protect U.S. troops in Vietnam, and added each incident is being reviewed on an individual basis.

Anderson Withstands Challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois withstood a conservative challenge today and narrowly won re-election to the House Republican's No.3 leadership post.

Anderson, a moderate, defeated Rep. Samuel L. Devine of Ohio, a conservative, for chairman of the House Republican Conference.

The vote was 89 to 81.

The conservative bloc had mounted a drive to defeat Anderson in his bid for a second term in the chairmanship.

Their head-to-head race came as the 180 Republicans elected to the 92nd Congress caucused to name leaders, adopt rules and consider a report on seniority before Congress convenes Thursday.

House Democrats settled their only serious leadership battle, electing Hale Boggs as majority leader over Morris Udall.

Senate Republicans caucus Thursday and may face a rematch of the 1969 battle in which Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania defeated Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee for the GOP leadership.

Scott claims enough votes—23 will be needed—to win a new term. But supporters of Baker, who has not announced his candidacy, challenge that claim.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan and Leslie C. Arends of Illinois, the whip, are unchallenged in their bids for new terms.

The conference chairman ranks behind these two posts in the GOP hierarchy. He presides over monthly sessions of the conference, composed of all House Republicans, and sits in on weekly White House GOP leadership meetings with President Nixon.

Anderson, 48, came to Congress 10 years ago with conservative credentials. But as a member of the House Rules Committee he has angered conservatives over several votes for civil rights bills, the administration's family assistance plan and consumer legislation. He won the party post two years ago on a 116-56 vote.

Devine, a 55-year-old ex-FBI agent, is a staunch conservative. He is a husky former college athlete who still referees football games.

The conference planned to consider a report on seniority by a special task force headed by Rep. Barber Conable of New York. It has the support of House GOP Leader Ford.

This report envisions a secret vote by all Republican House members on nominations from a special committee for the top GOP committee posts.

Seniority, although it no longer would be the sole criterion of nomination, would continue a major consideration in selecting committee chairmen.

Fall from Tractor Kills Youth

GRANDIN–A 14-year-old Grandin youth was killed Sunday when he slipped off a tractor on which he was riding and fell under the wheel.

Milton Holmes was pronounced dead at Doctor's Hospital in Poplar Bluff at 4 p.m. His body was taken to the Edwards Funeral Home in Doniphan.

A spokesman for Troop E Headquarters of the Missouri Highway Patrol said the Holmes youth was riding on the tractor and his brother, Quinton, 16, was guiding it.

Their mother, Novella Holmes, 36, was pulling the tractor with a pickup truck, trying to start it. The patrol said the Holmes youth apparently slipped off. The accident occurred at 2:50 p.m. 15 miles southwest of Poplar Bluff.

The fatality brought the Southeast Missouri death toll to nine for the year, compared to seven last year.

Nixon Arrives at Midway Mark Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is two years in office today and any appraisal of his performance in the first half of his term should not ignore his own assessment: "I hope I do better."

Nixon is frank to concede performance fell short of his high expectations of 24 months ago, but he can take comfort from the fact he experienced no earth-shaking setbacks.

His decision last spring to send U.S. ground troops into Cambodia raised many an eyebrow and many a voice—but the operation was officially proclaimed a military success and in no way could be labeled Nixon's Bay of Pigs. He has had no such disasters.

Some observers, looking for a handy measure of presidential performance, seize upon public opinion polls that attempt to measure a chief executive's popularity.

In Nixon's case, more meaningful yardsticks can be found in statistical charts that dramatize:

1. The President's most notable success to date: His effort to gradually liquidate the Vietnam war.

2. His most notable failure: A faltering economy that did not respond to his pre-1971 prescriptions, or predictions.

When Nixon took office, there were 542,400 troops in Vietnam. Now there are about 335,000 and the level is projected to drop to 284,000 by May 1. Monthly combat deaths fell during the period from 795 to 138. Draft calls dropped from 26,800 a month to a current 17,000.

The economy presents a quite different picture. Living costs climbed from 124.1 to 137.8 as measures against a 1957-59 average of 100. The unemployment rate ballooned from 3.4 per cent of the work force to an even 6 per cent—a nine-year high. And in 1970, the broadest measure of economic activity, the Gross National Product, declined for the first time in 12 years, making allowances for inflation.

Taken together, statistics on Vietnam and the economy suggest Nixon has had offsetting ups and downs in two years. While no such conclusion should be reached on the basis of charts covering only two issues, there is some evidence to suggest that even Nixon may not disagree with the view that his 24-month record leaves him not far from where he started Jan. 20, 1969.

Otherwise, why would he be revising economic policy and voicing new promises of domestic reforms?

Quite apart from Vietnam, the chief executive can count other important accomplishments. For one thing, no cities burned, there were no major riots and, by the start of 1971, the campus mood seemed quieter. A big factor with students, perhaps, was a Nixon-initiated reform of the military draft—another plus for the administration.

Although crime rates continued to rise, they did so at a slower pace than in the last years of the Johnson administration. And while some grumbled about Nixon's approach to school desegregation, considerable progress was registered on that front in the once-recalcitrant South.

In foreign affairs, talks with the Soviets on limitation of strategic arms were launched—though negotiations slowed perceptibly as Middle East tensions mounted and produced edginess in Washington-Moscow relations.

As for the Middle East, the administration brought about an Arab-Israeli cease-fire that continued into the new year, and a potential autumn military confrontation in Jordan was avoided.

Clearly, 1969 was kinder to Nixon than 1970. Last year's congressional elections results brought him, in fact, to a low point. Since November, however, the President has made what would seem to be an effective stab at regaining the initiative.

In his first year in office, Nixon quickly gave heart to the many Americans who had tired of the Vietnam war and former President Lyndon B. Johnson's preoccupation with Asia.

After hardly warming his chair, Nixon took off for Europe, to dramatize his personal concern about that part of the world. Then, flying to Midway Island for a conference with the president of South Vietnam, he announced the first of the continuing rounds of U.S. troop withdrawals from the war zone.

A Nixon plan to install a limited number of antiballistic missiles in the United States prompted a lengthy Senate debate and his view prevailed by but a single vote.

But this close call was overshadowed by a more momentous event: The planting of the American flag on the moon by the first men to reach that goal. Basking in the reflected glory of the three pioneering astronauts, Nixon flew to the Pacific to witness their successful recovery from the sea.

Continuing what became a globe-circling journey, Nixon proceeded to Guam and there enunciated a "doctrine" that now bears his name—a general policy statement that in the future the United States would try to limit its troop role overseas and would expect its foreign friends to do more to help themselves militarily.

On the minus side, from Nixon's standpoint, the Democratic-controlled Congress did not hesitate to revise or ignore administration proposals.

The Senate handed the President his biggest direct rebuff by rejecting his Supreme Court nominee, Judge Clement F. Haynsworth of South Carolina. Early 1970 produced a new hassle with the Senate, which again spurned a Supreme Court nominee, this one G. Harrold Carswell.

Much more important was a surprise presidential announcement April 30 that he had ordered U.S. ground forces into combat in Communist-threatened Cambodia. He argued the offensive would help protect American lives in South Vietnam.

The home front exploded. Thousands of students went on strike, demonstrators laid a day-long seige to the White House, and National Guardsmen and police shot and killed students at colleges in Ohio and Mississippi.

Moreover, Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel wrote the President a forceful letter that argued the administration was not paying sufficient heed to young people or, for that matter, to Cabinet members.

On June 30, the last American combat man left Cambodia and the domestic uproar died away.

One major Nixon reform was enacted, under the spur of a disruptive wave of illegal strikes by postal workers. Congress voted to transform the Post Office Department into a government corporation and to relinquish its power to fix postal rates.

State of Union Messages Have Become Pep Talks

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — President Nixon delivers his State of the Union Message to Congress on Friday. The address will be nationally televised at 9 p.m.

It takes some looking to find a State of the Union address of recent vintage that hasn't been dominated by war in Vietnam or trouble on the home front. As an exercise in nostalgia, President Lyndon B. Johnson's euphoric message of Jan. 4, 1965, will suffice. It was kind of a last hurrah to the wonderful wackiness of the best of the 1960s when love and bread were almost free and things had not yet turned ugly.

The year just ended -- 1964-- had been a good one for the American President, a year of continuation and consolidation. On the domestic front, Johnson had taken firm hold of the Presidency, enlarging on the support engendered by President Kennedy's assassination and winning election in November 1964 by the largest popular vote margin in history.

"Most important of all," declared Mr. Johnson in his nationally televised message, "the United States has re-emerged into the fullness of its self - confidence and purpose. No longer are we called upon to get America moving. We are moving ... No longer can anyone wonder whether we are in the grip of historical decay. We know that history is ours to make. And if there is great danger, there is now also the excitement of great expectations."

Nothing visible that night foreshadowed the tragedy that awaited Johnson little more than three years later when, immersed in an unpopular and costly war in Southeast Asia, he would announce his decision not to seek reelection in the interests of trying to unite the country and bring peace through negotiation in Vietnam.

The assembled congressmen, senators, cabinet officers, Supreme Court justices and foreign diplomats must have liked Johnson's characterization of the state of the union as "free, restless, growing, and full of hope." They interrupted his address 57 times with applause.

A year later, the cost of the conflict in Vietnam dominated Johnson's State of the Union Message. the Republicans demanded -- and got -- national TV network time for a rebuttal -- the first coordinated "state of the union" message by an opposition party in U.S. history. Six days before leaving office, Jan. 14, 1969, Johnson delivered his sixth and final State of the Union Message, with the words that were both elegy and epitaph: "... At least it will be said that we tried."

President Nixon skipped an opportunity to follow up the Johnson message with one of his own, relying instead on his inaugural address to set the tone for his administration. His first State of the Union Message came on Jan. 22, 1970, in a 36-minute effort that was somewhat philosophical in content and treated in a general way questions concerning the "quality of American life."

Nowthe President again is preparing to meet the Constitutional requirement (Art. II, Sec. 3) to ',from time to time give to the Congress information of the State of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary andexpedient." In an electronic age, the message is in reality a report not so much to Congress as to the American people. And in recent years, at least, it has become a pep talk for a nation down on its luck.

Truce Heads off Strike

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corp. have reached tentative agreement on a new three-year contract covering 110,000 production employes in the United States and Canada, UAW President Leonard Woodcock announced today.

The union ordered all its men to stay on the job beyond a 10 a.m. strike deadline while negotiators continue work on the section of the contract covering 10,000 salaried personnel.

While the agreement generally followed the pattern set in negotiations at Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp., including a 51-cent-an-hour firstyear raise--a new twist was added.

The two sides agreed to establish a six-member committee to study the feasibility of changing to a four-day, 40-hour workweek. Woodcock told a news conference the feasibility study could conceivably lead to a pilot project testing the four-day week, which has been used in some small industries and retail outlets but never by a major corporation, at two or three plants.

The union accepted Chrysler's offer of the four-day week study in exchange for a demand that Chrysler deduct the cost of a worker paid union-sponsored dental care plan from workers' wages, Woodcock said.

Nonfarm Payments Challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government auditors have challenged payment of $618,000 to divert feed-grain production in 1969 at a nudist club, gravel pit, garbage dumps and housing developments.

The General Accounting Office told Congress Friday efforts are being made to recover any unearned or excessive payments.

The GAO said the Agriculture Department has accepted GAO recommendations to exclude from the feed-grain program any nonfarm land and will review and strengthen controls.

Auditors selected for their review 14 counties in six states, mostly in areas undergoing urbanization. The areas were not identified.

The report said "questionable diversion payments" totaling about $618,000 were made to 938 farm owners or operators.

Detailed reviews of payments totaling $195,000, the GAO said, showed 136 landowners received about $116,000 "for land used, or designated for use, for such purposes as housing and commercial development, recreation, country estates, sod nurseries, garbage dumps, gravel pits" and a nudist colony. Some of these land owners received a total of $87,000 in prior years.

Under the voluntary feed-grain program, a producer diverts part of his land from production to an approved conservation use. In return, he is eligible for price-support payments and loans on the balance of his crop.

But the GAO said some payments didn't contribute to production control or land conservation, since the current or intended use of the plots ruled out feed grain production.

Morris Favors Gas Tax Hike

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Lt. Gov. William S. Morris told the Missouri Restaurant Association board of directors that he is convinced Missouri needs more money than it got in 1970.

"The problem of additional revenue is still No. 1," Morris said Monday night. He added that the problems had only been temporarily solved by last month's special session.

Morris said he favors an increase in gasoline tax, but opposes a proposed increase tied to a bond issue.

"The recommendation of the highway commission of a two cent increase in gasoline tax and an increase in licensing that will be equivalent to another one cent," Morris said, "certainly has my support...

"I also support the bond program. . ." Morris said but explained he saw no reason for risking defeat of increased revenue by tying it to the bond issue. He said he considers them separate issues.

Morris also endorsed the socalled Stevenson plan which would permit banks to bid on state deposits.

Fourth of Aged Americans on Poverty Income

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Special Committee on Aging says one of every four Americans 65 years and over is living on a poverty-level income.

The committee, in a report on the economics of aging, said both the number and the proportion of aged poor increased between 1968 and 1969. There were approximately 4.8 million people over 65 living in poverty in 1969—an increase of almost 200,000, the committee said.

The report said the number of under-65 persons in the poverty bracket declined by 1.2 million during the same period.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., the committee chairman, said in a preface to the report that Congress should vote a 10 per cent Social Security increase for 1971 and 20 per cent for 1972 to meet "this unnoticed income crisis."

The Senate voted a 10 per cent boost last year and the House approved a 5 per cent hike, but the two branches never got together and the bills died.

The committee said the aged have been hard hit by unemployment in the current economic slump and that soaring property taxes have jeopardized their efforts to hold onto homes. Rapidly rising health costs contributed to their woes, it said.

The report recommended that serious consideration be given to using Treasury general revenues to finance part of Social Security and to expanding medicare to cover prescription drugs for the chronically ill.

Same Old Fiscal Crunch Faces New Legislature

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri legislators will start feeling that old fiscal crunch again Tuesday.

That's the day Gov. Warren E. Hearnes plans to send up his budget recommendations for the 1971-72 fiscal year. The total is expected to be around $1.7 billion compared with appropriations of $1.4 billion this year.

Detailed figures will not be available until the budget is sent up in printed form. But the governor gave advance notice at the last special legislative session he would present a budget based on "a realistic and necessary level of expenditures."

He urged the special session to enact revenue producing measures to help finance and said in that case it would be a balanced budget.

But he warned:

"If that action is not taken, I would present the same budget in January — accompanied by recommendations for additional revenue. The 76th general assembly (the one now in session) then would face the responsibility of either raising needed revenue or taking affirmative action to curtail vital state services."

The special session did not heed the warning. It passed an emergency increase in individual and corporate income taxes for one year only, ending Dec. 31, 1971. That means revenue would not be sufficient to finance the proposed budget for the last six months of the 1971-72 fiscal year ending June 30, 1972.

So here comes the fiscal crunch again.

It is not a new feeling for the legislators who served through the last two years, wrecked by revenue fights from start to finish. But it may bring some surprises to the 37 new members who will be facing the hard fiscal facts of state government for the first time.

The way things stand, it is not even certain that there will be enough money to get through the present fiscal year ending June 30.

Among other things left hanging by the special session was a $14 million emergency appropriation bill which will be the first order of business when the House Appropriations Committee starts work next week.

In his year-end report, Comptroller John C. Vaughn noted that sales tax receipts are running behind the comparable six months of a year ago and total general revenue is only slightly ahead of last year.

First six month collections for the sales tax, the state's major revenue producer, totaled $147.4 million, compared with $150.4 million for the July-December period a year earlier.

Income tax receipts were up, however—$71.8 million this year against $62.5 million a year ago.

Vaughn blames economic conditions, aggravated by prolonged strikes in both the Kansas City and St. Louis metropolitan areas, for the sales tax decline.

He has revised his revenue estimate for the 1970-71 fiscal year to $635.7 million, to take into account an estimated $19.9 million from the revenue measures passed by the special session.

But he says that unless things improve, the new total probably cannot be reached.

All of these things boil down to tough problems for the legislature.

The lawmakers also must remember the governor's promise that he would again recommend some kind of an extension of the present income tax rates and a $70 million increase in state aid to schools to meet the legislature's 1969 commitment.

He also said he would recommend $2.6 million for junior colleges, $17.3 million for the University of Missouri, $7.8 million for the state colleges and Lincoln University, $17.7 million for welfare and $13.4 million for mental health.

Several revenue bills already have been introduced, including one by Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur, to extend the present emergency income tax rates on a permanent basis.

Some legislators have expressed a preference for a sales tax increase as easier to collect and less likely to cause public resentment. But the governor has said repeatedly that he prefers an income tax based on ability to pay rather than a sales tax which hits harder at the poor and at retired people on fixed incomes.

Both houses return to Jefferson City at 4 p.m. Monday after a week's vacation.

Sen. J. F. Patterson, D-Caruthersville, Senate president pro tem, plans to appoint his committees as soon as the Senate adopts its new rules Monday and House Speaker James E. Godfrey, D-St. Louis, expects to announce the House committees Tuesday.

Sen. Donald Manford, D-Kansas City, a 36-year-old lawyer who has been in the Senate only since 1968, is expected to be the Senate appropriations chairman succeeding Sen. T. D. McNeal, D-St. Louis, who did not seek re-election last year.

In the House, Rep. E. J. Cantrell, D-Overland, is expected to be the appropriations chairman for the second time. He has been in the House since 1958.

Judge Ends 40 Years on County Court

NEW MADRID—Presiding Judge O. R. Rhodes of the County Court of New Madrid County was honored with a party in the County Courtroom Dec. 31, it being the judge's final day of service after having served on the county court since 1931.

The judge was presented with a pen and pencil set by officials of the county, the set being enscribed with his dates of service—"1931—1970".

Refreshments of cake and coffee, furnished by Mrs. Van H. Sharp, were served to personnel of the court house, members of the judge's family and a few other friends.

Judge Rhodes, who will be 96 years old March 13, was not a candidate for re-election last year, and he had been succeeded by Raymond Ashley as presiding judge.

ARMED FORCES

Sergeant Arington distinguished himself by meritorious service as a communications specialist at Da Nang Air Base.

Editor Blanton:

On September 19, 1970 the automobile which I was driving was forced off the highway but still struck head-on by another automobile. The other auto was driven by a drunken driver on the wrong side of the highway and traveling at excessive speed. My wife was 8½ months pregnant at the time of the accident and she received internal injuries resulting in the stillborn delivery of the baby and a total hysterectomy. She also received serious facial lacerations which will require five or six operations over the next year to correct only part of the damage. A great deal of the damage can never be repaired!

The UNINSURED driver of the other automobile was drunk! (22% was the official result of his blood test). He was issued a traffic citation for drunken driving and on December 24, 1970 (the accident occurred September 19) justice finally took its toll.

Many people attempted to warn me that Missouri laws regarding drunken driving were extremely lax. After 15 years in the U.S. Navy, having served in several countries and many states, and having observed their laws and penalities regarding drunken driving, I felt sure that Missouri would also have soom teeth in their laws covering drunken driving.

But on December 24, 1970 I found that Missouri law is toothless! For operating a motor vehicle drunk, driving at excessive speed on the wrong side of the highway, causing an accident which cost the live of an unborn child, serious permanent damage to my wife, removed any possibility of additional children, broken arms suffered by my wife, and oldest daughter, multiple cuts and bruises plus immeasurable heartache and emotional stress this negligent driver received a fine of $100 and 6 months jail sentence (the jail sentence was suspended provided he obey the law).

Since this individual was uninsured he paid his $100 fine and walked away free while WE are left to pay for his negligent action. I say WE because as a member of the military my families medical expenses (over $3,000 and possibly will reach over $5,000) are paid for by us, the taxpayer!

I can only hope that Missouri will soon join the ranks of the States that believe a slap on the wrist is not sufficient punishment or deterrent for the drunken driver! As soon as my family is physically able to travel we will leave Missouri and take up residence where I can feel adequately protected when I drive on their highways.

Glance At Poetry

By Charles Brady

COMEDY OF ERRORS

As 1970 turns to 71
and we reflect to see what has been done, it's too bad we have no photographs of the past to give us a hearty laugh.

Michael failed in his capacity
to justly serve his county.
But we taxpayers must remember that Holman's men were no better.

New Madrid has an industrial site
and Symington helped turn on the light.
But work stoppages and disputes have prevailed
and we wonder just where they have failed.

Sheriff Clyde Orton went to court
to see just whom was sold short.
Liquor raids and gambling was the story
and Danforth's boys won the glory.

A Morehouse marshal tries to steal
and a key is refused to Mayor Neal.
The mayor resigned and a on me
marshal is hired but he's on parole and is quickly fired.

And then there's an Alabama
(or Missouri) man for our files that surely won't bring Gilmore any smiles.
We're not sure just what it will bring but Whittle says "it's no Brigg thing".

And finally a joke is played while I enjoyed my family's
Christmas tree.
homeless
but the postscript shows
Sikeston's greatness.

So many people went out of their way to make my life better today.

-Charles Brady,
Sikeston, Mo.

MIND, HOPE

As a sigh is sighed
in the mind has died
a multitude of hopes and wishes.

On the morrow we pray
with the breaking of day
as the oceans replaces her fishes,

The mind will be shaken,
a thought will awaken
and the mind will live on with our dreams.

For live on as it seems is our hopes and our dreams
and the end can be just the beginning.

Amen.

-James E. Brannon,
Sikeston, Mo.

Oh My, what a perfectly marvelous time I've had! I swear the Garden of Eden must have been located somewhere near Jamaica, cause never have I seen such a vast profusion of fruits & spices. It would be absolutely impossible to starve to death there; On one side of a road you'll find a tall wearing coconaut palm just loaded with fruit, under it a small banana with one branch laden down with a bunch of green bananas, next to that an orange, a grapefruit & possibly a lime tree, perhaps melons pineapples at their feet, or & whistling & demanding a pemintio trees, or papayas, or goodly protion of your breakfast ackee (the Jamaican national which they eat right alongside of fruit which has to be boiled to you for on your table if you be eaten), & a little higher up don't watch out) & at a very the mountains you run into rapid rate of speed. Oh & the bushes of cocoa pods & at the names of the towns Friendship, peaks their wonderful coffee Ochos Rios, Montego Bay beans; all in a riot of color & (which when translated loses confusion added to by the something as it means pig lard canaries, or the hummingbirds, bay); & the homes Glistening birds which awake you every white witch lived & died so or morning with their shrill singing violently that still after 200 years no Montego Bay

Well, I'm reading like the native really, I could ramble on for hours about the simple beauty of the place, & the delightful people that grace this island — maybe ole Charley just needs to take me on a vacation more often, I don't know, but anyway, I sure had a ball on this one!

Leonard Hall Easter Seal Chairman

ST. LOUIS--Leonard Hall, native Ozarkian and Missouri's most widely read writer on conservation, natural history and country life, has been appointed state chairman of the 1971 Easter Seal Campaign, announced Chauncey L. Leeper, president of the Missouri Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

During the campaign, March 1 through Easter Sunday, April 11, Hall will lead a statewide corps of volunteers in seeking funds for treatment and rehabilitation services for the physically handicapped.

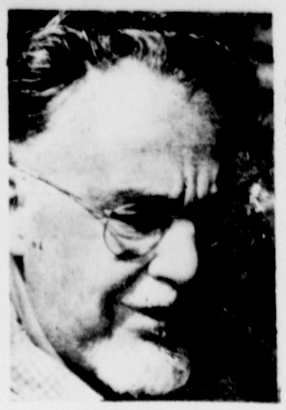
Hall's mother, Mrs. Catherine Leonard Hall, was a founder and director of both the Missouri and the St. Louis Societies for Crippled Children.

Hall has written for Life, Harpers, Successful Farming, Audubon Magazine, and has published four books: Possum Trot Farm, Country Year, Stars Upstream and Ozark Wildflowers. Possum Trot, his farm home in Caledonia, Mo., is also the title of his column that appears twice weekly in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

With his wife, Virginia, Hall has produced nature and wildlife films which have been shown on television and on the Hall's lecture tours in 200 cities across the United States, Canada and the Caribbean.

Hall's conservation effort has received nationwide recognition; the 1945 Missouri Master Conservation Award; honorary degrees from Westminister College and Washington University; the 1959 Thomas Stokes Award for "the best writing on natural resources in an American newspaper;" the 1965 Missouri Governor's Award as "State Conservationist;" the 1967 Golden Anniversary Award of the Federal Land Banks, and an appointment to the Missouri Academy of Squires.

Much creidt was given to Hall for the preservation of the Current and Jacks Fork Rivers, resulting in the Ozark National Scenic Riverways under the direction of the National Park Service.



LEONARD HALL, nature writer and conservationist from Possum Trot Farm, Caledonia, has been named state Easter Seal campaign chairman. During the annual appeal, March 1—April 11, conducted by the Missouri Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Hall will lead volunteers in raising funds for rehabilitation services for crippled children and adults.

Bertig Says Effort to Honor Checks Underway

PARAGOULD, Ark.--W.L. Gatz, president of The Bertig Co. announced today that significant progress was made yesterday in negotiations between The Bertig Co. and its major secured creditors. The purpose of these negotiations is to develop a workable plan for orderly handling of Bertig affairs. It is anticipated that this will be accomplished and that producers will be paid for checks which they hold or for crops that they have marketed through The Bertig Co. and its affiliates.

Gatz said, "The plan to pay all producers will be possible only if no legal action is brought against The Bertig Co. or its affiliates while an extensive audit of the company's assets and liabilities is being conducted."

"This audit is expected to take about three weeks. If it produces the expected results, producers will be paid shortly there-after," Gatz added.

Everything is being done, Gatz said, to protect the claims of the producers and assets of the corporation. The stockholders of The Bertig Co. and affiliated corporations will be required to meet to ratify the plan.

On December 31, Bertig notified its customers that due to an unexpected curtailment of credit, the cash funds needed to honor outstanding producer checks was not available. The immediate suspension of operation was designed to stop the further outflow of cash to keep the situation from deteriorating to a point of impossible recovery.

For the past two weeks, crews have been marshaling all personal properties and inventories into a central warehouse in order to expedite their possible liquidation to pay producer checks.

All gin and elevator properties have been securely closed to preserve the dollar value of these properties, which may be sold at a later date.

Gatz reported that the announcement that The Bertig Co.'s 15 gins and 11 grain elevators would, in all probability, not be reopened, has spurred a number of producers to express concern about what ultimate effect the shut-down of so many gins and grain elevators would have upon the ability of farmers in Northeast Arkansas and Southeast Missouri to market the 1971 crop.

Gatz says that hundreds of Bertig customers have called at their main office in Paragould to discuss their particular situation and from all indications these people have been reassuring that Bertig was doing everything in its power to solve this problem.

Dear Editor:

"Because of the widespread ignorance and confusion among the American people concerning the nature of Communism, its tactics and purposes, there is a need for the counter-agent of education." (Foreword to "Brief on Communism"--American Bar Association, 1952)

Major Edgar C. Bundy, General Chairman of the Church League of America states: "There is no subject under the sun about which more nonsense, total mis-conception, deliberately planned confusion, or heavily obscurantist philosophizing has been done than Communism. Few individuals, in what remains of the Free World, are able to recognize the enemy even when he is working in their midst. He appears in various forms and clever disguises. The leaders of Communism are individuals of high intelligence, very clever and they are supported with a great deal of money earned under a capitalistic or free enterprise system." Major Bundy further states: "The Communist movement is a disease. It is a materialistic religion. It affects the mind. It is a Satanic substitute for Christianity and the Gospel."

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, Director of Federal Bureau of Investigation has been active in combating Communism since 1919 when the Communist Party first organized in America at a convention in Chicago, Ill. Their sole purpose from the beginning was to destroy the Free World. This was more than 50 years ago and Mr. Hoover says they have not deviated from this course and is still in full effect today. He adds: "This is the enemy we face. An enemy which at this hour controls "one-third of the world's PEOPLES" and "one-quarter of the EARTH'S land surface." (March 27, 1967)

In 1957 Nikita Krushchev was interviewed before a nation-wide American television audience. With calm assurance he stated "I can prophesy that your grandchildren in America will live under socialism." (a prelude to Communism.)

Following this, Mr. Hoover aptly states: "Never has there been a time when we have so much need for one another. We need the help of all loyal Americans. The FBI CANNOT do it all alone." The quotations from the Bible, which he uses often, is closely related to this subject--"Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." He says that a step in that direction can be made by teaching courses on Communism in our schools.

Major Bundy says the "misguided" liberals and "misguided" intellectuals, in many ways, have made it easier for Communists to operate. Do we fully understand this statement? How well informed are we on the nature of Communism? Enough to protect our children and grandchildren from this evil existence?

The following questions and answers provide further proof of the above quotations.

Q.--What four men conceived and formulated the doctrine of Communism?

A.--Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin. MARX an athiest, produced the Communist Manifesto. ENGELS, a fellow German, became Marx's intellectual comrade, his financial supporter and his faithful champion. These two men formulated the basic doctrine. LENIN, took the theory and galvanized it into organization and action. He was a propagandist and agitator and is credited with the "developer" of modern-day Communism. STALIN, an old Bolshevik, worked his way up to the Party's General Secretary by using every opportunity to increase his power. Thru murder, deceit and brutality he gave Communism power to spread to other countries.

Q.--What are the five principal areas, or circles, of "thought control" keys to the Communist aim to achieve control of the U.S"? Explain each.

A.--OPEN PARTY MEMBERS--They make no effort to conceal their membership. CONCEALED PARTY MEMBERS--They do not want to be publicly known because they can often advance the Party's cause among people and in organizations where open members would be scorned. FELLOW TRAVELERS AND SYMPATHIZERS--Fellow travelers, while not a member, actively supports the Party's program for a time. The sympathizer is more passive, may or may not give active aid. They are not party members, but in some degree have come under Party control. OPPORTUNISTS--These people who are cynical and self-seeking and will support the Party if they can benefit personally, not caring if they injure the nation. DUPES--These are innocent victims, who un-knowingly are under "thought control" and does the work of the Party. Many good people have been duped into helping Communism.

Q.--Do you know the most effective tactic used by the Communist when an American makes an attempt to expose their plans?

A.--Character Assassination, by any means necessary. By subtle insinuations or outright attacks.

Q.--In which government agency was the first known cell of secret Communists set up?

A.--The State Department.

Q.--Do college graduates necessarily have a better understanding of the nature of Communism and how Communists operate than those with lesser education? Why?

A.--No, because of the Communist infiltration in many colleges, it is not taught and is not being taught in many high schools.

Q.--What is the difference between the origin of the Christian Gospel and the origin of the Social Gospel?

A.--The Christian Gospel had its origin in Jesus Christ. The Social Gospel had its origin in Karl Marx.

Q.--Name three authorities who have given documented testimony concerning Communist penetration of religious groups.

A.--J. EDGAR HOOVER, Director of FBI. HERBERT A. PHILBRICK, former undercover spy for the FBI. Dr. J.B. MATTHEWS, former staff member of the Senate Gov't. Operations Committee and author of the famous "Reds and Our Churches".

Q.--If ever there is a Communist controlled America, Mr. Hoover says the Party bosses will take over the recreational facilities, such as the hotels, country clubs and swimming pools for their private use. Many businesses, jobs, professions and institutions will be eliminated, such as city mayors, chiefs of police, salesman, stock brokers, insurance agencies, realtors, wholesalers, accountants, banks and churches. Do you understand the reasons? There are two professions (not listed above) which the Communists detest most, and these will be the first to be eliminated. Can you name them and why?

A.--(Last part of the question) THEOLOGY, because the Communists are atheists, therefore, no need for clergymen to preach the Christian Gospel. LAW, because there will be no rights for lawyers to defend.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Clifford LaPlant
January 18, 1971.

Dear Sir

Thank you for the support you gave us in communicating the availability of our Service Station Service Manual. I thought that you would appreciate learning the results of your effort.

While we knew that RV owners would appreciate this attempt to help service station owners to improve their service to recreation vehicles, and felt that we could count upon your help, we did not anticipate the reaction we have received from service station owners. This was the most gratifying aspect of the whole venture.

It proved to us that there are many service station operators who are dedicated and do desire to serve the public. So much so, that they took their time to send a letter and two bits to get information that would help them serve the recreation traveler.

Thank you, and I hope that we may continue to enjoy your gracious support.

I wish you the best the outdoors has to offer.

Sincerely,
John L. Ebeling

Viet War Pace Down Over-all With Rising Burden on South

WASHINGTON (AP) — The over-all pace of the Vietnam war appears to have turned downward during President Nixon's two years in office, although the combat burden on South Vietnam continues to be severe.

Enemy terrorism remains high. But security in the countryside is reported steadily improving and some economic indicators are pointing toward better times.

This picture emerges from U.S. and South Vietnamese statistics which are less than comprehensive and sometimes disputed, but which can be used as rough gauges on how the war is going.

Under what he terms a Vietnamization program, Nixon has aimed at turning the combat burden over to Saigon. He announced the first U.S. troop withdrawals in June 1969. By mid-1971, the administration says, the U.S. ground combat role will be virtually over.

Such critics of the Nixon program as W. Averell Harriman, former chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks and currently a Democratic foreign policy adviser, contend Vietnamization is prolonging the conflict, with the Saigon regime fighting on while Americans pull out.

With the Paris talks still showing no progress, Secretary of State William P. Rogers was asked Friday: "Where is the evidence that the war is beginning to end ... for us or end for South Vietnam as well?"

Rogers said Nixon's "major emphasis was on the war ending for us." He noted U.S. withdrawals and lower casualties, but added that over-all combat activity is down and said the war is ending too "as far as the South Vietnamese are concerned."

Pentagon figures list U.S. troop strength in Vietnam at 335,000 at the end of last month, down from 539,000 in June 1969, and U.S. combat deaths at 4,221 in 1970, a drop from 9,414 the previous year.

While U.S. combat deaths dropped last year to below half the 1969 total, South Vietnamese deaths in action stayed almost as high: 20,138 in 1970 compared with 21,833.

An over-all decrease in battle tempo can be shown by the drop in combined allied casualties. Also enemy deaths fell sharply, by allied count to 103,638 in 1970 from 156,954 in 1969.

But with the enemy shifting from large-scale actions back to guerrilla tactics, the terror count has run high.

Enemy-initiated terror incidents were reported at 1,732 through the first 11 months of 1970, up from 1,375 the year before. The number of civilians assassinated or kidnaped was averaging 1,000 a month both years.

One of the plus signs, according to allied calculations, is the hamlet security index. From a 79.2 per cent figure for the percentage of relatively secure hamlets through the country in January 1969 the index had risen to 95 per cent by the end of 1970.

On the economic side the rate of inflation was reported down slightly, from 32.1 per cent in 1969 to 29.8 per cent in 1970. South Vietnam's rice production was listed up from 5.1 million metric tons in 1969 to 5.6 million tons last year.

In transportation, 2,596 kilometers of South Vietnam's highways were officially pronounced secure in 1969 and 4,400 by mid1970. Secure waterways were listed as up from 1,171 kilometers to 1,423.

Contest for Police Chief At Malden

MALDEN–The arrival of the new year brought forth the filing of candidates for city offices for the City of Malden election to be held Tuesday, April 6. Nine positions are to be filed for four of them.

Heading the list is the office of Chief of Police with a contest already developed. Bob Dockins filed for re-election and is being opposed by D. W. (Woody) McMillian. McMillian, who served as chief of police several years ago, moved back to Malden a few weeks ago from Poplar Bluff where he had been operating a service station.

Ralph Stropp has filed for re-election as police judge, Jo Ann McCurter has filed for re-election as city collector, and George Anderson has filed for re-election as Councilman from Ward IV.

Other terms expiring this spring are: Bo McCurter, Councilman, Ward I; Leroy Evans, Councilman, Ward II; Elsie Haywood, Councilwoman, Ward III; Gordon Fritz, City Attorney; and Raynomd McElrath, City Treasurer.

Request for Opinion Being Drafted

JEFFERSON CITY–State Representative Tony Heckemeyer of Sikeston was this morning preparing a request for an opinion from state Attorney General John Danforth on the residency of Scott county Magistrate Lloyd G. "Jerry" Briggs.

Briggs, a Democrat, was elected unopposed in November. He signed documents in Alabama stating he was a resident there. Missouri law requires him to be a resident here the nine months prior to election.

Briggs contends he is a resident of Scott county, although he lived in Alabama during that period.

Thomas R. Gilmore, prosecuting attorney of Scott County, said this morning he is planning to confer with members of the county court this week to "share our feelings on the matter and compare notes."

Lots open to Elegible Low Income Families

PORTAGEVILLE–The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation announced the opening of residential lots in two localities in New Madrid county for low income citizens.

The available lots are in Risco through the Risco Community Development Association, Inc., and between highway 61 and Kewanee on route Z.

A water line runs by the Kewanee subdivision and each of the housing areas' lots is approved by the Farmers Home Administration.

By CHARLES BRADY

DEXTER — Low keyed chuckles followed by applause greeted Dexter Mayor Willis Conner's remark, "It's hard to believe that a mayor could get this kind of award."

Conner had just been named Man of the Year by the Dexter Chamber of Commerce at the annual Chamber banquet meeting last night at the Catholic Hall. Approximately 165 attended.

Toastmaster Darrel Cole announced Conner as the winner and told about his activities. Carl Benbrook of the Cape Girardeau Chamber of Commerce presented the award.

Conner, 51, is a life - long Dexter resident. He is a member of the Missouri Municipal League and has served five years as mayor.

During his administration, many miles of streets have been paved. The mayor was instrumental in providing facilities for a Chamber of Commerce office in the city administration building.

Percy Clippard received the 1969 Man of the Year award.

Members of the Sikeston, Bloomfield, Malden, Jefferson City, and Cape Girardeau Chamber of Commerce were guests at the meeting.

Chamber of Commerce officers installed were Bob Robins, president; Les Sleinkofer, first vice president; Don Evans, second vice president; and Berry Holder, secretary and treasurer.

MAYOR WILLIS CONNER, right, accepts a plaque from Carl Benbrook of the Cape Girardeau Chamber of Commerce after being named Man of the Year by the Dexter Chamber of Commerce last night.

Members of the board of directors are Gordon Hart, E. L. Keathley, Joe Weber, Thurston Hill, and Jack Estes.

Jack Estes was president last year.

David Schmidt, Kansas City, spoke on "How to Improve Your Retail Image".

Impression, contact, and investing in the future were the three main points he stressed.

"People don't resist change," he said. "They just resist being changed by other people."

Service awards were presented to members of the Dexter Chamber of Commerce by Estes.

Operator Struck, Station Set Afire

ESSEX, Mo. (AP) – Two men who slugged a Southeast Missouri service station operator in a robbery attempt apparently were angered when they found no money and set fire to the station, the highway patrol reported Tuesday night.

The day's receipts had been removed from the station earlier.

The station operator, E.N. Cobb, was taken to a Dexter Memorial hospital for treatment of a concussion and head cuts, the patrol said.

The station was extensively damaged.

E. D. Cobb at the MFA station was hit on the head and the station set on fire at 8:30 p.m.

The patrol said Cobb was working on a stove when two men entered the station and said they wanted gas in a two - gallon can. After they purchased the gas, they poured it inside the station and set it afire.

Cobb was struck on the head. He is in Dexter Memorial hospital with a concussion.

The patrol said Cobb described the men as "hippie type looking". Cobb said one man was about 30, five feet, six inches tall, and weighed about 160 pounds. He said the other man had a beard.

The inside of the station was burned out.

By MIKE JENSEN

A real life drama had a happy ending Saturday due to the quick thinking of telephone operators and first aid efforts of one citizen.

Operator, Virginia Carlisle received a call Saturday from a frightened little girl who said her sister had fallen in a bathtub and was unconscious. The operator asked the girl her name and address so that assistance might be given but in the excitement the little girl could only say that she lived west of Bertrand.

Jewell Crabb, observing Carlisle, realized an emergency was unfolding and alerted the chief operator and the service assistant.

The little girl hung up still giving no address.

The operators tried to locate the child on an emergency ringback system, but efforts were unsuccessful.

Operator, Dorothy Young, who lives in the vicinity of the child attempted to call her husband at the Riley Service Station on East Malone. Her husband was not there, but she told her story to station manager Richard Riley and he agreed to try to locate the injured child.

Riley and an assistant drove to the vicinity and saw a young girl holding a small child on the side of the road.

Riley said this morning when he first saw the child he thought she was dead. She was black around the eyes and appeared lifeless, he said. Riley decided not to wait for an ambulance but to take her immediately to a hospital.

En route to the hospital Riley administered mouth to mouth resucitation and before he arrived the child was breathing and "moved her legs."

The child, Ann Marie Antonaccio, aged three, was admitted to the Missouri Delta Community hospital Saturday and is scheduled to be released today. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Antonaccio.

A WATER FAUCET in Clayton Park was not turned off before freezing weather began. It has created it's own sculpture. The city light and water office has been notified and the faucet will be shut off today.

Policy Shift Hinted

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The semiofficial Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram said today Palestinian guerrillas had dropped opposition to a peaceful settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict, but a spokesman for one major commando group denied it had done so.

A spokesman for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine said in Beirut, Lebanon, that the PFLP "continues to oppose all efforts for a settlement and continues to believe that the only way to liberate Palestine is through armed struggle."

The spokesman made clear, however, that he was speaking only for the front and not for other guerrilla groups.

Al Ahram said the central committee of the Palestine guerrilla organization at a meeting in Amman adopted a resolution expressing "unanimous support for any political moves by Arab states to liquidate the consequences of the June 1967 aggression."

The resolution was endorsed by the radical, militant Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine as well as the more moderate Al Fatah organization, largest of the guerrilla groups.

Previously the Palestinians had vehemently denounced all Arab participation in peacemaking efforts as treason to the Palestinian cause.

The resolution was adopted "in the course of an over-all reconsideration of the circumstances of the Palestinian movement," Al Ahram said.

The guerrillas have been demanding the establishment of "a secular democratic state" to replace Israel and rejected the November 1967 U.N. Security Council resolution as a basis for settlement. But today Yasir Arafat, head of Al Fatah and the combined organization, was quoted by Al Ahram as saying:

"Egypt's resolute stand on the implementation of the November resolution leaves no room for doubt about its sincerity and determination on the path of struggle."

The 1967 council resolution called for Arab recognition of Israel's right to exist as a nation with assured and recognized boundaries and territories wrested from the Arabs in the 1967 war.

The leader of the Popular Front, George Habash, also endorsed Egypt's position, saying: "We know that Egypt—as it has shown during the latest events in Jordan—is our greatest friend and bulwark."

Crime Triumphs at Noranda Building Site

In The Cape Girardeau Southeast Missourian

CAPE GIRARDEAU — An eight - year member of Local 282 of the laborers Union here claims gambling, drinking, stealing, operation of private businesses and featherbedding are being conducted by union foremen at the Noranda Aluminum Co. construction site south of New Madrid.

The union member, interviewed Monday by The Missourian, said he could tell a "hell of a lot more", than what the Missouri Task Force on Organized Crime charged in its report released two weeks ago. The report cited as fact much of what the union local member charged in the interview.

Asking that his name not be publicized, the union member claimed he has seen both foremen and laborers of Local 282 "sitting around in shacks drinking and playing cards" instead of doing the work they were being paid for.

The laborer, employed at Noranda nine months last year, said he was told upon reporting to work one morning to do a job which took about 10 minutes of his time "and then go and hide out."

He said he would sometimes go into work shacks and see card games in progress with as much as $100 to $200 at stake.

Whisky, he said, is presently being sold for 50 cents a shot and he knew of at least three "hot dog and soda stands" being operated for a profit by laborers and their foremen on the construction site.

He said superintendents of Kaiser Engineers, contractors for the construction of the huge $191 million aluminum reduction processing plant and rod and wire mill, had ordered the gambling and drinking to halt. "But it would start up again only a couple days later," he said.

Likewise, the food selling operations were ordered closed, but they would be in operation "after the pressure wore off," he added.

"The foremen and some laborers would bring their booze in a lunchbox or other containers. They'd ice the beer down in water coolers and as many as eight or 10 men would sit around in the shack all day gambling and drinking," he asserted.

He said some union foremen ordered their men to steal items.

"A few of the laborers would steal for the foremen," he said, "after they (the laborers) were told they.d get some overtime to stay late so they could steal."

He continued:

"You could really get some overtime if you stole a lot. One crew came in two hours ahead of time and could get a lot out of the plant."

He said he heard one laborer tell another he would never steal again for a certain foreman because a $75 wrench the laborer had stolen for himself and stored in a shack was grabbed by his foreman before he could get his hands on it.

He said some of the laborers would present their foremen with a fifth of whisky when they reported to work in the morning and then be excused from work the remainder of the day. They were paid, however, for that day.

"Foremen would be constantly trying to collect money for something," he charged. "One time we were asked to give $6 or get off the job so that a union business agent could get his fee for getting us a raise," he stated.

"Another time they asked us to give $6 so they could buy our business agent a Christmas present." He said the collections were in excess of labor dues of $12 per month in addition to $13 payable quarterly.

One laborer, he said, was paid for two weeks he was away from the job last summer during a stay in camp with the Army National Guard.

He also asserted that certain southeast Missouri county sheriffs would "get a man on the job if they would pay him $100. I know one guy from Charleston who couldn't read or write who says he paid a sheriff for the job.

Scott County Sheriff John Dennis said at Benton this morning he has never received or "been offered" any money to assist persons in getting jobs at the Noranda site.

Sheriff Dennis said he has assisted persons in getting jobs at Noranda just as "I would help someone to get a job as a garbage collector."

The Scott county sheriff said he has received reports of tools being stolen at Noranda, but "so far we haven't been able to come up with anything."

"I would say," Sheriff Dennis commented, "none of the Noranda deal has added crime to our county."

"Labor foremen would come around once in awhile and tell you you're working too damn hard," he said.

"Then they'd say if you want a job tomorrow you better slow down," he stated. "Go hide out in the weeds awhile, there's no work to do, you want to get laid off?"

He said laborers could "take off damn near anytime they took a notion."

He said he knew of one Cape Girardeau man who was offered a job by a union official on the basis "of just sitting around in a warehouse all day and stealing a few things for me." The informant said the man refused the job.

He said he was assigned for several days to keep water out of an electricity line manhole. "One or two water buckets full would seep in all day and all night," he said, "and the rest of the time I would be wandering around trying to keep out of sight."

At the end of each day, he said, he was instructed to fill the holes back up with water so that there would be work for him the next day.

Hearnes Bases $1.7 Billion Budget on Tax Hike Renewal

JEFFERSON CITY AP)—In drafting his 1971-72 budget, Gov. Warren E. Hearnes assumed that the Missouri Legislature would make the present income tax rates permanent. So today he recommended spending a record $1.7 billion.

If the present income tax increases are not retained, the state's revenue will fall nearly $48 million short of covering Hearnes' budget.

The governor also suggested a $250 million bond issue for capital improvements at state institutions and a $150 million bond issue for controlling water pollution.

If the legislature approves, the bond issues will be submitted to the voters. The governor emphasized the need to meet the cost of existing programs and commitments, including a $70 million increase in state aid to schools. He said there is no leeway for new programs.

He recommended a 5 per cent pay increase for state workers, effective July 1, and a similar increase July 1, 1972. He called this "a matter of substantial priority."

On the whole, the governor said in the budget book sent up to the legislators, "this is a realistic budget which takes into account the numerous demands for additional state services as well as the practicalities of life so far as income is concerned.

"Our first commitment must be to properly finance our major state services of mental health, welfare, public schools and higher education. This budget meets that commitment with a carefully drawn blueprint of expenditures which will make Missouri a better state during the coming year."

The major state services Hearnes mentioned account for more than 84 per cent of the budget total.

He said only one legislative step is necessary to make it a balanced budget — "I recommend that you remove the one-year limitation from the income tax legislation which was adopted last month by the 75th General Assembly."

The special session which ended last month limited individual and corporate income tax increases to 1971. That would provide no increase to apply on the last six months of the 1971-72 fiscal year ending June 30, 1972.

If the one-year limitation is removed, the governor estimated this would provide $26.8 million in general revenue (tax) money for the fiscal year.

Figuring on this basis, the governor recommended total general revenue appropriations of $780.9 million and said this would leave a balance on June 30, 1972, of $2,198,750.

Without extension of the income tax rates, the 1971-72 general revenue estimate would fall $47.7 million short of meeting the governor's budget recommendations.

The total budget of $1.7 billion includes about $474 million in highway and other earmarked funds plus $517.6 million from federal funds.

Hearnes urged immediate action on two things—an emergency appropriation bill of $11.9 million left hanging by last month's special session and the $70 million increase in state aid to schools so local school boards can make any necessary property tax proposals at the April school elections.

The governor withheld proposed recommendations on urban problems until later, probably next week, but made an unexplained reference to it.

"State aid to public schools," he said, "consists of much more than the foundation program, and a portion of my message on urban affairs will have an effect upon school finances. I urge you to carefully review that message when it is presented to you."

His office declined to clarify this vague reference.

In recommending the $250 million capital improvements bond issue, the governor noted that he listed major construction priorities at state schools and institutions at the special session two months ago. Today he said the state cannot meet the needs on a pay-as-you-go basis.

"It is my recommendation," he said, "that you carefully select and appropriate for those capital improvements in order that the people may know exactly what would be built when they vote on the bond issue."

In the 1971-72 budget, Hearnes recommended immediate capital improvements of $17.9 million, compared with institutional requests that totaled more than $224 million. The biggest chunk recommended was $2.5 million for the University of Missouri's four campuses.

In his opening message to the Legislature, the governor announced he plans to combine water pollution, air conservation and water resources programs under a new environmental control board which he would appoint.

That would be accomplished by executive action, subject to legislative veto later.

He returned to the water pollution problem in today's message by recommending a bond issue of $150 million to help cities pay for costly sewage systems and disposal plants. Combined with local and federal funds, he said that would generate a $600-million sewage system construction program.

Under the present federal law, the municipality pays 20 per cent of the cost of such projects, the state 25 per cent and the federal government the remaining 55 per cent.

In addition to the $70 million increase in state aid to schools to meet a 1969 legislative promise, the governor recommended these other increases in major programs.

Request for Residency Opinion Asked

JEFFERSON CITY--State Representative Tony Heckemeyer of Sikeston was this morning preparing a request for an opinion from state Attorney General John Danforth on the residency of Scott county Magistrate Lloyd G. "Jerry" Briggs.

Briggs, a Democrat, was elected unopposed in November. He signed documents in Alabama stating he was a resident there. Missouri law requires him to be a resident here the nine months prior to election.

Briggs contends he is a resident of Scott county, although he lived in Alabama during that period.

Thomas R. Gilmore, prosecuting attorney of Scott County, said he is planning to confer with members of the county court this week to "share our feelings on the matter and compare notes."

New Procedures To Improve 92nd Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the 92nd Congress opens Thursday the Senate will begin operating under new rules and procedures to improve its efficiency and fairness.

And if proposals advanced by four first-term senators are accepted, the Senate, with thoughts of last year's marathon session still in mind, will try to eliminate some ancient time-consuming practices.

The changes certain to take effect result from last year's Legislative Reorganization Act, an outgrowth of a 1965-66 committee study.

Major changes under the new act curtail the power of committee chairmen without touching the seniority system; eliminate much committee secrecy; curtail prerogatives of senior senators; give Congress tools for more effective control over the budget, and provide greater congressional overseeing of all government operations.

Most of these provisions apply to the House as well as the Senate.

Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.; William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio; Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, and Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., have met a generally friendly reception with their ideas for reorganizing the Senate's work practices.

Their proposal would have the Senate meet each day at noon to give committees time to function. In recent years leaders often have set an earlier convening time to clear long-delayed business.

Lengthy speeches in which senators traditionally have bared their souls on any number of subjects would be shunted to a special period at the end of the day.

Once the legislation began to flow from committees, the Senate would work five days a week instead of the customary two or three. But every month, to give members a chance to visit home states, a five-day recess would be called from Wednesday to Monday.

28th Joins Police Office

City Manager W. Raymert Miller announced the appointment today of Ray Merrick, 27, Canalou, as a police patrolman.

The appointment is effective today.

Inman Says No 1971 Rate Increases

E.R. Inman, director of Municipal Utilities, said this morning an increase in "anticipated revenues will offset the rise in costs and prevent any rate increase by Sikeston Light and Water Company for 1971."

His statements was handed out following a meeting of the board when 1971 operating budgets were approved for electrical, water and sanitary sewers.

A substantial increase in operating expense for all departments was reported.

Water rates were raised last year.

New Economic Policy Council Established

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has established a top-level council to coordinate international economic policy.

Nixon announced the formation of the council Tuesday. He said the executive director will be Peter G. Peterson, formerly chairman of the board of Bell & Howell Co.

The President said the purpose of the council is to provide consistency between domestic and foreign economic policy, create a clear, top-level focus for international economic policy issues such as trade, investment, balance of payments and finance, and to coordinate those areas with basic foreign policy.

Nixon himself will be chairman of the new body. Secretary of State William P. Rogers will preside in the President's absence.

Pemiscot County Election Officials Fined for Fraud

CARUTHERSVILLE, (AP) — Fines and suspended prison sentences were imposed Tuesday on six or 19 Pemiscot County election officials indicted for alleged fraudulent practices in connection with the August primary election.

All six pleaded guilty to fraud and three to additional charges of perjury in connection with teetimony before a Pemiscot County Grand Jury. Charges against a seventh were dismissed.

E.K. Halstead, Billy Joe Howell and Guyendall Potts pleaded guilty to fraud and perjury and Jeff Northern, Paul Fowler and Herman Clark to Northern was sentenced to one year in prison and a $1,000 fine. Fowler and Clark were given six-month sentences and $500 fines.

The grand jury report said it found evidence of erasures and markovers on ballots of the Holland precinct in the southern part of the county. Also, the report said, the ballots contained fraud charges.

Judge William Ragland sentenced Halstead, Howell and Potts to one year in prison on each charge and suspended the sentences. He fined Halstead $1,000 and Howell and Potts $500 each.

names of dead voters and unregistered persons and were not turned in to the county clerk's office until 20 hours after the polls closed.

Prosecuting Atty. Arthur Stephenson dismissed charges against Jim Moss of Caruthersville.

The 12 still under indictment will appear in court in late February or early March.

The six men sentenced Tuesday had been scheduled to appear in Judge Ragland's court Feb. 4.

The outcome of five countywide races was reversed as a result of an investigation into the primary election.

JANUARY

Meadows and upland fields and ridge crests are covered with snow. Brooks and creeks run slowly beneath the ice and the muted music blends with the spirit of winter.

Naked elms in the lowlands stand like etchings against a stark background. At dawn and before sunset, slanting rays strike jewel gleams from sculputred drifts along the roadsides.

There are pleasant January days when a gold platter of sun shines from a blue sky. Smoke spirals upward from farmhouse chimneys and drifts slowly away— a black hyphen on day's page.

The sound of axes comes from the woodlot, monotone notes that fit the mood of the season. The meeting house bell strikes the hour and the notes float far across the landscape.

There are other days when blizzards howl down from the northland and the wind moans around the house and cries in the chimney. Snow fills the paths around the farmstead and the countryman, listening to the storm in the night, knows he will have paths to shovel again.

Winter's countenance does not mean that life has stopped. Wild animals make their rounds; the chicadees come to the feeder. Buds are safely wrapped and waiting for the time of resurrection.

The First Month is a testing time. It is the period of simplicity. But he who is tuned to Nature's plan, knows that when time is fulfilled, the awakening never fails.

THE MELLOWED MARXISTS

How far the Communists have "mellowed" is being observed, with not a little dismay, by American business firms with investments in Chile. With each passing day, the "new" Marxist, Salvador Allende, reveals more and more of the old, familiar features of the Dictatorship of the Proletariat.

Thus, Allende has moved to take over American investments in Chile valued in the hundreds of millions of dollars. First on the target was the Anaconda copper mines, which not only represent about $400 million in holdings but also two thirds of all the copper ore mined by Anaconda Co. to meet its present requirements. The Kennecott Copper Corp., which has invested $250 million in developing copper mining in Chile stands to lose about 25% of its present volume of ore. A thirdAmerican company, Cerro Corp., has invested $35 million in a new mine which began operations only last July.

Announcing the seizure of holdings by Ralston Purina and the National Brass Company, Allende arrogantly declared. "We don't want some Americans to stay too long in Chile. If a foreigner does not comply with the laws of Chile, he is going to see how fast the borders will open to him so he can return to his homeland."

Allende neglected to explain that all of the solemn agreements made between American investors and the Chilean government were, and continue to be, in strict accord with the law; but, as virtual dictator of Chile, Allende has himself violated the standing laws, and substituted new, Communist "laws" which enable him to "expropriate" and "nationalize" (diplomatic words for "steal") any property he chooses.

The Wall StreetJournal reports that since 1968, the Marxist regime in Peru, northern neighbor to Chile, has seized foreign investments totaling more than $850 million. Among the American losers are American Smelting and Refining Co., Cerro Corp, Phleps Dodge, and Newmont Mining Corp. The Red Peruvian regime has taken over oil, telephone utilities, banks, newspapers, sugar plantations and foreign auto assembly plants, according to the Journal.

If the Communists have mellowed, they are doing a remarkable job of concealing it.

The grand ballroom was filled with Viet Con flags and the air was crammed with anti-American statements. Was it a meeting of the North Vietnamese Presidium? No, it was the first annual meeting of the Fund for Education in World Order, in New York City. There were speeches by Chet Huntley, Senators Jake Javits, Eugene McCarthy, and another by Sen. J. William Fulbright, which was interrupted by antiwar demonstrators. No one said a word about the display of the Viet Cong flags, but objections were raised as to the "Poor taste and discourtesy" of the demonstrators. No one asked that the flags be removed, but Jerome Wiesner, Provost of MIT, did indicate he'd like to invite "my Russian friends"to the U.S. to see evidence of disarmament steps when they are taken. The Rev. William Sloane Coffin, indicted for counseling young men to avoid the draft, said that "Marx was essentially right when he said religion is the opiate of the people." The whole affair was a get-together of think-alikes who didn't like the Sentinel antiballistic missile system.

THE NEW IMPERIALISM

The charge of United States "imperialism" grows tiresome.

Communists, socialists, UN delegates, Black Panthers, SDS, peaceniks, and even some brilliant college students - all accuse the United States of imperialism. What are their grounds?

All in one week a young churchman, a young attorney, a young teacher, several young businessmen, a new housewife, and a college senior wrote letters to me charging the United States with imperialism.

The word, and the evil it is supposed to represent, is used by a vast number of Americans as well as by foreign critics. "Imperialism" and "capitalism" are written, shouted, and printed in denunciation of all things American.

Nothing demonstrates the weakness of many anti-American movements more than their hurling the charge of "imperialistic" at nations of the Western world, and especially at the United States.

Since 1946 the British Empire has released 25 colonies and territories. Since 1948, France has given up 18 colonies and territories, including Viet Nam, Algeria, and the French Congo. The British Empire was stripped of Western Samona, Tonga, and Zanzibar. Belgium gave up three of its territories, including the Belgian Congo. Spain, New Zealand, and the Netherlands each released one colonial property. The United States gave independence to the Philippines.

No major nation can match the record of the United States for respecting and honoring the territory and possessions of other lands. Anticipating the usual criticism directed toward anyone who is proud of the land of his birth, I make no claim that the United States is without fault or that its record is without blemish. In balance, this nation attained its present level of population, industrial might, wealth, and power with a minimum of growth by territorial conquest and with a maximum of growth by legal purchase.

The United States respected the territorial homelands of our defeated enemies in both World Wars I and II. United States loans, grants, leadership, and technical knowledge restored economic and domestic stability to Japan and West Germany following World War II. We have helped the postwar governments of our two major World War II enemies reach the heights in production, commerce, and wealth in just twenty years.

Against the record of free nations that have released protectorates, territories, and colonies to independent status stands the record of international communism. Since 1917 the U.S.S.R. has expanded its empire by conquering or absorbing 33 once- independent sovereign lands and territories.

In 1900 you would have been hard- pressed to pull together 200 men in the world who were dedicated to the grandiose philosophies of Karl Marx. Indeed, only 17 men planned the Russian Revolution. For sixteen years the United States refused to recognize the butchers of Moscow as any kind of legal government in Russia. It was not until the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt reversed that policy and gave official recognition to Moscow that world communism could make dramatic headway.

Following World War II the United States, Britain, France, and China yielded to Soviet pressure and stood by while communism took over vast areas of land and enslaved 200 million more people. Today, over a billion people are captive to communist imperialism. Authorities estimate that more than 100 million human beings have died at the hands of Communist murderers. By comparison, Adolf Hitler was a piker, Genghis Khan was a Sunday School teacher, Napoleon was a welfare worker, and Kaiser Wilhelm was a water boy.

In the past ten years alone, 20 once- independent or neutral nations have been brought within the Soviet or Red Chinese orbit of communist imperialism and influence. That includes Burma, Nigeria, Kenya, Uganda, Mauritius, and Zambia, all once part of the British colonial empire; Tanzania, once part of the German Empire; Chad, a former French possession; and the Congo Republic, which was one Belgian.

Throughout the free world - and especially in the United States - former citizens of Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, and their descendants, struggle to keep the dream of freedom for their homelands alive despite a growing and colossal indifference on the part of the average American. Sons and daughters of Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, and the entire eastern segment of Europe are being gradually silenced in their pleas for our defense of freedom for captive people. The normal channels of communication such as national radio and television networks, the major press, and magazines and books are open to millions of our own callous citizens while they are all but closed to organizations fiercely devoted to the dignity of man and true freedom.

Any pretense that Russia has a different relationship with the communist colonial empire than did England with the former British kingdom is pure nonsense. The only difference lies in semantics and in the style of human treatment. The Western colonial powers gave a modicum of freedom and vast dignity to the territories they developed and controlled- while communism, Moscow- style, holds the communist empire in the tight grip of the iron fist and the heavy tread of military boots. If you doubt that, you might ask Hungary, Poland, and Czechoslovakia who runs their modern lands. You might ask the people who today live in Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania who controls their lives.

Red China dominates the land mass of old China, and Albania is her most faithful servant. Thus the U.S.S.R. remains the mightiest of two communist imperialistic powers, with heavy influence through the threat of international blackmail upon what sometimes are called "third- world nations."

The cruel and grisly joke of all of this is that Russia makes great propaganda about "wars of national liberation." No matter what conditions exist in any nation on earth, should that nation ever be "liberated" - communist style - its total miseries and woes will only multiply. In some instances it might trade slightly better food, better housing, and a few clothes for a heavy iron yoke around the neck, rejection of God, and complete obedience to the Communist Party masters.

The only real imperialism and colonialism being exercised today is that which flows out of Moscow and Peking. The Western world foolishly yielded to what it considered to be world opinion and dropped some of its colonial "children" before they had the slightest notion how to maintain a decent and orderly life for themselves.

Our leaders and our people are much too patient and generous with critics of parts or all of our American system. Not only do we fail to demand that false accusers give evidence that we are evil as imperialists and capitalists, but too many people fall into the trap of using the terms themselves when the overwhelming weight of evidence is that we use our wealth and power to improve man's status in life rather than to destroy it.

TAXPAYING PROPERTY LOST

Press reports tell of cancellation by an investor - owned electric power company of plans to build a 750,000 - kilowatt nuclear power plant in New York State. An official of the power company stated that cancellation was caused by "difficulties and delays in securing regulatory approvals" for the proposed site of the plant.

The company has assigned its contracts for the acquirement of nuclear equipment to the Power Authority of New York, which plans to build a $200 million nuclear facility of its own. Thus, instead of the taxpaying, investor - owned company putting up more than $100 million for construction of a new nuclear plant, the taxpayers of New York State will be called upon to make the investment. The private plant would have meant a sizeable increase in revenue to local governments, since every doll r of private investment is subject to taxation. The state - owned facility will operate by a different set of tax rules. government projects generally escape most of the taxes normally paid by a private enterprise.

Government at all levels is searching for new sources of tax revenue. from all accounts, New York State is no exception. If anything, it is in a wosse plight than most other states. Since development of private industries and payrolls is a primary source of tax revenue, it would seem to be bad business from the standpoint of the taxpayers for any state to enter a business enterprise that can be done equally well or better by taxpaying private enterprise.

The publicly - regulated, investor - owned utility industry is one of the giggest and most reliable taxpayers in the nation. Taxpayers have little reason to cheer when a tax - subsidized state enterprise takes the place of this kinh of taxpaying private business.

THAT BANK LIMP

MY WIDOWED mother decided one summer to apply for a job as a waitress in a nearby resort hotel. She got along famously, had a ball and collected a staggering amount of tips. One day I went there unannounced and noticed that she was limping quite a bit as she left one table. I hurried over and asked concernedly,

"What's wrong, Mom? Do your feet hurt that much?"

She replied, with a wink, "they don't hurt at all, but I find if I limp a little, the tips are better!"

MANY STUDENTS USING MARIHUANA

If medical authorities can't convince medical students that the use of marihuana is ill-advised, perhaps even dangerous, how then can the population at - large be dissuaded?

This rhetorical question arises after a recent study at four unidentified medical schools.

The results of the study -- involving some 1,700 medical students (1,063 of whom responded) -- indicated more than half of them have used marihuana in the past, while 30% of those questioned said they were presently using marihuana.

A team of six psychiatrists conducted the study at the schools -- two of which were on the East Coast, one in the Midwest, and the fourth on the West Coast.

Conducting the study were MDs Martin Lipp, Samuel Benson, Jared Tinklenberg and Frederick Melges from Stanford University Medical Center; Zebulon Taintor of the State University of New York at Buffalo, and Margaret Peterson, University of Nebraska College of Medicine.

The doctors said most of the medical students who participated in the study do not argue with the opinion that marihuana is a dangerous drug.

OLD PROPERTIES NEVER DIE — JUST KEEP EATING TAXES

With a few thousand dollars a fellow could pick up some fine unused property and buildings that Uncle Sam has had in Madrid or Rotterdam for 18 years, or a piece of Curacao he's held on to for 17 years, notes Tax Foundation, Inc. As of midyear, the State Department's Office of Foreign Building Operations (FBO) said it hoped soon to sell these holdings as well as some others.

The notice of intent to sell came soon after the General Accounting Office's investigation of long - term holdings of foreign property, most for government use.

GAO said the Department reported approximately $273 million invested in 1,588 government owned and long - term - leased real propesty at the end of 1968. Also possessed by Uncle Sam were 4,752 properties leased on a short - term basis at an annual cost of about $23 million.

The "watchdog" agency's investigation of the acquisition and management of foreign holdings revealed 26 real properties costing about $2.7 million had been retained by FBO for periods of up to 20 years as of the end of 1967— even though there appeared to be no current need for them.

As of the 1967 date the Federal government's individual property investments ranged from $556,787 in land in Beirut, Leganon, where an office building is planned, to $17,188 and $20,214 for two pieces of property in Kaduna, Nigeria. Each had been held for seven years without being used at the time of the GAO investigation. The Curacao piece had a government in vestment in it of $11,666 two years ago, but a buyer "willing to pay a reasonable price has not as yet been found," according to a report dated last May.

Near central Madrid is a 37-room residence for the government's Deputy Chief of Mission valued at between $750,000 and $815,000. The government's investment in this property is $69,000. About $291,000 had been invested in other Madrid property

The GAO however, said that continued holding of these properties was "questionable," either because of high maintenance costs or because if sold the proceeds could be used to get more suitable property.

In 1949, FBO got property in Rotterdam for about $64,700 for proposed new consulate offices.

In 1963, said GAO, it was proposed to sell the property since closing of the consulate was anticipated. However, in 1966 FBO said the building would go up. In 1967 GAO's investigation showed no consulate building plans through f.y. 1972. In April this year, FBO said it would sell the property if the consulate is discontinued.

OIL SHIPMENT BY SUBMARINE SEEN

Nuclear - powered submarine tankers have been proposed to move the Alaskan oil under the ice to an ice-free North Atlantic port, whese the oil would be transferred to conventional tankers for delivery to U.S. East Coast destinations.

These 170,000 - ton submersibles could traverse the Northwest Passage or move under the ice of the Arctic Ocean to the open sea, according to General Dynamics Corp.

Roger Lewis, General Dynamics president, said that the proposals were made after extensive technical feasibility and cost evaluation studies showed the submarine to be an entirely practical and economically attractive means for moving arctic oil.

"Several aspects of the submarine's inherent flexibility are of special interest," Mr. Lewis said. "Capable of being loaded either on the surface or while submerged, it can adjust its route as required to service possible new arctic oil discoveries and may be especially advantageous for moving oil from the Arctic islands, should oil be found there."

H.L. Hunt Says

WHOSE CHILDREN?

The family has long been regarded as the cornerstone of our society, and rightly so. Yet many proposals are now being made to take away from parents their primary responsibility for the upbringing of children, and bestow this authority on the government. These proposals were widely discussed and applauded at the White House Conference on Children held in Washington last December. Dr. Edward Zigler, head of the Office Child Development of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, declared that the conference's primary purpose was to create a powerful lobby to advance these proposals.

This lobby would push for governemt day-care centers which would go far beyond simply providing a place for children of working mothers to stay. In effect these new centers would unsurp the parent's role in providing moral, social and religious training.

According to columnist Paul Scott, a confidential HEW study declares that a day -care center which cares for a child from his sixth month to his sixth year will have more than 8,000 months to teach him values and beliefs and would be a powerful and primary influence upon him.

The White House Conference also called for a government financed "Child Advocacy" program, by which government would intervene between parents and child. Although no one denies that a few children are cruelly mistreated, our present laws are quite adequate to deal with these situations. We do not need to give the government broad powers to override the rightful authority of all parents. Congress should promptly defeat all proposals to undermine and divide the family. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--As befits the First Dog of the nation, President's Nixon's handsome Irish setter, King Timahoe, has traveled cross country in a luxury class Air Force Jet.

Gone for Nixon are those threadbare days in 1952 when he cried to the voters about his little mongrel Checkers and his wife's cloth coat.

Last summer, instead he dispatched the presidential mutt from Washington to San Clemente, Calif., in a remodeled 707 with the same pampering usually accorded high officials.

President Nixon leans toward the Franklin D. Rossevelt rather than the Lyndon B. Johnson school of dog-handling. FDR also treated his Scotty Fala to luxurious trips, while LBJ hoisted his beagles by their ears.

This elevation of pets has been a ruler's prerogative since the Emperor Caligula gave his horse, Incitatus, a retunue of slaves and announced the horse would be made a consul. Nixon, in this tradition, summoned King Timahoe to San Clemente last summer. At Andrews Air Force Base, outside Washington, officers were wryly informed only that an "important personage" would accompany White House aides to California.

To their astonishemet, the "important personage" turned out to be the dog, tongue lolling, coat sleek as a four-star general's. One anti-canine member of the traveling party said King Timahoe was treated more like a dignitary than a dog.

At San Clemente, when the dog first disembarked, our sousces at the airport thought the trip had been made by King Timahoe in regal solitude. But the setter, named after the hometown of Nixon's Irish Milhouse forebears, had merely left the plane separately.

ELEPHANTS, TOO

The White House has not limited the space on Presidential planes to dogs. In June, when the President sent a group of governors, Senators and congressmen to Indochina to study the war, they airlifted back some artificial animals.

At Saigon, the distinguished passengers became entranced by some glazed ceramic elephants. Repbulican and Democratic bigwigs alike sent out government underlings to buy them up as status gifts for GOP friends. By the time the plane was ready to go, the delegates had acquired 45 of the large ceramic pachyderms.

Enroute back to Washington, the elephant-buyers decided it would be politically disastrous for news photographers to catch them deplaning from a "war mission" laden with expensive, silly-looking elephants. The Custom Bureau had already agreed to clear them with whatever gifts they brought in, so the stage was set for the great elephant smuggle.

The sumptous Air Force airliner taxied in. Newsmen and cameramen rushed up. Somber as only all-night partyers and brainwashed briefees can be, the delegates told of the ordeals they had gone through.

Only after the newsmen had left were the glazed elephants quietly unloaded and delivered to the delegation members.

Footnote: The VIP traffic at Andrews picked up around Christmas time. No less than four "classified" planed loads of junketeering congressmen and officials arrived at the base with Santa-loads of gifts for themselves and friends. These included furniture, lamps, vases, $1,000 antiuqes, all hauled through Andrews gates while customs agents looked the other way. Ordinary citizens can bring in only $100 worth of duty-free gifts.

PHONY REFORMS

Instead of unseating the House's encrusted chairmen, the House Democratic caucus seems more intent upon talking chairmenships away from some of the most vigoruous younger members.

This is the effect of Rep. Julie Butler Hansen's milksop proposals to reform the White House seniority system.

What happened is clear. Mrs. Hansen and her ten colleagues on a select committee worked so hard to find a compromise which would get past the HOuse leadership tha they scuttled reform.

The proposals explicitly block democratic elections of committee chairman to the delight of the creaky octogenarians and septuagenarians who rule Congress. And a proposal intended as a mild reform actually will knife some of Congress' hardest workers.

This is a clause that would bar a congressman, no matter how efficeint he is, from chairing two legislative subcommittees. For example, it would rob Rep. John Moss, D—Calif. of either the gavel he has used to protect freedom of information or the one he has wielded in behalf of investors.

It would reduce the power of Rep. Henry Reuss, D—Wis., to fight the polluters or the greedy bankers, depending on which subcommittee he would lose . Rep. Dante Fascell, D—Fla., would have to give up his power to reform law enforcement or lose his effectiveness on Latin American affairs.

Other dynamic younger members with two committees include Reps. L.H. Fountain, D—N.C., the drug industry reformer; Leonor Sullivan, D—Mo., the truth-in-lending battler; John Dingell, D—Mich., enemy of the Penn Central giveaway; and John Blatnik, D—Mich., another anti-polluter.

Two of the House's few blacks typically, would have to give up subcommittees. One, Charles Diggs, D—Mich., would lose either his leadership in fights for Washington's poor, or his top job on the African Affairs subcommittee.

The most ironic aspect of the reform is that it would allow such ancient husks as Bill Colmer, D—Miss., to keep on leading the powerful Rules Committee, but would force Wright Patman, D—Tex., 77, the only on of the ancients still fighting like a young lion, to step down from two of his three chairmanships.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most pitiable figures of our times is the man who doesn't like his job—and there are millions who don't.

They would like to launch a fresh career but feel they can't. They are up to their gluteal maximus in the responsibilities of raising a family, paying off a mortgage, and keeping an adequate supply of gin stored under the kitchen sink.

Is there nothing they can do except go on living a life of noisy desperation? Yes, there is. If they are bored with their present job, they can obtain relief by moonlighting on another job which will enable them to express themselves more fully.

Here are a few moonlight jobs that one might find appealing:

Piano tuner in an Arabian harem.

Ghost write for Harold Stassen's 1972 political comeback.

Beanbag pitcher for the Dallas Cowboys.

Posing for a sculptor of department store window dummies.

Proofreader or picture editor for a pornography firm.

Tickettaker for the first presentation in Keokuk, Iowa, of an opera sung in Chinese.

Night bodyguard for Mae West.

A door-to-door brassiere salesman.

Valet to a rich midget.

The backdoor watcher at Ft. Knox.

Food taster at Maxim's in Paris.

Consultant for Dr. Joyce Brothers during the week and, on weekends, for Margaret Mead.

Toupee cataloguer for Georgie Jessel, Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra.

Wine steward for Dean Martin.

English Teacher for Buddy Hackett.

Cultural czar of Las Vegas.

Speech instructor for the invisible man—Howard Hughes. He doesn't talk but his money does.

Yes, if you seek escape from the tedium of your present breadwinning role, you can't do better than to turn to a more glamorous moonlight job. All you have to do is pick the right one.

Do you notice the shapes and shadows in the world around you?

Many artistic shadows flee before anyone has taken time to notice them. And silhouettes, also a short-lived bit of natural art, deserve notice now and then.

To be an appreciator of natural art is to display or, at least, feel gentle beauty.

Hayti Rips N. Pemiscot

HAYTI — Sharp-shooting Willie Rogers pumped in 33 points and Buddy Smith added 20 as coach Bill Beck's undefeated Hayti Indians notched their 15th win of the season and fourth in Bootheel conference play Tuesday night, romping past North Pemiscot of Wardell, 89-69.

It was a much closer contest for the opening 26 minutes as the lead exchanged hands numerous times. North Pem had whittled away a 60-45 lead to just seven points early in the fourth before an offensive explosion pushed the Tribe into the impressive win, out-scoring the visitors 25-12 in the final five minutes and 51 seconds of the game.

Signs dipicting each team as the best cluttered the walls of the HHS gym, as the rivalry between the two Bootheel league powers was evident through such signs as -- scalp em Indians -- Mustangs are the Number one team.

Hayti's superior rebounding talents made the difference in the contest, as the Mustangs were limited to one shot numerous times during the encounter.

Coach David McMahon's Mustangs, who's record fell to 11-4, stayed within one point of the Indians through he first half before the host offense unloaded 25 points in the third while the Mustang offense stalled with only 11 markers before regaining some poise early in the final quarter and closng to seven before the dominating machine of the Tribe took full command with its 20 and 25 foot field goals.

Terry McColloch, displaying a lot of hustle and drive against the talented host, wheeled and dealed for 25 points to top the North Pem offense, while heading up the rebounding with 13 grabs.

It was the second meeting of the season for the two rivals, Hayti winning the earlier contest by twelve points in the finals of the Senath tourney.

Hayti's B-team continued to improve on its early season record, rolling over the visiting Mustangs in the evenings opening contest, 65-54 behind Randy Gardner's 30 point effort. Cockrell netted 18 for the Mustangs.

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Austin, who served as interim coach of the Washington Redskins following the death of Vince Lombardi, Tuesday was signed as assistant coach on offense by the Chicago Bears.

Austin, 42, was replaced as Washington's head coach by George Allen, who was fired by the Los Angeles Rams.

A former tackle at Oregon State and a pro guard for the New York Giants, Austin was the first assistant hired by Lombardi when Lombardi took over the Green Bay Packers in 1959.

Austin also was the first assistant Lombardi hired when he became the Redskin coach in 1969. Before joining Lombardi at Washington, Austin was head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers from 1966-68.

Austin becomes a seventh assistant on the Bear staff headed by Jim Dooley.

Louisiana Teams Top Cage Poll

By JERRY ESTILL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Three Louisiana basketball coaches are romancing the notion of having the No. 1 small college team in the nation and it's giving them different sensations.

The one who's there now is a little surprised. The one who was there last week was a little chagrinned. The one who hasn't been there yet is a little perturbed.

"I had hopes, but I didn't know how hard to hope," said Scotty Robertson of Louisiana Tech after his team emerged Tuesday night as No. 1 in The Associated Press college division poll.

Robertson said he felt his team was No. 1 after it beat Southwestern Louisiana—No. 1 at the time—last week. "But I didn't know whether the voters would look at LSUNO's undefeated record and put them ahead of us."

That is exactly what Ron Greene, coach of Louisiana State University-New Orleans, thinks should have happened. His Privateers are No. 3, behind Southwestern.

"It's unbelievable," said Greene. "Not unpredictable, but unbelievable. Nothing would surprise me. All I can say is it (No. 1) will be ours some day because we're going to get it. That I promise."

Greene's team is 12-0 for the season and has a 17-game winning streak dating back to last season.

Beryl Shipley of Southwestern said he didn't really enjoy being No. 1 much last week since his loss to Louisiana Tech on Monday night, the dav before the poll came out. "I couldn't be too enthusiastic after losing to Tech."

Shipley was philosophical about his chances of regaining the No. 1 spot. "We had better not falter," he said. "One backward step now and it's too late to plow." Southwestern is 12-2 for the season.

Tech has won 11 straight after an opening loss to Auburn and Robertson doesn't see any letdown now that his troops have achieved the top spot.

"This will push them to play harder," he said. "Our kids were quite elated at the beginning of practice Tuesday, but five minutes later we were working our tails off."

Louisiana Tech received four first place votes, LSUNO three and Southwestern Louisiana one.

Receiving one first place vote each were No. 4 Kentucky State, No. 5 Tennessee State, No. 6 Kentucky Wesleyan, No. 7 Ashland, No. 8 Fairmont State and No. 9 Stephen F. Austin.

Rounding out the Top Ten was Eau Claire.

Here are the Top Twenty college division basketball teams with first place votes in parentheses and total points on a 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-etc. basis:

Super Dispute

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The controversy over the pass that John Mackey caught for the first Baltimore touchdown in the Super Bowl—and without which they might not be pro football's champions — continued today with four Pro Bowlers unable to reach agreement on what actually occurred.

At the same time, cornerback Mel Renfro of the Dallas Cowboys, the man fingered by Super Bowl officials as the player who tipped the pass into Mackey's hands, maintained he had been falsely accused on the critical play.

The call that upset Renfro came after Dallas had taken a 6-0 lead in the second quarter. Baltimore quarterback Johnny Unitas fired a pass to receiver Eddie Hinton, who got his hands on the ball but was unable to hold it.

As it flew off his hands, Renfro and Dallas safety Cornell Green leaped for the ball, but it wound up in Mackey's hands and the tight end raced the rest of the way for a 75-yard touchdown that pulled the Colts into a 6-6 tie in a game they eventually won 16-13.

The Cowboys maintained that neither Renfro nor Green touched the ball which, under the rules, would have made Mackey's grab an illegal reception since a member of the defensive team must touch the ball before another offensive player can make a legal catch.

But the officials ruled a member of the Cowboys—later identified as Renfro—touched it, allowing the reception and the touchdown.

Millions have since seen replays of the disputed play on television and still photos in newspapers and are unable to agree on whether Renfro did tip the ball or not—and Pro Bowlers interviewed by The Associated Press found themselves in much the same position.

"It's a judgement call and it happens so fast you have to honor the officials' call," said ROakland quarterback Daryle Lamonica, "but it didn't look like he touched it.

"It was one of the most difficult calls I've ever seen," said Kansas City defensive end Jerry Mays, "but it looked like it was tipped."

"When I saw the replay it looked like he tipped it," said Chiefs' linebacker Bobby Bell. "But I've also seen still pictures —and it looks like he missed it by a foot and a half."

"At first I didn't think it was touched," said San Francisco Coach Dick Nolan. "Then when I saw the replay I saw the trajectory of the ball change. As to whether Mel hit it or not ... Mel said he didn't hit it ..."

And Renfro said Cornell Green didn't tip it either.

"I talked to him and he said he didn't touch it," Renfro said.

Even Baltimore linebacker Mike Curtis, also here for the Pro Bowl, changed his mind after seeing films of the play.

"I had some question during the game," Curtis admitted. "But when I saw the game over on television, I saw it hit off Eddie's hands spinning at one revolution speed, then get changed to another speed after it was hit again.

"So I don't see how there could be any doubt."

But there still is. And probably always will be.

Haywood Gets Court Approval

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Controversial Spencer Haywood, fighting a court battle against the National Basketball Association, has won approval to continue playing with the NBA Seattle SuperSonics pending further legal action.

That might come today, or it might not come until March, affecting all of professional basketball and perhaps other sports.

U. S. District Court Judge Warren Ferguson, commenting that professional athletes "cannot be used and cannot be treated as merchandise," issued a preliminary injunction Monday permitting Haywood to stay with the SuperSonics.

The judge set a trial date of March 2 for the case which includes Haywood's contention the NBA violates antitrust laws and the argument of the Denver Rockets that the player is under contract to them.

In an appellate court at San Francisco today, the NBA will argue that Judge Ferguson did not have jurisdiction in the fight between the league and the player.

That basic argument is whether Seattle could officially sign a player whose university class has not graduated. The NBA constitution and by-laws hold a collegian cannot be signed to a pro contract until that time.

Haywood, 21, an Olympic star in 1968, was signed as a financial hardship case by Denver of the American Basketball Association after his first year at the University of Detroit.

Given a reported $1.9-million pact covering six years after his first season at Denver, Haywood wasn't happy and last Dec. 28 signed with Seattle although a majority of NBA clubs objected.

Attorney William Shea, opposing the issuance of the injunction, said it could tear down what had taken the league 25 years to build and it was evident the NBA felt its draft and other rules would be in jeopardy.

Although baseball has a separate antitrust law in its behalf, basketball and football do not.

BOSTON (AP) — Hugh Foley, a 1964 Olympic gold medal winner as a member of the victorious Vesper Boat Club eightoared crew, is the new head crew coach at Boston College.

Williams Returns To Jacksonville

Joe Williams, author of Jacksonville University's Cinderella success in college basketball, goes back tonight to the scene of many of his triumphs a year ago.

It's not likely, however, that it will be a triumphant return.

Williams left Jacksonville at the end of last season—after coaching the Dolphins to a 27-2 campaign and the runnerup spot in the NCAA championships.

He took over at Furman, his alma mater, and the Southern Conference Paladins play Jacksonville tonight on the Florida team's homecourt.

"I know what kind of club they have, "Williams says of the 1970-71 Dolphins, 10-2, currently ranked sixth in The Associated Press poll and now coached by Tom Wasdin, Williams' assistant last year.

The Dolphins under Williams were a free-wheeling high-scoring outfit but Wasdin expects Williams' Furman team, 7-5, "will probably play very conservatively on offense with a real good pressure defense and force us into a lot of errors.

Williams is leaving two starters, 6-foot-6 Lisco Thomas, and 6-1 Jerry Hartin at home because he says he's afraid for them to miss any time from classes.

With many schools taking breaks for midterm exams, the college basketball schedule for most of the week is light. No ranked teams were in action Tuesday night and No. 4 Penn is the only other Top Ten quintet in action tonight. The Quakers play Temple, which knocked Fordham from the unbeaten ranks last Saturday.

"Temple will be tougher the second time around," says Penn Coach Dick Harter, who's seeking his 32nd straight regular season triumph. The Quakers beat the Owls in December for the Quaker City Tourney championship.

The Owls, 5-8, have lost only to nationally ranked South Carolina in their last four starts. Coach Harry Litvak says, "his team is now playing up to our potential." If we can control the boards a little better than the first game with Penn, we'll be all right." The Quakers had a 59-36 rebounding edge in the Quaker City title game.

In Tuesday night's limited action, Texas Christian, with 6-6 Eugene Kennedy getting 23 points and 24 rebounds, upset Texas Tech, preseason favorite in the Southwest Conference, 85-71. It was TCU's opening conference game but the second SWC contest for the Red Raiders.

Also in the SWC, it was Baylor 108, Texas A&M 83, and Rice 78, SMU 67.

Elsewhere, Davidson staved off a late East Carolina rally to beat the Pirates 60-52 and take over undisputed control of first place in the Southern Conference. East Carolina had been tied with the Wildcats for first.

Oklahoma City ripped Centenary, La., 73-70, North Texas shaded Oklahoma Christian 80-79, Wisconsin won its first Big Ten contest, beating Northwestern 87-72; and Harvard downed Dartmouth 81-75.

All-Star Theme for Monday's ABA Game

There'll be an all-star theme for Monday night's American Basketball Association game between the Carolina Cougars and Memphis Pros at the Sikeston Public School Field House.

Four players who will have participated in Saturday's nationally telecast ABA All-Star game will be competing in the 8 o'clock fray.

In addition, a preliminary game will be staged at 7 o'clock. It will match an all-star team from the Sikeston Church League against an all-star cast of Church League coaches.

Tickets for the doubleheader are on sale in the principal's office at Sikeston High School. Prices are $4 for adults and $2 for students 18 and under.

Joe Caldwell, a six-year pro veteran who spent two years with the St. Louis Hawks and two more after the team moved to Atlanta, will represent the Carolina Cougars in this Saturday's ABA All-Star classic at Greensboro, N.C. The 6-5 forward from Arizona State is currently leading the Cougars in scoring with a 22.5 average.

Memphis will have three players appearing in the All-Star game. They are guards Steve Jones and James Jones and forward Wendell Ladner. Steve Jones, 6-5 three year veteran from Oregon, is the Pros' leading scorer with a 19.2 average. Jimmy Jones, 6-4, Grambling, is averaging 17.8 and will be appearing in his fourth consecutive All-Star game. Ladner, a 6-5 rookie from Southern Mississippi, is scoring at a 15.6 clip and ranks 10th in rebounding.

Caldwell is one of three Carolina players who have had NBA experience with the Atlanta Hawks. The other two are Dave Newmark, 7-1 center from Columbia, and George Lehman, 6-3 guard from Wake Forest.

Death Cause Listed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sonny Liston's death was caused by congestion in the pulmonary artery, which transports blood from the heart to the lungs, the coroner says.

Dr. Mark Herman, in a report two weeks after the former world heavyweight boxing champion's body was found in his Las Vegas home, said Tuesday traces of morphine and codeine were found in Liston's body tissues.

The coroner added that there was no evidence to link the two substances with the pulmonary congestion.

Liston's body was found Jan. 5 by his wife Geraldine. The coroner said he may have been dead one week.

Narcotics officers said they found a quarter of an ounce of heroin in the kitchen and half an ounce of marijuana in Liston's trousers.

No evidence was found that Liston had taken heroin before he died, Herman said. But morphine and codeine are formed during metabolism of heroin in the body, and Herman said the two substances found in Liston's tissues were present in proportions to suggest they came from heroin.

Lions End Five Year Streak

SENATH--The Senath-Hornersville Lions have roared to eight wins out of their last nine games, and Tuesday night coach Jim Isbell SHHS cagers added their first win over the Kennett Indians in five years with a 51=37 victory.

Senath-Hornersville now hold a 11-4 mark for the season, while Kennett dropped into a 6-5 position with the loss.

The Lion's defense proved too tough for the Kennett Tribe last night, as they shut off the Indian's scoring attack. Kennett picked up only three field goals in the first half, while Senath-Hornersville rolled to a 24-13 half time lead.

Herman Brown, the Lions six-four sophomore, added the lone double figure mark for the evening with 10, and kept the boards clean for the Lions.

DEXTER--The Daily Standard's third ranked Dexter Bearcats of coach Jim Hall continued to mount the victories, posting an 80-34 win over Bloomfield in Stoddard County league action Tuesday night.

It was the 11th win in 14 games for the DHS cagers, who have reeled off eight straight since bowing early in the campaign to Charleston.

Terry Demaree paced an 11-player scoring attack, scoring 15 points while three others totaled double figures. Francis Guethle had 14, Danny Summers 13 and David Mathis 11. Willy Chasteen collected 10 markers for the Wildcats high effort.

Bloomfield couldn't get its offense going after staying within five, 14-9, in the first period. The Wildcats had only one quarter in which they netted in double figures, that being the second.

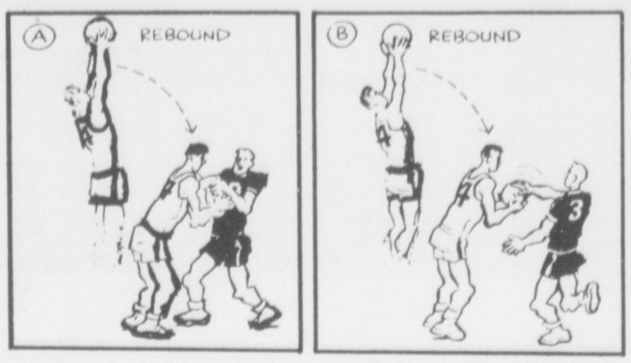
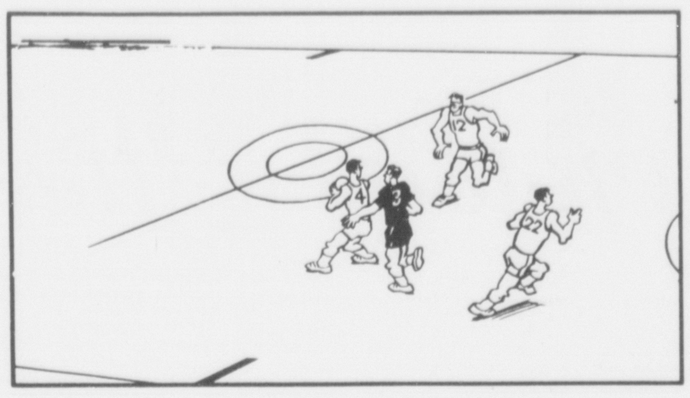
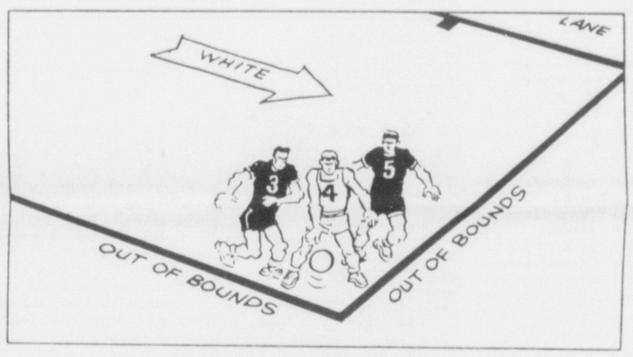
BASKETBALL RULES
Simplified and Illustrated



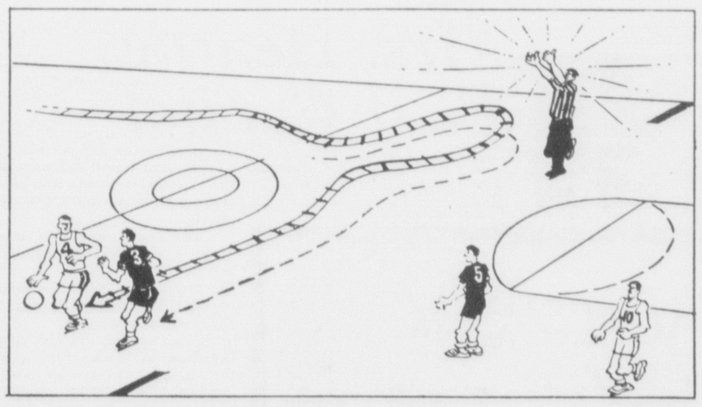
A is a good example of a held ball. A held ball occurs when two players, each having a firm hold on the ball, neither of whom can obtain possession without undue roughness. Merely touching the ball as in B does not constitute a held ball. Make certain that a held ball occurs before it is called.



A held ball will be called any time that a closely guarded player holds and/or dribbles the ball in his front court for 5 seconds.



After 5 seconds a held ball will be called.



Any time a player in his mid-court area has control of the ball for five (5) seconds and is closely guarded for that five (5) seconds a held ball occurs.

Marital Bonds Outweigh Odds Over 81 Years

from the
Commercial Appeal

MACON, MO., JAN 16. — (PI) — Ward and Anne McDaniel will observe their 81st wedding anniversary Thursday, with no special celebration to mark their triumph over odds of more than 34 million to one.

He is 102; she is 101.

"There have been so many anniversaries," said their son, Cyril, "that they'd rather just spend a quiet day at home with each other."

It will be their last anniversiary in the little bungalow where they live alone despite family protests.

"I've finally persuaded them to come live with me and my wife in an apartment I'm building for them in our house in Columbia," their son said. At 70, he still works "most every day as a surveyor."

"But they really get along pretty well," he said. "Dad's sight is poor and mother is deaf, but he's her ears and she's his eyes and they get along.

"Mother still does practically all her own house work. And she reads a lot. Dad goes for a walk if the weather is decent.

The McDaniels, who grew up at Winterset, Iowa, and came to Northern Missouri in 1920, have outlived three of their five children. Their other son, Reuben, lives in Seattle, Wash.

The Census Bureau says odds agains both a husband and wife surviving to celebrate their 81st wedding anniversary are 34.4 million to one.

TOGETHER — Ward and Anne McDaniel of Macon, Mo., will celebrate their wedding anniversary Thursday — their 81st. He is 102 and she is 101. They have lived in Missouri since 1920 and have outlived three of their five children.

INSTANT RUNDOWN

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard has a new computer that gives an instant rundown on a suspect's criminal record with personal details — right down to the cigarettes he smokes.

A policeman on the beat can ask questions about a suspect by using his pocket radio and give within seconds full details.

"Apart from a man's criminal record we have details about the kind of clothes he wears, the cigarettes he smokes, the type of car he uses, the women in his life, the pubs he frequents, and what he drinks," a yard spokesman explained.

Livable Philosophy Here

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Occasionally you print messages of value from other sources. Here is a bit of livable philosophy which I have found most helpful. If you feel it has merit, please print it.

Take time to think -- thoughts are the source of power.

Take time to play -- play is the secret of perpetual youth.

Take time to read -- reading is the fountain of wisdom.

Take time to pray -- prayer can be a rock of strength in time of trouble.

Take time to love -- loving is what makes living worthwhile.

Take time to be friendly -- friendships give life a delicious flavor.

Take time to laugh -- laughter is the music of the soul.

Take time to give -- any day of the year is too short for selfishness.

Take time to do your work well -- pride in your work, no matter what it is, nourishes the ego and the spirit.

Take time to show appreciation -- thanks is the frosting on the cake of life. ---A Faithful Ann Fan

Dear Fan: Beautiful! On behalf of my readers, I thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: I lived with my married daughter for 20 years. Her children were like my own. I raised them. I didn't plan it -- it just happened. My daughter was glad to have the "help," and the way it turned out I was the one who did all the things for the kids that a mother usually does. I did the feeding, bathing, dressing, settling of differences, and putting to bed. I am out of my daughter's home now but the kids still love me and treat me as if I were their mother. My daughter resents this. She told me a few months ago that I intentionally stole their affection. She says I now must stay out of their lives because it's time they learned SHE is their mother. I'm so hurt, Ann, I don't know what to do. Of course I shall respect my daughter's wishes but it is killing me. When the kids want to come to my place I have to make up excuses. (I never get invited to their home.) Please tell me if there is anything I can do. You can use my name if you wish. I have nothing to lose. I've already lost everything. ---Sad Gran

Dear S.: Your daughter can set up rules and regulations but she can't change your grandchildren's feelings about you. Love is not transfereable. If you raised the kids they are as good as yours. I hope your daughter sees this column and reconsiders, for the children's sake as well as for yours.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an unmarried woman of 38 and have always enjoyed good health. I recently read that unmarried women are more susceptible to breast cancer than women who are married. Is this true? I have always believed just the opposite. Please inform me. ---Portland

Dear Port: Recently 30,000 nuns over 39 years of age were studied. The results showed that the nuns had a higher incidence of breast cancer than married women of the same age group.

These findings give added credence to the warning of the American Cancer Society that ALL women should have a physical checkup annually. Learning how to perform breast self-examiniation every month can be a lifesaver. Your local chapter of the American Cancer Society offers free instruction booklets. I suggest that you write for one at once.

THE GOVERNOR'S WIFE, Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes examines a copy of Wealth of Nations on the Sheraton Secretary Desk in the Governor's Office of the First State Capitol in St. Charles.

Mrs. Hearnes First Capitol

Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes recently toured the restored First Missouri State Capitol in St. Charles and noted the beauty of the buildings is a "fitting reminder of Missouri's historic spirit."

The 1971 Sesquicentennial year "spirit" will be honored in ceremonies at the First State Capitol dedication and opening to be held at the site on February 5.

Joseph Jaeger, Jr., Director of the Missouri State Park Board, the agency responsible for the ten-year restoration program, commented, he is "pleased withthe outcome of the long and difficult restoration" and hopes "the citizens of Missouri will attend the dedication and take pride in the restored First State Capitol and Missouri's 150 years of growth."

An 1820 Journal notes that the citizens of St. Charles promised to provide rooms for both branches of the General Assembly and its Committees without charge if a temporary seat of government was established there.

Mrs. Hearnes commented, "the people of St. Charles have certainly not changed - even in 150 years. They were successful in soliciting restoration funds of the First State Capitol for our State's Sesquicentennial Year just as they were in attracting the Capitol, 150 years ago."

Mrs. Hearnes was particularly interested in the restoration of Governor's Office with its massive press lock and elegant nineteenth century furnishings.

The First Missouri Capitol Buildings were purchased by the late Governor James T. Blair in January, 1961. The Capitol Building is composed of three connected brick structures built about 1819. After extensive archaeological investigations, it was determined that the Senate and House Chambers, Governor's Office, and the Committee Room were located in four separate rooms on the second floor.

The building has been furnished with authentic antiques of the 1821-1826 period when it housed the seat of government.

Governor Hearnes will formerly dedicate the building in ceremonies on February 5.

Seniority Foes Try New Tactic

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strategists in the attack on the congressional seniority system put a new tactic into effect Monday with the opening of a bipartisan, unofficial hearing on Senate reform.

Under the auspices of Republican Sen. Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland and Oklahoma Democratic Sen. Fred R. Harris, the two days of hearings started with a plea that committee chairmen be selected democratically, not on the basis of length of service.

"The time has come to modify a long-established custom of this great body—the so-called seniority system," said John Gardner, chairman of the citizens' lobby Common Cause, in prepared testimony.

Gardner, repeating views he has publicized in past weeks, said "dictatorial power" of committee chairmen was symptomatic of the failure in accountability and responsiveness of many contemporary American institutions.

"If some committee chairmen conduct themselves with unexampled arrogance it is because there is no mechanism by which their fellow party members can call them to account," he said.

Gardner urged the Senate to reorganize during the opening days of the 92nd Congress so committee members nominate their own chairmen.

But before a chairman could be installed under Gardner's plan, the majority party conference would have to approve the committee members' nomination in a recorded vote every two years.

Gardner said the chances were good committee members with the greatest length of congressional service would still get the chairmanships.

"But occasionally good reasons such as the infirmities of age or misconduct in office, will lead the majority party caucus to reject the senior member," Gardner said.

Mathias and Fred R. Harris acted independently in calling the hearings to rouse support for reform. Their panel has no official sanction or legislative authority.

Both Mathias and Harris have supported Gardner's proposal in the past, but the Senate last year rejected it and other suggestions of eliminating or modifying the seniority system by margins of about 2 to 1.

Mathias, in a statement opening the hearings, said he fears "the seniority system as it currently exists in the Senate is dangerously close to creating a crisis of confidence."

"Refinement or elimination of the seniority system is a prerequisite for the intelligent innovations and orderly change that the legislative branch requires in order to continue to maintain its position of responsibility to the people," he said.

ANIMATION lends itself to humor particularly well. Once you've mastered the technique, you are limited only by the extent of your own imagination.

Animated Movies Chase Boredom in Winter

ROCHESTER, N.Y.—As the line after each portion has been added. Simple arrows also can be animated by using this simple animation technique.

You will delight the younger members of the family when you show them how everyday items, such as a piece of bread or a box of cereal or even their own favorite toys, can move by themselves in a movie. The secret, of course, is in the single-framing. Between each frame, the object is moved slightly until the desired movement is completed in a number of tiny steps. If the steps are smaller at the beginning and end of a movement, the action will look smooth and natural on the screen. The turn of a cereal box is a good example.

To position the box for the turning maneuver, punch a hole in the bottom of the box and then place the box with the punched hole over an upright nail affixed to the upright base of the box. Now the box can be turned easily on this reliable pivot point. Start your filming with the box at right angles to the camera. Then take a number of frames before moving the box. Make a light pencil mark at the rear of the box, on the surface at the corner that will be moving away from the camera on the turn. To begin the movement from this starting point, turn the box about 1/16-inch and make and expose. Now, move the box about 1/8-inch, and make an exposure; then 3/16 inch, and another exposure. From this point on, the moves should be 1/4-inch until the box is 3/8-inch from its final stopping point. For a smooth finish, you gradually decrease the size of the moves—3/16-inch, 1/8-inch, 1/16-inch—until the maneuver is complete. Finally, shoot several frames of the rear of the box.

If a young boy you know wants to be a race car driver or a super snowmobiler, single-frame animation will allow him to speed around the landscape—without a car or snowmobile—in your movie. Ask him to maintain the proper sitting position throughout your sequence and to slide forward at set distance between frames to simulate the action. Large moves between frames spell faster action; smaller moves slow the pace. At the end of your movie sequence, you can even make your boy disappear by merely asking him to walk out of the picture area between frames.

Some essential prerequisites of animation are a camera affixed to a tripod or a makeshift animation stand, and proper lighting. For work closer than your movie camera lens allows, you also will need a close-up lens. You will find further technical information that can be adapted for your own use in the new book from Kodak, "Home Movies Made Easy." Ask your local photo retailer for it or, if he doesn't have it, order it by title and code number, AW-2, directly from Eastman Kodak Company, Department 454-C, Rochester, New York 14650. Cost is $1.95 plus applicable state and local sales tax.

Animation with a home movie camera is a double-barreled answer to what to do with your movie camera after the holidays are over. Once you have enjoyed yourself experimenting with these techniques, project the results for midwinter entertainment—with that special magical touch of animation.

From his position as chief radioman aboard ship, Hayes speaks with authority about the events immediately prior to the Pueblo's capture.

Tickets to hear Hayes can be obtained in advance by contacting Mrs. Harry Bock, 248-5120, in New Madrid.

Century Plant

The name century plant for the agave came from the mistaken idea that the American century plant blooms only once in 100 years. Some kinds flower every year and others at longer periods, but none blooms so rarely as once in a century.

Frankly Speaking

ADJUSTING TO THE NEW FARM PROGRAMS

Sign-up time for the new Administration farm programs begins March 1. Already, however, Missouri farmers are asking their local ASC offices and their Committee members for the details of the new program on which to base their crop plans.

Predictably, some rough spots in the transition from the 1965 program to the 1971 program have begun to appear. Three important ones have already come to light concerning set-aside, 25-acre farms and ACP.

Set-Aside

To be eligible for inclusion in a farmer's set-aside, a particular acre must have been harvested within the last three years. Land diverted for three years or more under the previous program would not be eligible.

For many Missouri farmers, this may mean plowing up sod land and planting crops on it. It will also mean trying to establish and on land plowed last fall in anticipation of planting crops, if cotton is to be avoided. Some of this crop land has already been treated with weed-killers which will make it difficult to grow grass on it for a year or two.

I have been working with the Department of Agriculture in hopes of at least postponing the effective date of this part of the program for a year so that farmers will have an opportunity to adjust their long-range crop plans. I am hopeful that an accommodation can be reached before sign-up time.

25-Acre Farms

Under the old law, farms with a base-acreage of 25 acres or less could be diverted in entirety, and owners would still receive a payment of about $1,000 for their participation in the program.

Under the new program, these farms will have to be plowed up and planted like any others if payments under the program are to be received.

There are around 50,000 Missouri farms which fall into the 25-acre-or-less category. Some of those can probably be rented out and thereby farmed. Others may provide a sufficient income if used for pasture. There are bound to be some serious dislocations, however, particularly among the retired farmers who have sold their machinery and cannot resume farming even if they wish to do so.

ACP

The Department of Agriculture announced last week the replacement of the popular Agriculture Conservation Program (ACP) with a new trial Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) for 1971.

The Department of Agriculture states that REAP, like ACP, will permit the federal government to share costs of various beneficial conservation practices with farmers, but early indications are that new emphasis will be placed on pollution abatement, soil and water conservation, and recreation and wildlife development, which will go beyond usual farm activities. The Department states that "practices that are good farming techniques that should be performed regularly and practices that are income-producing to the farmer will be de-emphasized in favor of those having benefits for all citizens."

REAP will be administered locally by Committeemen who will allocate available funds and specify their use according to federal guidelines.

The ACP has been, in my view, an excellent program, and I have consistently supported it. In 1970, the Administration requested no funds for ACP, but Congress appropriated $195.5 million. Presumably, the Administration will fully explain its intentions with REAP in the near future.

I voted against the new farm program last year because I felt it put too much arbitrary authority in the hands of the Department of Agriculture. But this program is now law. We who represent farm states, the farmers themselves, and the Administration have a mutual interest in making it work fairly. With give and take on all sides, I hope the program can be adjusted to be both workable and fair.

Corner On Questions

By PASTOR DON WILSON

QUESTION: WHERE ARE YOU STANDING?

ANSWER: Youth cries, "milktoast" to its peers, and "hypocrite" to its elders. Perhaps this generation does talk out of two sides of its mouth simultaneously. Man is often untrustworthy. To determine what he is, compare man's works with his words. Possibly your claims may contradict your position. These introspective characterizations should inspire serious self-analysis.

Scripture teaches: "Judas also betrayed Him, STOOD with them," Judas stood OUTSIDE Gethsemane with the Romans, when He should have stood INSIDE with Jesus. Although he professed Christianity, Judas actually preferred the soldiers to the Saviour, having more confidence in government than God.

Like Judas many implant the kiss of betrayal on Jesus. Humanity today is bowed to government instead of God. Man claims faith in God, but greed for security prompts the insanity that government loves him more than God, and that Washington has more resources than Heaven; therefore, men depend upon the mailman rather than prayer.

To believe you can "get something for nothing" is to deny Christ. As pure water cannot be derived from an impure source, neither can Washingtonians give anything without first confiscating it, and then appropriating personal advantage from it. Jesus said: "All of our righteousnesses are as filthy rags." "Ye must be born again." When the Washingtonians control the purse, they often play God with the receipients of their "pork barrel." Thus, God-given free-will is surrendered. To accept what you have not earned is, generally speaking, anti-Christ. Christ taught: "If any would not work, neither should he eat."

Salvation alone may be received without human effort. The Bible teaches: "By grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God; Not of works, lest any man should boast." You may freely repent and receive Christ. Where do you stand?

A Classic Revived
RAMONA
By Helen Hunt Jackson
(Avon N301/95¢/352pp.)

RAMONA is one of the romantic classics of Americana from the latter part of the nineteenth century. First published in 1884, RAMONA has gone through 135 printings, been made into a movie three times, and been presented on the stage. Now Avon brings this classic back again for the enjoyment of another generation of readers.

Set among the Mission Indians of Southern California, RAMONA is the story of a spirited girl's love for a handsome Indian, a love that defies the custom of her people and drives her from place to place.

A diplomat is a man who compliments his wife on last year's coat. A magician is one who makes her believe the receipients of their "pork him.

POLLY'S POINTERS

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—My Pointer is particularly for the reader who had a lot of upholstery samples she wanted to use. I cannot knit but wanted an afghan. I had a lot of corduroy pieces that I cut into six-inch squares, sewed them together until I had the desired size and backed it all with a piece of cotton in a solid color. I zigzag-stitched over every other seam. If larger squares were used they could be stitched through the center instead of over the seams. I have made several of these gifts and matching pillows.—MRS. J. H.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I wish someone would please tell me how to melt soap. I have many small pieces I would like to melt to make large bars. A double-boiler does not work as someone suggested to me. Also, does the soap have to be cut into very small pieces?—ARTHUR

DEAR POLLY—Now that blinds are the "in" thing for the windows many of us are applying flowers or other appliques cut from drapery fabric to them. I paint the reverse s. of the material where it is to be cut with colorless nail polish and this keeps the edges from raveling, saves a lot of sewing and makes a neater finish.—EVE.

DEAR GIRLS—Try this on a sample of the fabric first to see the effect of the polish. Even if it shows through a bit and forms a shadowy line around the design it may be preferable to a raveling edge.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—We keep a piece of nylon net in our bathroom and find it quickly removes the ring in either the washbasin or the tub without any abrasive action.—MRS. S. K.

DEAR POLLY—I use a pastry brush AND a small plastic bottle full of oil to grease the top of freshly baked bread and small pans, such as muffin tins. This way I always get the right amount and never have any waste.—MRS. S. P.

An Open Letter About Route 60

Dear Mr. Shaw:

Something must be done soon about the leevee section ot Highway 60 in Mississippi Couty.

Last week an Indiana man, father of four children, was killed at Nally's corner.

The week before that five autos were involved in a series of collisions at the Birds Point turnoff. Luckily, no one was injured.

During the week of December 10 a Kenotucky man was killed in a collision at the point where the levee road heads toward Wyatt and Highway 60 drop off the levee.

That same week, a driver was injured when his car failed to negotiate the sharp curve at Bird's Point.

The week of November 9 a Kentucky woman was killed at the Bird's Point curve, and two person were injured in the same collision.

We could go on and on, but it is sufficient to take this one two-month period and point out that three persons have been killed, at least three others injured, and there has been substantial damage to property along this one lethal six-mile stretch of highway.

During your appearance at the Charleston Chamber of Commerce meeting in December you stated that nothing in the way of major changes were contemplated on the levee section of Highway 60, because of the imminent construction of Interestate 57, which will siphon off much of the traffic from the old road.

We cannot find too much fault with this reasoning, Mr. Shaw. Obviously it would not be smart to undertake a major relocation project on Highway 60, when within four or five years a new superhighway will take its place.

But surely there are some less expensive measures which could be taken to make Highway 60 along the levee less hazardous.

We had occansion to hit the levee road at dusk Sunday -- a misty foggy, miserable day. And we think we can see why so many accidents happen on the levee road.

The painted lines on the roadway are hardly visible, and give very little help to the driver trying to steer his car through the mist. There are no signs warning the out-of-state traveler that he is driving on a hazardous section of highway. There is nothing to indicate to the man-in-a-hurry that if he will be patient for six miles he will come to a level, straight road where passing that truck will be relatively safe.

We can recall a time two or three years ago when shoulder work on the levee section made travel on the road even more unsafe than usual. The Highway Department's grudging response was to erect a very small "soft shoulders" sign on each end of the levee road. The accidents continued.

Mr. Shaw, such measures are plainly inadequate on this killer section of highway.

We would recommend, as a bare minimum, that the following steps be undertaken:

First, that your Department survey the highway and re-paint the striping where necessary;

Second, that reflectorized guide markers be placed along the entire length of the road to indicate to the unfamiliar motorist that the road has the curves of a snake. We guarantee that such markers would have been useful last Sunday afternoon. At the very least these guides should be erected on the major corners or curves --the bridge, Bird's Point, Nally's and near Wyatt.

Third, that large signs, in whatever quantity are necessary, be erected at each end of the levee road, advising motorists that they are approaching an extremely dangersous section of highway, that passing and high speeds are extremely dangerous , and that patience is recommended for the next few miles.

Such signs have been erected on Highway 61 near Fruitland and, we presume, have had some effect in diminshing the impatience of drivers trapped behind trucks on the "no-passing" sections of that roadway.

These measures should not be very expensive--at least not when measured against the heartbreak and pain of highway death and injury.

We invite your comments, Mr. Shaw, on what measures you think are feasible. We do not see how you can disagree that something MUST be done about Highway 60--before it claims additional lives.

KEEPING 'EM ON THE FARM

THE RURAL LIFE has always held special appeal for Americans. Thomas Jefferson, who envisioned a nation of small, independent farmers, went so far as to say that "Those who labor in the earth are the chosen people of God..., whose breasts He has made His peculiar deposit for substantial and genuine virtue."

Then why are rural areas continuing to lose population to polluted, over-crowded cities? Part of the answer may be inferred from a remark made in 1967 by former Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman. Millions of Americans, Freeman said, would "gladly live in a small town or open country community if there were jobs around, basic services and good schools for the kids."

Both major parties are on record as favoring improvement of employment and educational opportunities in rural areas. In his 1970 State of the Union message, President Nixon declared that "We must create a new rural environment which will not only stem the migration to urban centers but reverse it." Nixon reportedly hopes to announce a rural development plan in 1971. The aim of the plan, according to the Wall Street Journal, would be to "redirect present aid programs--for housing, water, sewerage, hospitals, roads, airports--to rural growth centers that could attract industry."

ACTUALLY, industry already has been attracted to the Farm Belt. In 1970 alone, 23 new manufacturing plants opened in Iowa, 41 in South Dakota, 48 in North Dakota, 50 in Nebraska, 107 in Kansas and 311 in Minnesota. Industrialists have found that people raised on farms are willing to work long hours at wages substantially below those prevailing in the East. An added bonus is that workers drawn from the farm have displayed little interest in joining unions.

The availability of nearby factory jobs has enabled thousands of persons to hold onto uneconomic farms that they might otherwise be forced to sell. Earl Brugger, employed by the Monroe Auto Equipment Co. in Cozad, Neb., recently told a reporter: "I just couldn't make it any more with the land I had. Now I can come in here and put in a nine-hour day on the machine. Then I can go home on the weekends or before dark and can work the 80 acres we've still got."

City dwellers have a stake in rural development, too. The 1967 report of the National Advisory Committee on Rural Poverty, concluded that the urban riots of that year stemmed in large part from rural poverty because a high percentage of the people crowded into city slums had migrated there from rural slums.

MEANWHILE, farmers continue to complain of soaring costs and inadequate income. Livestock breeders have seen cattle prices drop by around $4 a hundred-weight, and hog prices by around $10 a hundredweight, since midsummer. A group of hog farmers from North Carolina and Virginia demonstrated briefly on Jan. 9 outside the White House.

The Farm Journal predicts that hog prices will remain depressed for most of 1971. On the other hand, the magazine believes that aggregate farm income from all sources should increase by about $1.75 billion this year, more than offsetting the projected $1.5 billion increase in costs.

The number of farms in operation, however, will continue to decline. There are about 3.1 million farms in the country today--less than half as many as in 1925. Some agricultural experts believe that only 500,000 farms ultimately will be needed to feed the nation. Thomas Jefferson would be dismayed.

'Total Freedom' Ism Still Rampant

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

It is now a little more than two years since the traumatic events of 1968 tore gaping holes in the fabric of American society. The year 1971, the eve of another great presidential test, may show how much real reweaving—if any—has been accomplished.

My own recent extensive inquiries around the country disclose that in the large realm of public affairs there is a great wish to avoid new traumas. Few public figures except those at the extremes have the stomach for bitter new battles on the 1968 scale.

Yet this clearly altered mood so far is reflected, at the action level, only by the merest patchwork. Despite strong urgings from such thoughtful men as John Gardner, the reweaving has not begun.

A distressing new survey reports that a fair proportion of losing candidates in races for public office promptly lose their faith in the elective process.

This reaction sounds like the widely expressed response of disillusioned young folk in 1968 who declared that losing the candidate of their choice was proof that "democracy does not work."

While a new realism is reported to be developing on many campuses, it is also true that despair—a feeling that "nothing can be done"—grips many students in fabled centers of ferment like Harvard. They have run the gamut from excited, if brief, participation in political campaigns through demonstrations, disruptions and confrontations to occasional bursts of violence. These have proved "unproductive." They have not, overnight, ended war, poverty, racism, injustice.

These young, and many sympathetic elders, make much of commitment to ideals, principles, moral precepts. It is good for a society to be reminded constantly of these things, and that is a special function of the young.

But a black mark against this society in recent years has been a diminishing commitment by many young and adult Americans to the democratic process.

More than a few times in recent months I have heard individual conscience described as an "authority" supreme over all law. It is not unfair to translate this to mean that the advocates of this doctrine believe the United States should be run by 205 million separate "authorities." Taken to its logical limit, the doctrine destroys the rule of law and leaves us stripped naked before the whim (conscience) of men.

Every man is a king, doing his own thing with royal abandon. But a society with 205 million kings is a jungle existence which even the dumbest animals reject.

The exalters of individual conscience strive pathetically to garb themselves in the robes of nobility. What could sound lovelier and more humane than devotion to "total freedom"?

The trouble is there is no such thing. Freedom dies when 205 million arbiters are deciding what rules to obey and what is right for themselves—and society.

Pemiscot Voices School Need

CARUTHERSVILLE--A vital step in improving quality of industrial workers and tradesman in Pemiscot County would be a county-wide vocational school, industrialists here believe.

NOT FOR FILING. This is one item which shouldn't be filed even though it's been left on the shelf.

There is need for vocational training in Pemiscot County. The general consensus among employers and Caruthersville officials is, if vocational training were available for young persons, the out-migration would be reduced and more qualified workers may find opportunity here, rather than elsewhere.

Mayor Bill Inman said he has been in contact with a county school official who wants to convert a plant building into a vocational training school. Although the project is strictly in the planning stage, Mayor Inman stressed, "We do not need a dumping ground for high school students who do not want to work. We need people who have the want."

He added this should not be a Caruthersville task but an effort to be undertaken by Pemiscot County. "We must work together as a team," the mayor declared.

County industrialists say work absenteeism is particularly high among young people. "many young people work three days and then quit," said one Caruthersville plant manager. Another said he felt the Food Stamp Program has slightly contributed to absenteeism. When some employes get on the program, their amount of work slacken," he said.

Food stamp receipients, who are employed, feel if wagers were higher employes would not qualify for the Food Stamp Program to begin with. Employers feel if they had more qualified personnel, wages probably would increase.

Caruthersville officials and managers of plants said the need for vocational training would be given priority consideration in an attempt to solve some of the problems in the Bootheel county.

FOOD WASTE DISPOSER IS BIG BOON IN WINTER

For many families, winter means a smelly garbage can in the basement or braving the cold to carry the garbage outdoors. This problem is cut to a minimum for families with food waste disposers, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau points out. The compact appliance is installed beneath the kitchen sink, connected to the waste line. To use, the homemaker puts the garbage down the drain, turns on the cold water and flicks an electric switch on the wall.

Resurrection Flower

According to Christian legend, the resurrection flower sprung up wherever the Holy Family rested in their flight into Egypt. It is fabled to have blossomed at the Savior's birth, closed at the Crucifixion and opened again at Easter, whence its name of Resurrection Flower

Army Adopts Shape Up or Ship out Policy

FT. DIX, N.J. (AP) — The Army has instituted a tough, new policy under which GIs from privates to noncoms must earn their stripes within certain periods of time or be mustered out of service, Maj. Gen. Howard H. Cooksey said today.

Cooksey, commander of this sprawling Army post, said the policy applies throughout the Army.

He said it is part of the gradual move toward an all-volunteer Army and is designed to avoid stagnation and apathy among enlisted men by eliminating promotion bottlenecks and freeing the ranks of "dead wood."

Under the policy, Cooksey said, enlisted men would have three years to progress from private to private first class, 12 years to sergeant and a maximum of 30 years to rise to sergeant major, the Army's highest enlisted rank.

Lt. Col. Paul A. Teehan, post information officer, said the policy sets only the "maximum" periods during which men must earn their stripes. For example, a private may progress to private first class in less than a year even though he has a maximum of three years to do so.

However, Teehan said, the policy also applies to men who are demoted. For example, a GI who makes corporal in four years but is busted to private first class must regain his stripe in four years or be discharged. Normally, he would have five years to rise from private first class to corporal—or a total of eight years in the Army.

Cooksey said the policy, which has been in effect about a month, is similar to one that has existed for officers for years.

Teehan said the Army has had problems with certain specialty groups, such as cooks, where a GI would make a certain rank, specialist 4 for example, and then remain in that slot and display no ambition for a promotion.

He said that under the new policy, that same GI would have to "push for another stripe or get out of the service after a certain period of time." He said this would enable other GIs to be promoted into the specialist 4's slot but would not necessarily reduce the size of the Army, "only make it more efficient."

Hearing on State Welfare Continues

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Missouri can't give welfare aid to applicants in less than 30 or 60 days as the federal government requires, officials have said.

A federal hearing was scheduled to resume today as the government seeks to determine whether Missouri qualifies for $157.5 million in federal funds for five welfare progress.

The programs are Old Age Assistance, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Aid to the Blind, Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled, and Medicaid.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced Monday it would cut off some welfare aid to Indiana and Nebraska where similar hearings have been held.

The Missouri Legislature, which has cut welfare appropriations, would have to face the task of supporting all of the welfare programs if federal aid is withdrawn.

A St. Louis minister, the Rev. Buck Jones, testified Monday as spokesman for about 35 St. Louisans who came by bus to press for more action by the state.

"I came here to obtain dignity and justice for people so they can live like human beings," Jones said. "I came here to object to the federal government about the Missouri welfare system."

He said families that were forced to wait more than 30 days for welfare checks were hungry and cold in the St. Louis ghetto area where he is urban minister of the United Church of Christ.

"Mothers are forced to live in houses that are suitable for rats and roaches only," Jones said. "In winter they are forced to live in houses that provide little protection from the elements. Their children are ashamed to go to school because they have no shoes or clothing."

Jones' statements were a heated response to Elmore C. Crowe, chief counsel of the Missouri Division of Welfare, who asked him if he was trying "to deprive Missouri of $157 million."

Jones is director of Operation Live, a third party in the hearing.

Members of the National Welfare Rights Organization and the St. Louis group applauded him.

Recycling New Key Word in Technology

By The Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — Recycling is the new key word in the developing technology of environmental protection. Recycling is an extension of the concept of using materials again and again instead of instantly discarding them and adding to the nation's growing waste and pollution.

The salvaging of wastes for re-use has long been put forth as one way of recovering some of the billions of dollars that must be spent over the next few years to clean up the environment. But re- use has not caught on very much in the United States for the simple reason that it is often more expensive to salvage, sort, clean, transport, and process discarded materials than it is to gather fresh materials from traditional sources. It has been estimated that only 45 per cent of the iron and steel, 42 per cent of the copper, 25 per cent of the zinc, 21 per cent of the paper , and 13 per cent oof the rubber is recovered and used again in American production.

Both the environment and industry would benefit from a technology that provided more feasible methods of reclaiming valued elements in wastes. But there are many hurdles between the city dump and the industrial stockpile. What is needed most, many environmentalists say, is a total new approach to nature, specifically to the finite resources of the earth, including its natural waste bins: the earth, air, and water.

Recycling would meet both the practical and romantic aspects of this approach. It would provide industries and municipalities with cost - cutting, material - saving procedures while conveying a respect for natural law. Recycling would involve not merely the piecemeal salvage of this or that waste product, but an adaptation of nature's own cycle of use and re-use. Nothing of value would be wasted as it passed through various stages of the cycle.

As expressed by Kenneth E. Bould ng, professor of economics at the University of Colorado, in the BULLETIN OF THE ATOMIC SCIENTISTS, "the great unsolved problem of technology is that of creating what is being called a 'looped economy' in which man finds a comfortable life in the middle of the process which is essentially circular, that is, in which the waste products of human activity are all used as raw materials for the next cycle of production ...." Ultimately, he said, what we take from the atmosphere, the oceans and the soil must also be put back into them.

Large -scale technology for this purpose is still in the future, but some halting steps have been taken. Huge cooling towers being built for some new industrial plants represent a practical application of the closed - loop principle. The towers permit use again and again of the same water. Hence, no heated waste water is dumped into lakes and streams, with its damaging effects on marine life.

The diversion of sewage sludge to nourish farmland is in harmony with the recycling principle. The Federal Water Quality Administration has committed $2 million for a project to demonstrate that sewage and factory effluent now going into Lake Michigan can be diverted to fertilize barren land in Michigan.

Interest is growing in the use of heat from the incineration of community wastes as energy for the generation of electric power. Methods of capturing and re-using sulfur from smokestack emissions are being studied. Much of the new anti - pollution gadgetry coming on the market – currently a $5 billion a year business -- abides by the recycling or closed - system principle.

To make recycling work on a grand scale that would truly safeguard "spaceship earth," it is necessary to view all of nature and all of man's activities as part of a single system. This would put technology into harmony with nature rather than at cross purposes with it. As Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, former science adviser to President Nixon, recently pointed out, no one really wants to "go back to nature" and renounce the benefits of technology. But technology is not, as some imply, an uncontrollable force. It is up to man to use it for his own good.

$1-Million-a-Movie Stars Down to One

EDITOR'S NOTE — A couple of years ago a dozen or so superstars of the movies could earn upwards of a $1 million for a picture. Today perhaps, only one such money earner exists. In the following, Bob Thomas veteran Hollywood reporter, explores the reasons why.

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A survey of the new film economics indicates the end of the era of the superstar—the movie personality whose importance could attract salaries up to $1 million per picture.

Only one superstar appears to have survived the severe cutback in actor's salaries: John Wayne.

Just a couple of years ago, Wayne was one of a group of stellar performers who were considered so potent at the box office that producers would pay them the equivalent of $1 million for a film—sometimes less initial money, but with 10 per cent of the gross receipts.

Look what's happening now.

Julie Andrews hasn't made a movie in two years. She was reported to do "She Loves Me" for MGM and "I Do! I Do!" for the Mirisch Co. but both projects were canceled because of high costs.

Elizabeth Taylor, after five successive flops at $1 million apiece, was inactive for two years. She now is making a film in London, taking a large percentage of the future income rather than a salary.

Husband Richard Burton is also making a London movie at no salary. "After this one, I'll go back to my million-dollar salary," he remarked. Not likely.

Elvis Presley, one of the first superstars to make $1 million per film, hasn't made a movie in two years, except for a documentary of his singing tours.

Shirley MacLaine has signed to make a television series in England for the ABC network.

Some of the other superstars have been inactive. Others have prepared projects through their own companies: McQueen, Douglas, Newman, Lemmon.

Newman, Miss Streisand and Poitier have formed their own company, First Artists, although no films have yet been produced by the firm.

Ted Ashley, production chief of Warner Bros. said recently that the million-dollar salary has vanished in '99 per cent of the cases."

"But," he added, "there are rare people like John Wayne who receive money like that and are worth it in terms of real money they bring in at the box office."

"Right now it's fashionable to blame the stars for the poor financial condition of the film business," observes a top Hollywood agent. "That's ridiculous. The stars didn't blackmail the studios to pay them a million dollars. They were in a seller's market—why not get as much as they can? Their earning power doesn't last very long."

Some studio heads now will not consider star names for roles. They argue that some of the biggest recent hits have been without big star names: "The Graduate," "Easy Rider," M-A-S-H," "Midnight Cowboy."

"I don't want any leading actors over 35," says one production boss. "The young audience can't identify with anyone older."

Like all movie trends, this, too, probably will pass.

A new pattern is developing for employment of stars. They are asked to work at little or no salary, taking instead a share of hopeful profits.

Paul Flower's Greenhouse

When the curriculum for black students is made up, it is to be hoped that generous attention will be paid to the rich and colorful contributions to American English made by black Americans since the first Africans were brought to these shores.

If they had done nothing else, they have contrived hundreds of picturesque words and phrases which go far beyond mere communication, and our linguistic heritage is forever indebted to them for sayings which get the message across in unforgettable fashion.

For example, Uncle Remus asked, "You kin hide de fire, but what you gon' do 'bout de smoke?"

Graphic wisdom, that.

Now comes a compilation of additions to the language, "The Third Ear -- A Black Glossary," by Hermese E. Roberts, from the English language Institute of American, which will appear as a section in the Consolidated Webster Encyclopedic Dictionaries.

Here in the Mid-South we are familiar with such choice bits as "derail," for moonshine liquor; "crabapple switch," for switchblade knives with long and pointed cutting member; the "Hadden Horn," a dice cup invented by a Memphis mayor to curb cheating at craps probably was so named by black users; the expression, "where the Southern cross the Dog" has gone round the world as a synonym for Moorhead, Miss., and inspired Carroll Cloar's famous painting of the actual crossing.

When Roark Bradford's Widow Duck advised "be not disencouraged," she piled alinguistic Ossa on Pelion to good effect; and a porter at the Commercial Appeal, reporting on his triumph over Johnson grass, said he had "cut it down to teen age."

Hermese Roberts is a Chicago school principal who has kept her "third ear" tuned to jargon (after all, the now respectable "maudin" and "tawdry" were jargon once), and she has even paid children $10 for every 100 slang expressions they would bring in from black communities of Chicago and other cities, as well as from the Deep South.

Here are some of the contributions she has included in her glossary:

BUSTING SUDS -- washing dishes.

BLUE-EYED SOUL BROTHER -- a white person who can relate to blacks.

DO -- slic, processed hair.

DUSTIES -- old phonograph records, no longer in vogue.

GEORGIA HAMS -- watermelons. (Remember when Georgia ice cream was grits, and Georgia strawberries, black-eyed peas?)

GOT SOME CHEST--looking for a fight.

GIVE ME SOME SKIN -- requesting a handshake in which the palm is held flat while the greeter slides his hand along the open palm to the end of the fingers.

HINCTY -- snobbish.

HONKY -- white man, also known as ofay, The Man, Charley, Chuck, or Mickey Mouse.

PLAYING THE DOZENS--making derogatory remarks about another's mother. (This is an oldie in Dixie.)

SHEEN--automobile, probably from "machine".

TASTE--whisky.

REAL DOWN--very good.

RALPH BUNCHE (as verb)--to talk your way out of a tight situation, relying on diplomacy.

MAIN MELLOW--the favorite girl out of many, for a playboy.

THANG--thing, so pronounced. Workers among flood refugees in the Mississippi Valley will testify that many blacks refused to abandon their "thangs" even when water got into their houses.

FBI--Fat, Black, Ignorant. Derogatory term akin to "playing the dozens."

GET WASTED--get drunk.

VINES (or THREADS)--clothes. Fat threads used to indicate class and style.

Mrs. Roberts discarded many obscenities, although she was aware that they are intregal to the folk tongue.

Many of these expressions belong in the category of transient slang, cant, or jargon; some have prevailed for more than a century; some are regional, and some will go the way of all fads.

Be it hoped that black America will continue to enrich the language.

THE BARON BRANCHES OUT

John Mannering, alias The Baron, hero of John Creasey's popular mystery series, enlarges his antique business--and finds death an item in demand--in THE BARON BRANCHES OUT.

The Baron buys an Elizabethan manor house, and then decides to move it across the Atlantic to set up a Boston branch of his famous London antique shop. But he finds included in the shipment a corpse hidden in a secret staircase, and it soon becomes evident to Mannering that he has signed a bloody contract involving an ancestral fortune and a crafty killer.

Other John Creasey thrillers published by Avon include THE BARON AND THE MOGUL SWORDS and THE BARON AND THE STOLEN LEGACY.

Nixon Zeroing in On Bureaucrats

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

As best this reporter can determine from sources with access to the President and the White House staff, President Nixon has decided it is hopeless within the near future to gain direct control over the major departments and agencies of the government.

Yet Nixon is determined to gain that control.

He therefore has been shifting, gradually but firmly, more of the staff work on policy decisions away from the departments and agencies to the White House staff.

All presidents, in theory, make their own decisions. But, as is well-known, many proposals come to the president so defined and so staffed that in practice he is a prisoner of the staff work. He has very limited alternatives.

Under the new setup, the White House staff is very tightly in on the formulation of proposals at a very early stage of the game. A friend in one major agency reports that he recently submitted not one but five alternate proposals for action simultaneously. They went to the White House. He expects to be working in detail (in some cases, sentence by sentence) with the White House staff on altering and adjusting these proposals for some time before they reach the President. He believes that none of his proposals will be accepted. He expects, instead, that the President's immediate staff will draw together parts of two or three of his alternatives and forge them into a new proposal.

The important thing here is that in the past, traditionally, most of the staff work would have been done in the agency—not at the White House.

So far as can be determined, Nixon personally likes to work in this way, with final proposals or alternatives being hammered out by a tight staff of men he trusts.

But in considerable measure, it seems, the President is intensifying this shift in staff work from the departments to the White House because he no longer has confidence that he will get what he wants out of the departments.

To get what he wants would require a thorough housecleaning. And housecleaning in the government bureaucracy is a long and very difficult task.

All presidents feel that too often it is this bureaucracy that runs the government regardless of what the president wishes or orders. These bureaucrats control the facts. They control the flow of paper on which decisions and actions depend. They know how to slow action indefinitely on what they don't want and how to speed through what they do want.

While he is gathering more of this staff work into the White House, Nixon is pecking away at longer-range changes. He is bringing in experts who know the techniques of weeding out the men he doesn't want. This is difficult, but the cleanup is under way.

Advance National Guard Cagers to Play Sikeston

Company M, 1st, Reg. N.G. Mo., of Advance, will send a basketball squad here to meet Company K's team nest Monday night at the City Hall. Capt. Harry Dudley will pick a team out of the following squad: Byron Bowman, Paul Gilbert, Neil Gilbert, Byron Crain, Leonard Tanner, Fred Allard, Pleas Malcolm, Bill Crowe and James Matthews.

The basketball team from Malden High School lost to Sikeston last Friday night by the score of 38 to 17.

Last Tuesday night Morehouse played Sikeston on the latter's court and lost by the score 28 to 8.

Louis Jackson, a 10-year-old boy living west of the Frisco tracks in Sikeston, was seriously injured last Friday afternoon, when he was struck by an automobile driven by J.M. Boswell of Morehouse.

40 Years Ago
January 20, 1931

Charleston--Jimmie Sheppard, 23, was killed on the 16th when he fell while oiling the engine of a drag line working on the Mississippi County spillway near Brewers' Lake and his body was horribly mangled by the cable of the drag line.

Margaret Evans, daughter of Cyrus Evans of Paris, living with her mother at LeGrand, Calif., is among the leading radio soloists of the Pacific Coast. She is a sister of Miss Daisy Evans, teacher in the Sikeston High School.

It was a 100 per cent Sikeston night last Friday when the locals completely and thoroughly defeated the visiting Charleston Bluejays. Referee Michie was freely criticized for calling an unusually large number of fouls, at times for trivial infractions of basketball rules. With four shots discounted the locals would still be undisputed victors to the tune of 32-14 for the girls and 38 to 18 for the boys.

The Sikeston basketball winning streak received another boost Saturday night when Cunningham's seconds defeated a second string team at Diehlstadt 23 to 18.

ATTACK A SACRED COW

Editor, The Wall Street Journal: Your editorial "A Good Union Country" (Dec. 11) was very good and very timely, but this editorial could have been written in almost exactly the same words at almost any time in the past 35 years, because our labor monopoly problem goes back farther than that, but began to be hopeless with the passage of the Wagner Act.

It is rare to find an American publication that dares to criticize theses labor monopolies. Perhaps this is because the publishing industry is one of the most union - ridden industries in the country. Until the press, on a wide front, begins trying to educate the American people to understand the ruinous results of all this inflation caused by labor monopolies, nothing is going to be done about it.

It is practically impossible to get any worthwhile action in Congress because too many of its members were sent there by the labor monopolies. The urge must come from the people themselves if they can be made to understand what is being done to their savings and investments, and what is going to happen to this country if this inflation cannot be checked. Nothing remedial has been done about inflation in more than 35 years, and nothing remedial is being done about it now and it is most unlikely that anything will be done. To do anything about inflation means that we must attack one of the most untouchable of all the sacred cows in the country — the labor monopolies.

Vera Should Be Clad Not Stairs

That's The Law

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

When voluptous Vera tip-toed to the top of the stairway in front of her apartment to capture her morning bottle of milk, she was very cautious. She didn't want to be seen in her "shortie" pajamas by the bachelors who lived above her.

Unfortunately, she wasn't cautious enought. The stairway was wet from a rainfall and Vera, slipping on the top step, bounced down the stairway on her derriere. When she stopped bouncing, Vera sued the landlord for her injuries.

"He maintained the stairway in a dangerous and hazardous fashion," complained Vera in court. "It should have had a shed over it to prevent the stairway from becoming wet and slippery."

"Poppyrot," responded the landlord. "Vera didn't fall because the stairway wasn't covered. She fell because she wasn't covered. Had she been properly dressed, she would have been watching where she was stepping instead of watching who was watching."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit lightly clad Vera to collect for her injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a property owner is only required to provide stairs that can be negotiated safely in the exercise of ordinary care. He is not required to shield stairs from starers or from the rain.

Under Twenty

DEAR ASTRID
By Astrid Carson

Dear Astrid: My boy friend says he doesn't go with girls during school. But I found out two weeks ago that he is going with another girl. When I questioned him about it, he said I stay too far away for him. I still love him. In class he looks at me so hard I have to avoid him because I don't like what he did to me. Every time I pass him, he lights up like a Christmas tree and now he avoids his girl friend at school. Now there is another boy who wants to go with me. I want to think about it a little more. I don' know whether to say "yes" or "no". Should I stop avoiding my ex-boy friend or go with this other guy? ---Lisa

Dear Lisa: You certainly won't be losing anything by dating the new boy who is interested in you. You needn't jump from one steady to another and your ex certainly deserves a lesson for deceiving you about his school dating. All right, you still love him, but you've been hurt and treated unfairly. By dating the other boy, you'll make yourself even more interesting to your ex as long as you play it cool. As far as his claim that you keep too far away from him is concerned, it sounds like a very weak excuse for his playing around behind your back. Let him prove himself before you trust him and leave yourself open to being hurt again.

Dear Astrid: I had two girl friends to my house as guests over the holidays. One was a dream. She was fun, pitched in and helped and everybody like her. The other one was a drag. She wanted all the attention, didn't help with anything and wouldn't do anything anyone wanted to do. It was either "too cold" or she "didn't feel well." My parents didn't like her and told me so but they don't understand that she's got a lot of problems including being on a very rough diet to lose weight. They haven't told me so, but I know they'd like me to drop her as a friend. She hasn't got many and I think I'd be cruel to dump her. What do you think? ---Ellie

Dear Ellie: I think you're quite a friend to be so understanding. There are two things you might do to help the situation. First, don't subject your family and friends to her any more than necessary. She's your friend and if she really messes thing up, it isn't fair to burden others with her. Secondly, when you have the right opportunity, have a heart-to-heart talk with her. Tell her you understand her problems but not everyone does. When she is with others, she's got to learn to carry her share of the load, whether it is helping or just being pleasant. If she makes others suffer because of her problems, all she'll do is increase them because most people just won't make the allowances for her that you do. If you cant stand the drag of her friendship, you may be able to help her. But don't put yourself in the position of alienating others by insisting that they take her along with you.

Dear Astrid: I see this boy at the Mall almost every Saturday. He's really cute, has long blonde hair, and is about four years older than I. I'd love to say "hi" but I don't dare. Is there something I can do? ----Secret Admirer

Dear Secret: A friendly "hi" never hurt anybody. Depending on your age, though, you should give some thought to the fact that he's four years older than you and may not accept your interest on the same level you give it. So , don't be disappointed if it doesn't work out to much more than a friendly "hi" in return. Almost every girl that ever grew up had someone they secretly admired. It's part of the growing up process. But, don't let it shut you off from your friend, particularly the boys you know who are closer to your own age. The older boy may seem more glamorous, but in the long run you may be better off admiring him from a distance and being closer to others.

Spain Introduces Bill to Ease Physician Shortage

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A bill to ease Missouri's physician shortage by providing state aid to private medical schools was introduced in the Missouri House Monday by Rep. James Spain, D-Bloomfield.

The measure would give each of Missouri's four private medical schools $4,000 a year toward the education of each Missouri medical student. Spain said that would be less than the cost of expanding state-owned medical training schools.

The four private schools are at Washington and St. Louis Universities in St. Louis, the Kirksville College of Osteopathy and Surgery and the Kansas City College of Osteopathic Medicine.

Two bills requiring automobile manufacturers to install bumpers or energy absorption systems on all vehicles were introduced.

One by Rep. Patrick J. O'Connor, D-Bridgeton, would set a deadline of 1973, the other by Rep. Richard Smallwood, D-St. James, would set a deadline in 1974.

Other new measures would:

Let St. Louis County levy a county sales tax and share the revenue with its municipalities, on a population basis.

Ban the use of any beverage containers which do not have a refund value of at least 5 cents each.

Extend the state merit system to the revenue department.

Provide a pay increase for the lower levels of State Highway Department employes — 8 per cent for those now getting less than $500 a month; 4 per cent for those getting between $500 and $750 a month; 2 per cent for those getting between $750 and $1,000, and none for any employe receiving more than $1,000.

Provide a World War IIbonus to Missouri veterans of up to $300 at an estimated cost of more than $87 million with the financing from a 4-cents a package increase in the present 9 cent cigarette tax. Veteran's bonus proposals have regularly failed in Missouri for the past quarter century.

Extend the election law study commission for another two years, until July, 1973.

That measure was offered by Rep. Thomas Ryan, D-Kansas City.

Other new bills would:

Change the constitution to permit games of chance, such as bingo, to finance charitable, religious, patriotic or educational programs.

Require the State Department of Agriculture to handle all milk inspections. Some larger cities now handle their own ininspections.

Protect the landowner from any damages for loss or injury suffered by anyone entering his land to fish or hunt.

Permit arresting authorities to hold a juvenile for up to eight hours before turning him over to a juvenile officer or juvenile court. Now he must be transferred "immediately and directly."

Give members of the legislature travel expenses of 10 cents a mile, once a week roundtrip between their homes and the capitol, when the legislature is in session. Now the limit is twice a month.

Require retailers to make separate payments for state and local sales tax, to simplify the state's job of keeping the payments apart.

Ban the use of lead-bearing substances, such as paint, on the surfaces of any dwelling or dwelling unit, on toys or furniture.

Let the State Park Board pay inmates of the State Training Schools for Boys, at Boonville and Poplar Bluff, $25 a month instead of $15 for refurbishing work they do in state parks during the off-season.

Extend the governmental reorganization commission until July 1, 1972, an additional year.

Give Missourians a tax deduction for money spent for educational tuition, fees and books

Change the constitution to let smaller counties adopt the char-3 ter form of government. It would decrease from 85,000 to 40,000 the minimum population needed for the plan and 8 per cent of the voters, instead of 20 per cent, would be required on petitions calling for a charter election.

The House received two bills Monday designed to crack down on the drunken driver.

One would: 2nd graf M17.

One would reduce from the present .015 per cent to .010 per cent the weight of alcohol in the bloodstream of a driver to prove he is intoxicated. It was introduced by Rep. Donald L. Gann, R-Ozark.

The other would provide that a Municipal Court conviction for drunken driving, as well as a conviction in a state court, would mean 12 points against a driver's record—plus automatic suspension of the right to drive.

Baby Girl Dies as Fire Sweeps House

NEW MADRID--A 15-month-old girl, Antwan Smith, daughter of George and Beatrice Smith, died Tuesday in a fire that gutted the home located at First and Pinnell Streets.

The four-room frame house was engulfed in flames when the fire department arrived minutes after receiving the call at 2:30 p.m.

A feeble elderly grandmother Georgia Ross and two other children were able to get out of the flaming house, but flames blocked rescue of the baby.

The fire was fought two hours before being extinguished. The fire department had to return to the scene at 5:40 p.m. when fire flared again.

Cause of the fire could not be determined.

The Smith girl was born Oct. 28, 1969 in Scott county. Graveside services were at 2 p.m. today at Fannie Powell cemetery with the Rev. Andrew Shoffner officiating. Richards Funeral Home was in charge.

Change in Air Support Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dispatch of American helicopters to aid the allied offensive in Cambodia comes six and a half months after President Nixon declared "no U.S. air or logistics support" would be used to aid South Vietnamese fighting in Cambodia.

Now, however, U.S. helicopters operating for the first time from 7th Fleet ships off the Cambodian coast have been providing firepower and logistics support—ferrying supplies and aiding in communications—for the Cambodian-South Vietnamese force battling to reopen Phnom Penh's key highway to the sea.

In news briefings this week, Jerry W. Friedheim, the Defense Department's deputy assistant secretary for public affairs, described these efforts as "air combat and logistic activities" and said they represent no change in administration policy.

These operations, he explained, 'fall in the over-all context of our interdiction effort to deal in Cambodia with enemy personnel, bases and supplies which might ultimately endanger the lives and safety of U.S. personnel inside South Vietnam as we continue the Vietnamization program and the redeployment of American forces."

Friedheim was asked in an interview how the American effort now under way falls within Nixon's June 30 statement that no air or logistics support would be provided the South Vietnamese in Cambodia.

Friedheim replied it is not up to him to interpret the President.

Nixon, in a nationwide television address barring U.S. ground personnel and military advisers from Cambodia, said:

"We will conduct—with the approval of the Cambodian government—air interdiction missions against the enemy efforts to move supplies and personnel through Cambodia towards South Vietnam and to re-establish base areas relevant to the war in South Vietnam."

The South Vietnamese, Nixon continued, would remain ready to block re-establishment of the enemy's border sanctuaries cleaned out in May and June by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops.

"Most of these operations will be launched from within South Vietnam," Nixon said. "There will be no U.S. air or logistics support."

Since June, there have been many indications that the "air interdiction" Nixon mentioned has been defined broadly to include air attacks by U.S. planes and helicopters on enemy positions and concentrations, thus helping the Cambodians in their battles with the North Vietnamese.

Such actions apparently are what officials refer to as "ancillary" or side effects from interdiction, although this was never spelled out.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, asked about U.S. aid in the Cambodian offensive, also said the action represents no change in administration policy.

Ziegler said Nixon, in the June 30 statement, referred to withholding U.S. forces from actions designed to clear out Communist sanctuaries.

The current action, Ziegler said, is part of an effort to protect U.S. troops in Vietnam, and added each incident is being reviewed on an individual basis.

Anderson Withstands Challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois withstood a conservative challenge today and narrowly won re-election to the House Republican's No.3 leadership post.

Anderson, a moderate, defeated Rep. Samuel L. Devine of Ohio, a conservative, for chairman of the House Republican Conference.

The vote was 89 to 81.

The conservative bloc had mounted a drive to defeat Anderson in his bid for a second term in the chairmanship.

Their head-to-head race came as the 180 Republicans elected to the 92nd Congress caucused to name leaders, adopt rules and consider a report on seniority before Congress convenes Thursday.

House Democrats settled their only serious leadership battle, electing Hale Boggs as majority leader over Morris Udall.

Senate Republicans caucus Thursday and may face a rematch of the 1969 battle in which Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania defeated Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee for the GOP leadership.

Scott claims enough votes—23 will be needed—to win a new term. But supporters of Baker, who has not announced his candidacy, challenge that claim.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan and Leslie C. Arends of Illinois, the whip, are unchallenged in their bids for new terms.

The conference chairman ranks behind these two posts in the GOP hierarchy. He presides over monthly sessions of the conference, composed of all House Republicans, and sits in on weekly White House GOP leadership meetings with President Nixon.

Anderson, 48, came to Congress 10 years ago with conservative credentials. But as a member of the House Rules Committee he has angered conservatives over several votes for civil rights bills, the administration's family assistance plan and consumer legislation. He won the party post two years ago on a 116-56 vote.

Devine, a 55-year-old ex-FBI agent, is a staunch conservative. He is a husky former college athlete who still referees football games.

The conference planned to consider a report on seniority by a special task force headed by Rep. Barber Conable of New York. It has the support of House GOP Leader Ford.

This report envisions a secret vote by all Republican House members on nominations from a special committee for the top GOP committee posts.

Seniority, although it no longer would be the sole criterion of nomination, would continue a major consideration in selecting committee chairmen.

Fall from Tractor Kills Youth

GRANDIN--A 14-year-old Grandin youth was killed Sunday when he slipped off a tractor on which he was riding and fell under the wheel.

Milton Holmes was pronounced dead at Doctor's Hospital in Poplar Bluff at 4 p.m. His body was taken to the Edwards Funeral Home in Doniphan.

A spokesman for Troop E Headquarters of the Missouri Highway Patrol said the Holmes youth was riding on the tractor and his brother, Quinton, 16, was guiding it.

Their mother, Novella Holmes, 36, was pulling the tractor with a pickup truck, trying to start it. The patrol said the Holmes youth apparently slipped off. The accident occurred at 2:50 p.m. 15 miles southwest of Poplar Bluff.

The fatality brought the Southeast Missouri death toll to nine for the year, compared to seven last year.

Nixon Arrives at Midway Mark Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is two years in office today and any appraisal of his performance in the first half of his term should not ignore his own assessment: "I hope I do better."

Nixon is frank to concede performance fell short of his high expectations of 24 months ago, but he can take comfort from the fact he experienced no earth-shaking setbacks.

His decision last spring to send U.S. ground troops into Cambodia raised many an eyebrow and many a voice—but the operation was officially proclaimed a military success and in no way could be labeled Nixon's Bay of Pigs. He has had no such disasters.

Some observers, looking for a handy measure of presidential performance, seize upon public opinion polls that attempt to measure a chief executive's popularity.

In Nixon's case, more meaningful yardsticks can be found in statistical charts that dramatize:

1. The President's most notable success to date: His effort to gradually liquidate the Vietnam war.

2. His most notable failure: A faltering economy that did not respond to his pre-1971 prescriptions, or predictions.

When Nixon took office, there were 542,400 troops in Vietnam. Now there are about 335,000 and the level is projected to drop to 284,000 by May 1. Monthly combat deaths fell during the period from 795 to 138. Draft calls dropped from 26,800 a month to a current 17,000.

The economy presents a quite different picture. Living costs climbed from 124.1 to 137.8 as measures against a 1957-59 average of 100. The unemployment rate ballooned from 3.4 per cent of the work force to an even 6 per cent—a nine-year high. And in 1970, the broadest measure of economic activity, the Gross National Product, declined for the first time in 12 years, making allowances for inflation.

Taken together, statistics on Vietnam and the economy suggest Nixon has had offsetting ups and downs in two years. While no such conclusion should be reached on the basis of charts covering only two issues, there is some evidence to suggest that even Nixon may not disagree with the view that his 24-month record leaves him not far from where he started Jan. 20, 1969.

Otherwise, why would he be revising economic policy and voicing new promises of domestic reforms?

Quite apart from Vietnam, the chief executive can count other important accomplishments. For one thing, no cities burned, there were no major riots and, by the start of 1971, the campus mood seemed quieter. A big factor with students, perhaps, was a Nixon-initiated reform of the military draft—another plus for the administration.

Although crime rates continued to rise, they did so at a slower pace than in the last years of the Johnson administration. And while some grumbled about Nixon's approach to school desegregation, considerable progress was registered on that front in the once-recalcitrant South.

In foreign affairs, talks with the Soviets on limitation of strategic arms were launched—though negotiations slowed perceptibly as Middle East tensions mounted and produced edginess in Washington-Moscow relations.

As for the Middle East, the administration brought about an Arab-Israeli cease-fire that continued into the new year, and a potential autumn military confrontation in Jordan was avoided.

Clearly, 1969 was kinder to Nixon than 1970. Last year's congressional elections results brought him, in fact, to a low point. Since November, however, the President has made what would seem to be an effective stab at regaining the initiative.

In his first year in office, Nixon quickly gave heart to the many Americans who had tired of the Vietnam war and former President Lyndon B. Johnson's preoccupation with Asia.

After hardly warming his chair, Nixon took off for Europe, to dramatize his personal concern about that part of the world. Then, flying to Midway Island for a conference with the president of South Vietnam, he announced the first of the continuing rounds of U.S. troop withdrawals from the war zone.

A Nixon plan to install a limited number of antiballistic missiles in the United States prompted a lengthy Senate debate and his view prevailed by but a single vote.

But this close call was overshadowed by a more momentous event: The planting of the American flag on the moon by the first men to reach that goal. Basking in the reflected glory of the three pioneering astronauts, Nixon flew to the Pacific to witness their successful recovery from the sea.

Continuing what became a globe-circling journey, Nixon proceeded to Guam and there enunciated a "doctrine" that now bears his name—a general policy statement that in the future the United States would try to limit its troop role overseas and would expect its foreign friends to do more to help themselves militarily.

On the minus side, from Nixon's standpoint, the Democratic-controlled Congress did not hesitate to revise or ignore administration proposals.

The Senate handed the President his biggest direct rebuff by rejecting his Supreme Court nominee, Judge Clement F. Haynsworth of South Carolina. Early 1970 produced a new hassle with the Senate, which again spurned a Supreme Court nominee, this one G. Harrold Carswell.

Much more important was a surprise presidential announcement April 30 that he had ordered U.S. ground forces into combat in Communist-threatened Cambodia. He argued the offensive would help protect American lives in South Vietnam.

The home front exploded. Thousands of students went on strike, demonstrators laid a day-long seige to the White House, and National Guardsmen and police shot and killed students at colleges in Ohio and Mississippi.

Moreover, Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel wrote the President a forceful letter that argued the administration was not paying sufficient heed to young people or, for that matter, to Cabinet members.

On June 30, the last American combat man left Cambodia and the domestic uproar died away.

One major Nixon reform was enacted, under the spur of a disruptive wave of illegal strikes by postal workers. Congress voted to transform the Post Office Department into a government corporation and to relinquish its power to fix postal rates.

State of Union Messages Have Become Pep Talks

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — President Nixon delivers his State of the Union Message to Congress on Friday. The address will be nationally televised at 9 p.m.

It takes some looking to find a State of the Union address of recent vintage that hasn't been dominated by war in Vietnam or trouble on the home front. As an exercise in nostalgia, President Lyndon B. Johnson's euphoric message of Jan. 4, 1965, will suffice. It was kind of a last hurrah to the wonderful wackiness of the best of the 1960s when love and bread were almost free and things had not yet turned ugly.

The year just ended -- 1964-- had been a good one for the American President, a year of continuation and consolidation. On the domestic front, Johnson had taken firm hold of the Presidency, enlarging on the support engendered by President Kennedy's assassination and winning election in November 1964 by the largest popular vote margin in history.

"Most important of all," declared Mr. Johnson in his nationally televised message, "the United States has re-emerged into the fullness of its self - confidence and purpose. No longer are we called upon to get America moving. We are moving ... No longer can anyone wonder whether we are in the grip of historical decay. We know that history is ours to make. And if there is great danger, there is now also the excitement of great expectations."

Nothing visible that night foreshadowed the tragedy that awaited Johnson little more than three years later when, immersed in an unpopular and costly war in Southeast Asia, he would announce his decision not to seek reelection in the interests of trying to unite the country and bring peace through negotiation in Vietnam.

The assembled congressmen, senators, cabinet officers, Supreme Court justices and foreign diplomats must have liked Johnson's characterization of the state of the union as "free, restless, growing, and full of hope." They interrupted his address 57 times with applause.

A year later, the cost of the conflict in Vietnam dominated Johnson's State of the Union Message, the Republicans demanded -- and got -- national TV network time for a rebuttal -- the first coordinated "state of the union" message by an opposition party in U.S. history. Six days before leaving office, Jan. 14, 1969, Johnson delivered his sixth and final State of the Union Message, with the words that were both elegy and epitaph: "... At least it will be said that we tried."

President Nixon skipped an opportunity to follow up the Johnson message with one of his own, relying instead on his inaugural address to set the tone for his administration. His first State of the Union Message came on Jan. 22, 1970, in a 36-minute effort that was somewhat philosophical in content and treated in a general way questions concerning the "quality of American life."

Nowthe President again is preparing to meet the Constitutional requirement (Art. II, Sec. 3) to ',from time to time give to the Congress information of the State of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary andexpedient." In an electronic age, the message is in reality a report not so much to Congress as to the American people. And in recent years, at least, it has become a pep talk for a nation down on its luck.

Truce Heads off Strike

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corp. have reached tentative agreement on a new three-year contract covering 110,000 production employes in the United States and Canada, UAW President Leonard Woodcock announced today.

The union ordered all its men to stay on the job beyond a 10 a.m. strike deadline while negotiators continue work on the section of the contract covering 10,000 salaried personnel.

While the agreement generally followed the pattern set in negotiations at Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp., including a 51-cent-an-hour firstyear raise--a new twist was added.

The two sides agreed to establish a six-member committee to study the feasibility of changing to a four-day, 40-hour workweek. Woodcock told a news conference the feasibility study could conceivably lead to a pilot project testing the four-day week, which has been used in some small industries and retail outlets but never by a major corporation, at two or three plants.

The union accepted Chrysler's offer of the four-day week study in exchange for a demand that Chrysler deduct the cost of a worker paid union-sponsored dental care plan from workers' wages, Woodcock said.

Nonfarm Payments Challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government auditors have challenged payment of $618,000 to divert feed-grain production in 1969 at a nudist club, gravel pit, garbage dumps and housing developments.

The General Accounting Office told Congress Friday efforts are being made to recover any unearned or excessive payments.

The GAO said the Agriculture Department has accepted GAO recommendations to exclude from the feed-grain program any nonfarm land and will review and strengthen controls.

Auditors selected for their review 14 counties in six states, mostly in areas undergoing urbanization. The areas were not identified.

The report said "questionable diversion payments" totaling about $618,000 were made to 938 farm owners or operators.

Detailed reviews of payments totaling $185,000, the GAO said, showed 136 landowners received about $116,000 "for land used, or designated for use, for such purposes as housing and commercial development, recreation, country estates, sod nurseries, garbage dumps, gravel pits" and a nudist colony. Some of these land owners received a total of $87,000 in prior years.

Under the voluntary feed-grain program, a producer diverts part of his land from production to an approved conservation use. In return, he is eligible for price-support payments and loans on the balance of his crop.

But the GAO said some payments didn't contribute to production control or land conservation, since the current or intended use of the plots ruled out feed grain production.

Morris Favors Gas Tax Hike

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Lt. Gov. William S. Morris told the Missouri Restaurant Association board of directors that he is convinced Missouri needs more money than it got in 1970.

"The problem of additional revenue is still No. 1," Morris said Monday night. He added that the problems had only been temporarily solved by last month's special session.

Morris said he favors an increase in gasoline tax, but opposes a proposed increase tied to a bond issue.

"The recommendation of the highway commission of a two cent increase in gasoline tax and an increase in licensing that will be equivalent to another one cent," Morris said, "certainly has my support. . .

"I also support the bond program. . ." Morris said but explained he saw no reason for risking defeat of increased revenue by tying it to the bond issue. He said he considers them separate issues.

Morris also endorsed the socalled Stevenson plan which would permit banks to bid on state deposits.

Fourth of Aged Americans on Poverty Income

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Special Committee on Aging says one of every four Americans 65 years and over is living on a poverty-level income.

The committee, in a report on the economics of aging, said both the number and the proportion of aged poor increased between 1968 and 1969. There were approximately 4.8 million people over 65 living in poverty in 1969—an increase of almost 200,000, the committee said.

The report said the number of under-65 persons in the poverty bracket declined by 1.2 million during the same period.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., the committee chairman, said in a preface to the report that Congress should vote a 10 per cent Social Security increase for 1971 and 20 per cent for 1972 to meet "this unnoticed income crisis."

The Senate voted a 10 per cent boost last year and the House approved a 5 per cent hike, but the two branches never got together and the bills died.

The committee said the aged have been hard hit by unemployment in the current economic slump and that soaring property taxes have jeopardized their efforts to hold onto homes. Rapidly rising health costs contributed to their woes, it said.

The report recommended that serious consideration be given to using Treasury general revenues to finance part of Social Security and to expanding medicare to cover prescription drugs for the chronically ill.

Same Old Fiscal Crunch Faces New Legislature

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri legislators will start feeling that old fiscal crunch again Tuesday.

That's the day Gov. Warren E. Hearnes plans to send up his budget recommendations for the 1971-72 fiscal year. The total is expected to be around $1.7 billion compared with appropriations of $1.4 billion this year.

Detailed figures will not be available until the budget is sent up in printed form. But the governor gave advance notice at the last special legislative session he would present a budget based on "a realistic and necessary level of expenditures."

He urged the special session to enact revenue producing measures to help finance and said in that case it would be a balanced budget.

But he warned:

"If that action is not taken, I would present the same budget in January — accompanied by recommendations for additional revenue. The 76th general assembly (the one now in session) then would face the responsibility of either raising needed revenue or taking affirmative action to curtail vital state services."

The special session did not heed the warning. It passed an emergency increase in individual and corporate income taxes for one year only, ending Dec. 31, 1971. That means revenue would not be sufficient to finance the proposed budget for the last six months of the 1971-72 fiscal year ending June 30, 1972.

So here comes the fiscal crunch again.

It is not a new feeling for the legislators who served through the last two years, wrecked by revenue fights from start to finish. But it may bring some surprises to the 37 new members who will be facing the hard fiscal facts of state government for the first time.

The way things stand, it is not even certain that there will be enough money to get through the present fiscal year ending June 30.

Among other things left hanging by the special session was a $14 million emergency appropriation bill which will be the first order of business when the House Appropriations Committee starts work next week.

In his year-end report, Comptroller John C. Vaughn noted that sales tax receipts are running behind the comparable six months of a year ago and total general revenue is only slightly ahead of last year.

First six month collections for the sales tax, the state's major revenue producer, totaled $147.4 million, compared with $150.4 million for the July-December period a year earlier.

Income tax receipts were up, however—$71.8 million this year against $62.5 million a year ago.

Vaughn blames economic conditions, aggravated by prolonged strikes in both the Kansas City and St. Louis metropolitan areas, for the sales tax decline.

He has revised his revenue estimate for the 1970-71 fiscal year to $635.7 million, to take into account an estimated $19.9 million from the revenue measures passed by the special session.

But he says that unless things improve, the new total probably cannot be reached.

All of these things boil down to tough problems for the legislature.

The lawmakers also must remember the governor's promise that he would again recommend some kind of an extension of the present income tax rates and a $70 million increase in state aid to schools to meet the legislature's 1969 commitment.

He also said he would recommend $2.6 million for junior colleges, $17.3 million for the University of Missouri, $7.8 million for the state colleges and Lincoln University, $17.7 million for welfare and $13.4 million for mental health.

Several revenue bills already have been introduced, including one by Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur, to extend the present emergency income tax rates on a permanent basis.

Some legislators have expressed a preference for a sales tax increase as easier to collect and less likely to cause public resentment. But the governor has said repeatedly that he prefers an income tax based on ability to pay rather than a sales tax which hits harder at the poor and at retired people on fixed incomes.

Both houses return to Jefferson City at 4 p.m. Monday after a week's vacation.

Sen. J. F. Patterson, D-Caruthersville, Senate president pro tem, plans to appoint his committees as soon as the Senate adopts its new rules Monday and House Speaker James E. Godfrey, D-St. Louis, expects to announce the House committees Tuesday.

Sen. Donald Manford, D-Kansas City, a 36-year-old lawyer who has been in the Senate only since 1968, is expected to be the Senate appropriations chairman succeeding Sen. T. D. McNeal, D-St. Louis, who did not seek re-election last year.

In the House, Rep. E. J. Cantrell, D-Overland, is expected to be the appropriations chairman for the second time. He has been in the House since 1958.

Judge Ends 40 Years on County Court

NEW MADRID–Presiding Judge O. R. Rhodes of the County Court of New Madrid County was honored with a party in the County Courtroom Dec. 31, it being the judge's final day of service after having served on the county court since 1931.

The judge was presented with a pen and pencil set by officials of the county, the set being enscribed with his dates of service–"1931—1970".

Refreshments of cake and coffee, furnished by Mrs. Van H. Sharp, were served to personnel of the court house, members of the judge's family and a few other friends.

Judge Rhodes, who will be 96 years old March 13, was not a candidate for re-election last year, and he had been succeeded by Raymond Ashley as presiding judge.

Editor Blanton:

On September 19, 1970 the automobile which I was driving was forced off the highway but still struck head-on by another automobile. The other auto was driven by a drunken driver on the wrong side of the highway and traveling at excessive speed. My wife was 8½ months pregnant at the time of the accident and she received internal injuries resulting in the stillborn delivery of the baby and a total hysterectomy. She also received serious facial lacerations which will require five or six operations over the next year to correct only part of the damage. A great deal of the damage can never be repaired!

The UNINSURED driver of the other automobile was drunk! (22% was the official result of his blood test). He was issued a traffic citation for drunken driving and on December 24, 1970 (the accident occurred September 19) justice finally took its toll.

Many people attempted to warn me that Missouri laws regarding drunken driving were extremely lax. After 15 years in the U.S. Navy, having served in several countries and many states, and having observed their laws and penalities regarding drunken driving, I felt sure that Missouri would also have soom teeth in their laws covering drunken driving.

But on December 24, 1970 I found that Missouri law is toothless! For operating a motor vehicle drunk, driving at excessive speed on the wrong side of the highway, causing an accident which cost the live of an unborn child, serious permanent damage to my wife, removed any possibility of additional children, broken arms suffered by my wife, and oldest daughter, multiple cuts and bruises plus immeasurable heartache and emotional stress this negligent driver received a fine of $100 and 6 months jail sentence (the jail sentence was suspended provided he obey the law).

Since this individual was uninsured he paid his $100 fine and walked away free while WE are left to pay for his negligent action. I say WE because as a member of the military my families medical expenses (over $3,000 and possibly will reach over $5,000) are paid for by us, the taxpayer!

I can only hope that Missouri will soon join the ranks of the States that believe a slap on the wrist is not sufficient punishment or deterrent for the drunken driver! As soon as my family is physically able to travel we will leave Missouri and take up residence where I can feel adequately protected when I drive on their highways.

Glance At Poetry

By Charles Brady

COMEDY OF ERRORS

As 1970 turns to 71
and we reflect to see what has been done, it's too bad we have no photograph of the past to give us a hearty laugh.

Michael failed in his capacity
to justly serve his county.
But we taxpayers must remember,
that Holman's men were no better.

New Madrid has an industrial site
and Symington helped turn on the light.
But work stoppages and disputes have prevailed
and we wonder just where they have failed.

Sheriff Clyde Orton went to court
to see just whom was sold short.
Liquor raids and gambling was the story
and Danforth's boys won the glory.

A Morehouse marshal tries to steal
and a key is refused to Mayor Neal.
The mayor resigned and a on me
marshal is hired
but he's on parole and is quickly fired.

And then there's an Alabama (or Missouri) man for our files that surely won't bring Gilmore any smiles.
We're not sure just what it will bring
but Whittle says "it's no Brigg thing".

And finally a joke is played while I enjoyed my family's
Christmas tree.
homeless
but the postscript shows
Sikeston's greatness.

So many people went out of their way to make my life better today.

-Charles Brady.

Sikeston, Mo.

MIND, HOPE

As a sigh is sighed
in the mind has died
a multitude of hopes and wishes.

On the morrow we pray
with the breaking of day
as the oceans replaces her fishes,
The mind will be shaken,
a thought will awaken
and the mind will live on with our dreams.

For live on as it seems is our hopes and our dreams
and the end can be just the beginning.

Amen.
-James E. Brannon,
Sikeston, Mo.

It would be absolutely impossible to starve to death there. On one side of a road you'll find a tall swaying coconut palm just loaded with fruit, under it a small banana with one branch laden down with a bunch of green bananas, next to that an orange, perhaps melons or morning with their shrill singing violently that still after 200 years no Monteigo Bay will go to the great house in Kingston, Jamaica, to see that after it has stood all alone when the sun sets & empty all these years it is murdered Annie Griffs, through Spices. natives that are being the events again. Leonard Hall Easter Seal Chairman

ST. LOUIS–Leonard Hall, native Ozarkian and Missouri's most widely read writer on conservation, natural history and country life, has been appointed state chairman of the 1971 Easter Seal Campaign, announced Chauncey L. Leeper, president of the Missouri Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

During the campaign, March 1 through Easter Sunday, April 11, Hall will lead a statewide corps of volunteers in seeking funds for treatment and rehabilitation services for the physically handicapped.

Hall's mother, Mrs. Catherine Leonard Hall, was a founder and director of both the Missouri and the St. Louis Societies for Crippled Children.

Hall has written for Life, Harpers, Successful Farming, Audubon Magazine, and has published four books: Possum Trot Farm, Country Year, Stars Upstream and Ozark Wildflowers. Possum Trot, his farm home in Caledonia, Mo., is also the title of his column that appears twice weekly in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

With his wife, Virginia, Hall has produced nature and wildlife films which have been shown on television and on the Hall's lecture tours in 200 cities across the United States, Canada and the Caribbean.

Hall's conservation effort has received nationwide recognition; the 1945 Missouri Master Conservation Award; honorary degrees from Westminister College and Washington University; the 1959 Thomas Stokes Award for "the best writing on natural resources in an American newspaper;" the 1965 Missouri Governor's Award as "State Conservationist;" the 1967 Golden Anniversary Award of the Federal Land Banks, and an appointment to the Missouri Academy of Squires.

Much credit was given to Hall for the preservation of the Current and Jacks Fork Rivers, resulting in the Ozark National Scenic Riverways under the direction of the National Park Service.

LEONARD HALL, nature writer and conservationist from Possum Trot Farm, Caledonia, has been named state Easter Seal campaign chairman. Bertig Says Effort to Honor Checks Underway

PARAGOULD, Ark.–W.L. Gatz, president of The Bertig Co. announced today that significant progress was made yesterday in negotiations between The Bertig Co. and its major secured creditors. The purpose of these negotiations is to develop a workable plan for orderly handling of Bertig affairs. It is anticipated that this will be accomplished and that producers will be paid for checks which they hold or for crops that they have marketed through The Bertig Co. and its affiliates.

Gatz said, "The plan to pay all producers will be possible only if no legal action is brought against The Bertig Co. or its affiliates while an extensive audit of the company's assets and liabilities is being conducted."

"This audit is expected to take about three weeks. If it produces the expected results, producers will be paid shortly there-after," Gatz added.

Everything is being done, Gatz said, to protect the claims of the producers and assets of the corporation. The stockholders of The Bertig Co. and affiliated corporations will be required to meet to ratify the plan.

On December 31, Bertig notified its customers that due to an unexpected curtailment of credit, the cash funds needed to honor outstanding producer checks was not available. The immediate suspension of operation was designed to stop the further outflow of cash to keep the situation from deteriorating to a point of impossible recovery.

For the past two weeks, crews have been marshaling all personal properties and inventories into a central warehouse in order to expedite their possible liquidation to pay producer checks.

All gin and elevator properties have been securely closed to preserve the dollar value of these properties, which may be sold at a later date.

Gatz reported that the announcement that The Bertig Co.'s 15 gins and 11 grain elevators would, in all probability, not be reopened, has spurred a number of producers to express concern about what ultimate effect the shut-down of so many gins and grain elevators would have upon the ability of farmers in Northeast Arkansas and Southeast Missouri to market the 1971 crop.

Gatz says that hundreds of Bertig customers have called at their main office in Paragould to discuss their particular situation and from all indications these people have been reassuring that Bertig was doing everything in its power to solve this problem.

Dear Editor:

"Because of the widespread ignorance and confusion among the American people concerning the nature of Communism, its tactics and purposes, there is a need for the counter-agent of education." (Foreword to "Brief on Communism"–American Bar Association, 1952)

Major Edgar C. Bundy, General Chairman of the Church League of America states: "There is no subject under the sun about which more nonsense, total mis-conception, deliberately planned confusion, or heavily obscurantist philosophizing has been done than Communism. Few individuals, in what remains of the Free World, are able to recognize the enemy even when he is working in their midst. He appears in various forms and clever disguises. The leaders of Communism are individuals of high intelligence, very clever and they are supported with a great deal of money earned under a capitalistic or free enterprise system." Major Bundy further states: "The Communist movement is a disease. It is a materialistic religion. It affects the mind. It is a Satanic substitute for Christianity and the Gospel."

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, Director of Federal Bureau of Investigation has been active in combating Communism since 1919 when the Communist Party first organized in America at a convention in Chicago, Ill. Their sole purpose from the beginning was to destroy the Free World. This was more than 50 years ago and Mr. Hoover says they have not deviated from this course and is still in full effect today. He adds: "This is the enemy we face. An enemy which at this hour controls "one-third of the world's PEOPLES" and "one-quarter of the EARTH'S land surface." (March 27, 1967)

In 1957 Nikita Krushchev was interviewed before a nation-wide American television audience. With calm assurance he stated "I can prophesy that your grandchildren in America will live under socialism." (a prelude to Communism.)

Following this, Mr. Hoover aptly states: "Never has there been a time when we have so much need for one another. We need the help of all loyal Americans. The FBI CANNOT do it all alone." The quotations from the Bible, which he uses often, is closely related to this subject–"Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." He says that a step in that direction can be made by teaching courses on Communism in our schools.

Major Bundy says the "misguided" liberals and "misguided" intellectuals, in many ways, have made it easier for Communists to operate. Do we fully understand this statement? How well informed are we on the nature of Communism? Enough to protect our children and grandchildren from this evil existence?

The following questions and answers provide further proof of the above quotations.

Q.–What four men conceived and formulated the doctrine of Communism?

A.–Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin. MARX an athiest, produced the Communist Manifesto. ENGELS, a fellow German, became Marx's intellectual comrade, his financial supporter and his faithful champion. These two men formulated the basic doctrine. LENIN, took the theory and galvanized it into organization and action. He was a propagandist and agitator and is credited with the "developer" of modern-day Communism. STALIN, an old Bolshevik, worked his way up to the Party's General Secretary by using every opportunity to increase his power. Thru murder, deceit and brutality he gave Communism power to spread to other countries.

Q.–What are the five principal areas, or circles, of "thought control" keys to the Communist aim to achieve control of the U.S"? Explain each.

A.–OPEN PARTY MEMBERS–They make no effort to conceal their membership. CONCEALED PARTY MEMBERS–They do not want to be publicly known because they can often advance the Party's cause among people and in organizations where open members would be scorned. FELLOW TRAVELERS AND SYMPATHIZERS–Fellow travelers, while not a member, actively supports the Party's program for a time. The sympathizer is more passive, may or may not give active aid. They are not party members, but in some degree have come under Party control. OPPORTUNISTS–These people who are cynical and self-seeking and will support the Party if they can benefit personally, not caring if they injure the nation. DUPES–These are innocent victims, who un-knowingly are under "thought control" and does the work of the Party. Many good people have been duped into helping Communism.

Q.–Do you know the most effective tactic used by the Communist when an American makes an attempt to expose their plans?

A.–Character Assassination, by any means necessary. By subtle insinuations or outright attacks.

Q.–In which government agency was the first known cell of secret Communists set up?

A.–The State Department.

Q.–Do college graduates necessarily have a better understanding of the nature of Communism and how Communists operate than those with lesser education? Why?

A.–No, because of the Communist infiltration in many colleges, it is not taught and is not being taught in many high schools.

Q.–What is the difference between the origin of the Christian Gospel and the origin of the Social Gospel?

A.–The Christian Gospel had its origin in Jesus Christ. The Social Gospel had its origin in Karl Marx.

Q.–Name three authorities who have given documented testimony concerning Communist penetration of religious groups.

A.–J. EDGAR HOOVER, Director of FBI. HERBERT A. PHILBRICK, former undercover spy for the FBI. Dr. J.B. MATTHEWS, former staff member of the Senate Gov't. Operations Committee and author of the famous "Reds and Our Churches".

Q.–If ever there is a Communist controlled America, Mr. Hoover says the Party bosses will take over the recreational facilities, such as the hotels, country clubs and swimming pools for their private use. Many businesses, jobs, professions and institutions will be eliminated, such as city mayors, chiefs of police, salesman, stock brokers, insurance agencies, realtors, wholesalers, accountants, banks and churches. Do you understand the reasons? There are two professions (not listed above) which the Communists detest most, and these will be the first to be eliminated. Can you name them and why?

A.—(Last part of the question) THEOLOGY, because the Communists are atheists, therefore, no need for clergymen to preach the Christian Gospel. LAW, because there will be no rights for lawyers to defend.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Clifford LaPlant
January 18, 1971.

Dear Sir

Thank you for the support you gave us in communicating the availability of our Service Station Service Manual. I thought that you would appreciate learning the results of your effort.

While we knew that RV owners would appreciate this attempt to help service station owners to improve their service to recreation vehicles, and felt that we could count upon your help, we did not anticipate the reaction we have received from service station owners. This was the most gratifying aspect of the whole venture.

It proved to us that there are many service station operators who are dedicated and do desire to serve the public. So much so, that they took their time to send a letter and two bits to get information that would help them serve the recreation traveler.

Thank you, and I hope that we may continue to enjoy your gracious support.

I wish you the best the outdoors has to offer.

Sincerely,
John L. Ebeling

Viet War Pace Down Over-all With Rising Burden on South

WASHINGTON (AP) — The over-all pace of the Vietnam war appears to have turned downward during President Nixon's two years in office, although the combat burden on South Vietnam continues to be severe.

Enemy terrorism remains high. But security in the countryside is reported steadily improving and some economic indicators are pointing toward better times.

This picture emerges from U.S. and South Vietnamese statistics which are less than comprehensive and sometimes disputed, but which can be used as rough gauges on how the war is going.

Under what he terms a Vietnamization program, Nixon has aimed at turning the combat burden over to Saigon. He announced the first U.S. troop withdrawals in June 1969. By mid-1971, the administration says, the U.S. ground combat role will be virtually over.

Such critics of the Nixon program as W. Averell Harriman, former chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks and currently a Democratic foreign policy adviser, contend Vietnamization is prolonging the conflict, with the Saigon regime fighting on while Americans pull out.

With the Paris talks still showing no progress, Secretary of State William P. Rogers was asked Friday: "Where is the evidence that the war is beginning to end ... for us or end for South Vietnam as well?"

Rogers said Nixon's "major emphasis was on the war ending for us." He noted U.S. withdrawals and lower casualties, but added that over-all combat activity is down and said the war is ending too "as far as the South Vietnamese are concerned."

Pentagon figures list U.S. troop strength in Vietnam at 335,000 at the end of last month, down from 539,000 in June 1969, and U.S. combat deaths at 4,221 in 1970, a drop from 9,414 the previous year.

While U.S. combat deaths dropped last year to below half the 1969 total, South Vietnamese deaths in action stayed almost as high: 20,138 in 1970 compared with 21,833.

An over-all decrease in battle tempo can be shown by the drop in combined allied casualties. Also enemy deaths fell sharply, by allied count to 103,638 in 1970 from 156,954 in 1969.

But with the enemy shifting from large-scale actions back to guerrilla tactics, the terror count has run high.

Enemy-initiated terror incidents were reported at 1,732 through the first 11 months of 1970, up from 1,375 the year before. The number of civilians assassinated or kidnaped was averaging 1,000 a month both years.

One of the plus signs, according to allied calculations, is the hamlet security index. From a 79.2 per cent figure for the percentage of relatively secure hamlets through the country in January 1969 the index had risen to 95 per cent by the end of 1970.

On the economic side the rate of inflation was reported down slightly, from 32.1 per cent in 1969 to 29.8 per cent in 1970. South Vietnam's rice production was listed up from 5.1 million metric tons in 1969 to 5.6 million tons last year.

In transportation, 2,596 kilometers of South Vietnam's highways were officially pronounced secure in 1969 and 4,400 by mid1970. Secure waterways were listed as up from 1,171 kilometers to 1,423.

Contest for Police Chief At Malden

MALDEN–The arrival of the new year brought forth the filing of candidates for city offices for the City of Malden election to be held Tuesday, April 6. Nine positions are to be filed for four of them.

Heading the list is the office of Chief of Police with a contest already developed. Bob Dockins filed for re-election and is being opposed by D. W. (Woody) McMillian. Ralph Stropp has filed for re-election as police judge, Jo Ann McCurter has filed for re-election as city collector, and George Anderson has filed for re-election as Councilman from Ward IV.

Other terms expiring this spring are: Bo McCurter, Councilman, Ward I; Leroy Evans, Councilman, Ward II; Elsie Haywood, Councilwoman, Ward III; Gordon Fritz, City Attorney; and Raynomd McElrath, City Treasurer.

Request for Opinion Being Drafted

JEFFERSON CITY–State Representative Tony Heckemeyer of Sikeston was this morning preparing a request for an opinion from state Attorney General John Danforth on the residency of Scott county Magistrate Lloyd G. "Jerry" Briggs.

Briggs, a Democrat, was elected unopposed in November. He signed documents in Alabama stating he was a resident there. Missouri law requires him to be a resident here the nine months prior to election.

Briggs contends he is a resident of Scott county, although he lived in Alabama during that period.

Thomas R. Gilmore, prosecuting attorney of Scott County, said this morning he is planning to confer with members of the county court this week to "share our feelings on the matter and compare notes."

Lots open to Elegible Low Income Families

PORTAGEVILLE--The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation announced the opening of residential lots in two localities in New Madrid county for low income citizens.

The available lots are in Risco through the Risco Community Development Association, Inc., and between highway 61 and Kewanee on route Z.

A water line runs by the Kewanee subdivision and each of the housing areas' lots is approved by the Farmers Home Administration.
